ROOSEVELT DECLARES EMBARGO ON ARMS AS FIERCE FIGHTING RAGES

TODAY

Be Cunning, Be Savage
Scattered, Little Wars
A Shot At A Bird
Bombs Follow Pamphlets

ITALIAN TROOPS advance into Ethiopia, "guided by planes overhead" that drop bombs wherever they see a flash of white cotton cloth, indicating the presence of natives, make Italy's advance easy.
Ethiopia's emperor, in black satin cloak, leaning from his north tower, gave wise advice to frantically howling and dancing tribesmen "who flourished their knives before the palace." This is quoted from a special cable to the New York Times: "I am happy to see you before me with knives, swords and rifles. Soldiers, I give you this advice: Be cunning, be savage, face the enemy one by one, two by two, in fields and mountains. Do not wear white cloths. Do not mass as now, hide and strike suddenly. Fight the nomad war. Steal up, snipe and murder singly. Scatter and advance to victory."
Thereupon the whole wild assembly clapped sharply thrice, shouted "Glory to the emperor" and plunged away through the narrow palace gates.

BEFORE THE EMPEROR gave the wise advice to his warriors, the throng of savage tribesmen had appeared before the north tower of his palace, where he stood in perfect calm and dignity. Whipping out their knives they shouted:
"Death to the Italians. We shall finish them once and for all. We thank you for your decree. God give you long life."

THE ITALIAN-ETHIOPIAN war starts various little wars. In New York, Italians and colored citizens argued, fought, a policeman had his hand broken, by a colored man with a blow from the staff of an Ethiopian flag. The policeman, who did not start the war, thought that unnecessary.

Mr. Valentine, New York's vice commissioner of police, keeps 1,200 policemen in reserve, ready for more riots.
In Rome, Americans have been advised to talk English cautiously, as "English" means "Englishman" and "Englishmen" are not popular in Italy.
The American consul in Rome was obliged to show his credentials to avoid trouble when he talked English with friends in a restaurant.
France dislikes the war and everybody connected with it. At Toulon, French crowds yell "Down with Mussolini and war" as fifty young Italians start homebound by rail, to help fight Ethiopia. It is "war," rather than Mussolini, that young French demonstrators dislike.
Anthony Eden, British minister, had insults shouted at him when he arrived at the Paris railroad station Thursday. Young men of France and other nations close to the big war snow from uncles, fathers, older brothers, what war means, and they want none of it.

LITTLE THINGS start big wars. Dr. Potter, formerly professor of political science in the University of Wisconsin, one of an international committee of four that tried to settle a quarrel between Italy and Ethiopia in 1934, says that Italy has good grounds for complaint against Ethiopia and that a soldier's casual shot at a bird probably started the present trouble.

Five hundred native Italian troops, and 1,500 Ethiopian troops, watching each other "from their positions, in one cases only two yards apart."

MANIAC KILLS WOMAN AS CROWD LOOKS ON AT FLINT, MICHIGAN

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 5.—(P)—Horrible shoppers saw Mrs. J. Odran, 63, eaten to death on a street here today and police seized Andrew Goodrich, 3, who shouted "The Lord commanded me to kill" as he was taken to headquarters.
Mrs. Odran, her arms filled with groceries, was walking with her niece, Esther Roberts, 14, when she was attacked.
Police said witnesses told them Goodrich felled her with a table leg, and continued to beat her until half dead. Mrs. Odran was held until Capt. Edward S. Teskey and sergeant Ray Miller, of the police, arrived.
Mrs. Odran was dead upon admission to a hospital.

OUACHITA GRAND JURY TO CONVENE TOMORROW

A grand jury of Ouachita parish for the full term of district court will meet at the courthouse Monday at 10 a. m. to begin investigations of about 50 criminal cases.
It is expected that the work of the grand jury will be completed before the end of the week.

24 PERSONS HURT AS NEW ORLEANS HOUSE COLLAPSES

Two Floors Suddenly Gave Way Under Crowd Gathered For Funeral

BODY OF DEAD WOMAN IS HURLED FROM THE COFFIN

Corpse Falls On Horrified Mourners; Two Are Injured Seriously

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—At least 24 persons were injured, two seriously, and more than 40 other persons shaken up in the collapse here late today of two floors of a Dauphine street residence just before a funeral was about to begin.
Friends and relatives, gathered for last rites of Mrs. Lawrence Ingargiola, who died yesterday, were hurled down 10 feet to a concrete floor below, along with the casket, a piano and other articles of furniture.
The floors of two second-story rooms, crowded with more than three score mourners, suddenly gave way, hurling the occupants to the ground floor in a screaming scramble. The body was thrown from the casket in the crash.
Fred Meyer, 34, and his brother, Otto Meyer, 28, who assisted in rescue efforts, said that more than 40 persons fell in a heap in a mad tangle of timbers and furniture.
"My brother and I kicked a side door off its hinges and assisted in pulling injured persons from the wreckage," Fred Meyer said.
The corpse fell on two, horrified women mourners. It was replaced in its casket and was quickly removed to a hearse, which had been waiting and carried to the St. Vincent De Paul cemetery.

ASSERT LONG MIGHT HAVE BEEN ACCUSED OF TAX VIOLATIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Treasury officials said today it was "a perfectly legitimate guess" that had Senator Long lived three months longer the government would have filed an income tax suit against him.
One official said the treasury had always refused to confirm or deny recurring rumors against delinquencies in Long's returns. However, it was recalled that indictments had been returned against several of Long's associates.
Long frequently declared on the floor of the senate that his returns were being investigated by the bureau of internal revenue.

TONGUE SWALLOWED BY YOUNG FOOTBALL PLAYER

BRAINTREE, Mass., Oct. 5.—(P)—A football player swallowed his tongue today in a high school game here when kicked in his Adams apple during the final scrimmage of the contest. Tonight he was reported out of danger.

Edridge Allen, 16, of the Braintree high team was the victim.
The boy was described by other players as slowly strangling when Dr. Arthur P. Morris of Braintree, called from the crowd of spectators, reached him. The physician gave first aid and took the boy to Quincy hospital. Several hours later the hospital reported the boy would be sent home shortly.

'SHADOW' MENACES EUROPE

A new "shadow" threatens Europe as the result of sanction threats against Italy—the "shadow" of a new alignment splitting central Europe from Italy to Poland. Recent developments indicate that for one reason or another, several nations might refuse to join hands with other League of Nations members in enforcing economic or military sanctions against Italy. The map shows these nations—Hungary, Austria, Germany and Poland.

MRS. MUENCH IS GIVEN FREEDOM

Former Society Matron Acquitted In Kidnaping Of Dr. Isaac Kelley

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 5.—(P)—Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy in the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley today.
The attractive, 43-year-old defendant was in tears as a jury of farmers reported its verdict at 9:59 a. m. after 1 1/2 hours actual deliberation.
She shook hands with each juror.
In two dramatic witness stand appearances at her trial, brought here on a change of venue, the red-haired sister of a Missouri supreme court judge had denied categorically the state's case that sought to connect her with the 1932 ransom abduction of the wealthy St. Louis throat specialist.
Her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, threw his arms around her as Judge W. C. Hughes read the verdict.
Tension in the courtroom snapped suddenly after the verdict was read. As Judge Hughes left the bench spectators surged in front of the bar rail and in a few minutes were mingling with the 10 farmers and two rural merchants who finally decided the long-delayed case.
As Mrs. Muench left the courthouse in company with Edgar J. Keating, Kansas City, one of the host of attorneys who participated in the defense, a large crowd formed on the courthouse square and flanked her on either side. She walked rapidly toward a waiting automobile, apparently with no regard for the hundreds of curious men and women.
Acquittal of Mrs. Muench was the first rebuff received by the state in prosecuting those charged with abducting the wealthy, socially prominent Dr. Kelley on April 20, 1932.
Angelo Rosegrant and Felix McDonald, two of the alleged gang members, were convicted and given prison sentences of 20 to 60 years respectively.

FARMER KILLED AS HE TRIES TO STOP TRUCK WITH MILK

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 5.—(P)—Hermon Slater, 41, a farmer living five miles south of Burlington, Wis., was killed today when, with a group of farmers, he attempted to stop one of five trucks hauling milk to Chicago.
Sheriff C. F. Erickson said he was informed that between 150 and 200 men massed on highway 42 one mile south of Kenosha at 1:30 a. m. and tossed planks into the path of five trucks bound for Chicago.
The first truck, Erickson said, swerved to the left, striking Slater. The second machine pulled to the right, missing him. The third ran over him as he sat in the road. Erickson quoted witnesses as reporting, "The trucks did not stop."
Erickson followed the truck train into Illinois and found William Leahy, driver of the first truck, at Lake Forest, a Chicago suburb. He returned Leahy to Kenosha, detaining him without charge pending an investigation.

Three Young School Girls Drowned In River Tragedy

CARTHAGE, Miss., Oct. 5.—(P)—This community was blanketed in sorrow tonight as it prepared to bury three young girls, all students at the Carthage high school, who were drowned last night when a small skiff sank in the Pearl river during an outing at McMillan's camp five miles southwest of here.
The tragedy cut short a happy week-end excursion for a group of 32 home economics students who had gone to the camp in charge of Miss Mary Norwood Puryear, a high school instructor, who was rescued from the treacherous currents of the stream along with two students.
The dead:
Gene Wagoner, 15-year-old daughter of Shelby Wagoner of the Progress community.
Mary Elizabeth Henderson, 13, daughter of Circuit Clerk E. R. Henderson of Carthage.
Dollie Booser, 14, daughter of Dan Booser of the Goshen community. Saved with Miss Puryear were

Reports From All Quarters Show No Compromise Between Factions

DEAR SAYS BASE IS LAID FOR STATE ORGANIZATION

Administration Forces Reveal No Signs Of Easing Up On Dictatorship

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—The people of Louisiana settled back today awaiting announcements of candidates and platforms for the January 21 statewide Democratic primary campaign.

Reports from all quarters indicated that there was no compromise nor alliance in store between the followers of the late Senator Huey P. Long and anti-Longs, but that a fierce political struggle was in store.
The Longs indicated no intention of loosening up on the dictatorship, which the assassinated senator set up, before the election as they hoped to keep the Long and Governor O. K. Allen machine in power by the whip of the laws of Long.

But on the other hand the forces of the anti-Longs were working toward a combination of all anti-Long factions sufficient to overthrow the dictatorial reign at the ballot box with a promise of equal representation for candidates at the polls and a "fair election count."

There are two announced anti-Long candidates for governor. Cleveland Dear, eighth district congressman, and Mason Spencer, a state representative.
Dear today issued a brief statement in which he said the foundation had been laid for a state organization.

YEGGS THREATEN 2 CHICAGO MEN

Harold F. McCormick And William C. Cummings Get Blackmail Notes

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(P)—Harold F. McCormick and William C. Cummings, Chicago industrial leaders, have been threatened with abduction and blackmail over a period of three weeks, Police Captain John Prendergast said today.

During that time, the police and agents of the department of justice have made secret efforts repeatedly to trap the plotters through negotiations by telephone and letter from the home of Cummings, president of the Drovers' National bank.

Captain Prendergast said the extortionists last night agreed to accept $30,000, but no one appeared at the Cummings home to collect the money.
Cummings told the authorities he had received several unsigned notes, reading "We have been thinking about kidnapping you for a long time. Pay us $30,000 and you'll be in no danger. If you don't you'll be in trouble plenty."

Four similar notes were received by Cummings and McCormick, who is chairman of the board of the International Harvester company. They apparently were the work of a poorly educated person, Capt. Prendergast said.
The police also investigated the possibility the threats might be the work of a crank.

Two Drivers Are Hurt In Different Mishaps

Frank Creighton, of 715 South Second street, was carried in an ambulance to the Riverside sanitarium late yesterday afternoon for treatment of injuries received when an automobile he was driving turned over near the intersection of the DeSard and Sterlington roads.
Creighton suffered a laceration over his right eye, general bruises and abrasions and his back was severely bruised. An x-ray picture of his back was to be made.
At St. Francis sanitarium A. W. Fisher, tobacco salesman residing at 622 Rochelle avenue, was receiving treatment for injuries received Friday night when his car was said to have collided with a truck parked with no light burning on the highway at Girard. Fisher suffered cuts on his head and hand.

Count Ciano (above), son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, said yesterday that the capture of Addis Ababa was imminent by Italian forces. The count is commanding an air squadron in the African war.

ADUWA TO FALL, DECLARES CIANO

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)
ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 5.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini and commander of the "Desperate" air squadron, announced shortly before noon today that the Ethiopian town of Aduwa would fall around 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

In the early afternoon Italian troops under Gen. Mariavigna were at the gates of Aduwa, the goal of Italy's 40-year-old desire for revenge, with the Ethiopians offering no resistance.
General Mariavigna was pushing forward with a strong squadron of tanks, drawn up to storm Aduwa.

Chief resistance, it was reported authoritatively, came from Ethiopian mud huts half hidden in the mountainside.
Ethiopians maintained a continual sniping at the advancing Italian troops from holes in the walls of these rude structures.

Italian officers estimated Ethiopian forces between Aduwa and Adigrat at between 20,000 and 25,000 warriors.
Opposing them is an Italian army force numbering approximately 75,000.
No news has been received here of Italian Consul Franca of Aduwa who was unable to get out of town before the Italian advance began.

The Italian troops are moving forward into Ethiopia in waves.
First are the armored units, then

RESOLUTION FLAYS METHOD OF NAMING BALLOT OFFICIALS

CROWLEY, La., Oct. 5.—(P)—A resolution condemning the method of selecting election officials as called for by the state laws and asking that candidates be allowed to choose their own commissioners was passed today at a meeting of the Acadia parish Democratic executive committee.
With only one dissenting vote and two refusals to vote, the resolution requests that the state-chosen board of election supervisors allow candidates to submit the names of commissioners to it as formerly, that those names be drawn as has heretofore been custom by a committee in a public place, and that the persons whose names are drawn be appointed commissioners and alternates "as provided by existing law."

The resolution states "such condition as is existing is not now and never has been contemplated as a part of democratic government."
The chief preoccupation of the British delegation at the moment seems to be to force speed in the present crisis.

2 TOWNS REPORTED TAKEN BY ITALIANS IN ETHIOPIAN WAR

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(Sunday)—(P)—The Addis Ababa correspondent of the Havas news agency said today that Ras Seyoum, commander of the Tigre troops in northwest Ethiopia, reported Italian troops took Wageta and Enguela, south of Aduwa, at 4 p. m. Saturday.
The Ethiopian commander was quoted as saying there were numerous dead on both sides, including four Italian officers.
The Italians were reported advanced to a position 100 kilometers from the frontier, apparently in an effort to encircle Aduwa, goal of a concerted Italian drive, and Aksum.
Airplanes, the Ethiopian leader reportedly said, flew over the entire region, bombing the population, including women and children, at Adigrat.
The commander said the Ethiopians were withdrawing before the Italians, leading them to a favorable terrain before offering resistance and possibly launching a counter-offensive.

League Of Nations Delegates Absolve Ethiopia Of Blame

Geneva Fails To Take Immediate Action On Plea To Stop 'Massacre'

STRATEGY BODY NAMED TO HANDLE AFRICAN MATTER

Group Must Pick Aggressor In Report To League Tomorrow Afternoon

GENEVA, Oct. 5.—(P)—The council of the League of Nations appointed a "strategy" board of six to handle the Italo-Ethiopian warfare tonight but failed to take immediate action upon a solemn Ethiopian appeal to "stop the massacre of innocent populations."
A report submitted to the council by its committee of 13 absolved Ethiopia of blame for the African fighting. A member said it inferred Italy was "clearly in the wrong."

Failure of the council to act immediately upon Ethiopia's plea for adoption of military, naval and air sanctions against Italy brought forth later private expressions of reproach from even the most ardent advocates of the league.
League circles heard one of the first actions of the committee of six was to ask the league secretariat to draw up a statement based on the assumption Italy has committed unprompted aggression.

This statement will be discussed by the committee tomorrow afternoon. No actual decision of war guilt against Italy was reached by the group, it was said, but its action in directing the secretariat to draft a preliminary document of that nature was held to be significant.

The strategy committee must make recommendations upon Ethiopia's plea for military sanctions and also must name the aggressor, in a report to the council Monday afternoon. The committee of six went into session tonight immediately upon council's adjournment.

With desperate fighting continuing in northeast Africa, the gravity of the situation as seen in Geneva was shown by the fact President Eduard Benes convoked a session of the league assembly for next Wednesday.

This means that almost 60 nations will be asked to give their opinion and share responsibility in any decision for sanctions against Italy.
When the committee of 13's report absolving Ethiopia from blame was made the Italian delegation instantly entered a declaration of full reserves concerning it.

Baron Pompeo Aloisi, head of Premier Mussolini's delegation, made the reservations before packed galleries at a public afternoon session of the council.

Italy made an explanation to the council tonight of the fighting in Africa. Presumably the contention was pressed that the action was of a "military police" and "defensive" nature.

Countries named upon the committee of six were Great Britain, France, Rumania, Portugal, Chile and Denmark.
After the report was made, Aloisi charged the council with failing to handle the problem from the standpoint of realities and accused Ethiopia of aggression.

The little Ethiopian, Teclé Hawariat, then rose.
"I ask the council to address to the Italian government an appeal to cease all military operations and to stop the massacre of innocent populations," he said.

The chief preoccupation of the British delegation at the moment seems to be to force speed in the present crisis.
Further fighting was reported on the southern Ogaden front, facing Italian Somali land, with 2,000 Ethiopians dead.

On the northern front the Ethiopian lines are stretched over a fertile plain en route to Asmara, 22 miles south of the Eritrean border. Throughout the day, since the beginning of hostilities, the native women have been rushing to the battle lines with great jugs of water and tej (a liquor) on their shoulders. They also bore sacks of corn to the fighters.

Unofficial reports reached the capital that Aduwa had been occupied by an unopposed Italian army, the Ethiopians having withdrawn to reinforce their brothers in arms near Adigrat. The town was occupied by women, children and men too infirm for war duty, the reports said.

(An official communique to Rome by the advancing army reported Aduwa still in the hands of the Ethiopians, but expected it to be encircled by evening. A similar communication was received at Rome from the Italian commander in Asmara.)

The Ethiopians are fighting on the northern front to block a semi-circular enclosure by the Italian army from the north.
The Italians penetrated the towns of Wayeta and Enguela, near Adigrat, said a government communique, "but have not yet reached Adigrat."
A spirited battle occurred between the forces of Ras Seyoum (Ethiopian commander of the area) and of General Emilio de Bono (Italian leader), resulting in the capture by the Ethiopians of one Italian captain, three Eritrean officers, two machine guns and ten rifles.
"No Ethiopian officers were killed, but considerable casualties were reported among the soldiers on both sides."
Further official charges were made by Ethiopia of attack on non-combatants. A squadron of Italian planes, the charge related, shelled women and children in the village of Bette Hawariat, near Adigrat.
Mussolini's armies are making heavy use of planes. Attempts to bomb Makale, 100 miles southeast of Aduwa on the northern front, were reported; the missiles going wide and setting fire to a nearby forest.
Another report placed nine planes within 45 miles of Addis Ababa, over the village of Ahafatchi (not shown on maps). The report, still unconfirmed, said they were en route to bomb the capital but lost their way. Further fighting is raging in the General de Bono reported that despite long marches under a hot sun the troops were withstanding these hardships and combat in excellent fashion.

WILSON TALKS AT LABOR MEETING

Congressman Riley J. Wilson, speaking before members of the Central Trades and Labor council at the Labor temple Friday night, explained the purpose of recent labor legislation passed by the last congress and the benefits which will result to labor as a result of the new measures.

He stated that congress through the passage of new legislation affecting labor had made great strides towards settling some of the pressing problems with which labor had been confronted and that every effort is being made to meet all reasonable demands which labor may make in the future, pointing out that such a policy is an integral part of the "New Deal" of the administration.

Who Did It?

The terrific hurricane which recently swept the Florida keys, destroying much property and many human lives, has been termed widely, "an act of God."

Did God create that hurricane and direct its course? Does God send floods and earthquakes to assail human beings? That is a question that many persons have tried to answer, with a more or less distorted idea of cause and effect.

Do destructive winds, floods and earthquakes strike only where human beings are living—and where the most wicked human beings are living? The evidence is that more often than otherwise those disturbances occur where they harm mankind.

In reaching a conviction regarding the matter, we may well distinguish between the performances of nature and the acts of the Almighty.

This earth was created to perform certain functions. Certain natural, immutable laws govern this globe permanently that those functions may be carried out. The machinery has been set going. It is still going.

If you get tangled up with a corn sheller and get hurt, can your injury be blamed on the manufacturer of the corn sheller? Did he do what was done to you? If a man builds a house for his family and a member of that family falls off the roof or out of a window and gets killed, should the rest of the family declare, "He was killed by an act of Papa?"

This earth could not sustain human life as human life is sustained now but for the existing natural laws. Those laws must work, no matter whom they hurt occasionally, in order that the affairs of the earth may continue.

Instead of being concerned over the occasional disturbances that bring disaster to human kind, let us rather stand in awe and adoration of the providence which keeps the world moving in its course with so few upheavals.

Many of the losses suffered by mankind from nature's disturbances are the fault of mankind itself. Why should we persist in living where natural catastrophes are known to occur and can not be guarded against? Why live in a dangerous earthquake zone or under the shadow of a threatening volcano or in a notorious hurricane area?

"Your mama should have had better sense than to build her nest here," observed a farmer as he compassionately surveyed the fledglings his reaper had mutilated.

It might be reasonably contended that the Florida keys in their present stage of formation were never intended for do not harm mankind.

Most of the floods which sweep men to death and destruction are the direct result of the ignorance and indifference of men—the ruthless cutting down of forests where Nature intended forests to be.

The practice of blaming God for natural catastrophes is a hangover from the days when everything was attributed to God. If a man stubbed his toe and fell down, God did it. If a person got hard boiled, God hardened his heart. God sent the plagues—which were the result of dirt. And He sent the famines—which were the result of laziness and simple foresight.

Natural calamities might better be termed "acts of Nature," to which could sometimes be added "and man's lack of sense."

THAT, ANYHOW

As well as being pointless, it would be impossible to attempt to set forth all the obstacles encountered by General Johnson as administrator of works projects in New York City. In his own incomparable manner, the general has battled valiantly with the problems which have arisen in the task of getting workers transferred from the relief rolls to jobs that were waiting for them and hence to the government pay rolls. The general has had his own misgivings about the enterprise and has wondered where the workers would be when the improvised jobs had run out.

Recently, however, the able and esteemed park commissioner of the city, Mr. Moses, has found himself unable to hold in any longer and charges the general's administration with "stupid, arrogant and arbitrary action" in "dumping" 11,000 unsupervised workers on park projects, with the result that "hundreds of men have been lying around in the parks, doing absolutely nothing except jeering at workers, shooting craps, drinking and generally creating a menace to the public."

Nevertheless the general has one defense, and it is formidable. It is implied in his statement in another connection that the pay roll machinery of his section of the works progress administration is functioning satisfactorily. The money is going out. To that extent the general has been successful.

Mr. Hopkins might well be reminded that you can't prime a pump by using a medicine dropper.

Senator Borah, to put it mildly, is receptive. Though past 70, he has young ideas.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

SCIENCE AND THE GARDEN

(A scientist has discovered that plants of several varieties will flourish better if fed with manganese and boron.)
If you possess expensive plants
That you set special store on,
They'll be kept free from slugs and ants
By manganese and boron.
Without these chemicals, I'm told,
The shrubs you love and cherish,
Their little buds will swiftly fold
And then they'll shortly perish,
And not a single growing spray
Will live to see another day.

All plants are choosy with their fare,
Beyond the slightest question,
If they're not fed with proper care,
They'll die of indigestion.
Their favorite diet must be found
To give them every season,
Or they'll be stricken to the ground
And you will know the reason.
But then you'll find it is too late—
They can't evade a dreadful fate.

I know no more of growing flowers
Than does the average moron,
I don't know how to feed bright bowers
With manganese and boron;
But I possess a large back yard
And there I labor yearly
To raise up blooms which I regard
And cherish very dearly.
And not a chemist that I know
Puts on a better flower show.

Confidence From Europe

BY BRUCE CATTON

If the returning of the million-dollar gate to the prize-fighting racket made it seem as if happy days were here again, with the voice of the turtle being heard in the land once more, the latest news about gold shipments has a similar sound.

Transatlantic liners are bringing the metal to America once more, even as in the good old days before the crash. Latest estimates are that fully a billion dollars' worth will be brought in before the trend changes. If so, we shall have the distinction of holding around $10,000,000,000 in hard metal in our vaults, with no citizen permitted to get so much as a peek at it.

What the effect of all this may be something for the economists to worry over. It is what has caused this movement that is interesting.

Europe is sending over gold simply because foreign investors have a relatively greater confidence in the future of this country than they have in their own.

The threat of war, never very far removed from Europe, is right down around the houseposts these days. The rhythmic crash of the feet of marching men on the pavement may have a sweet sound to the militarists and the dictators, but it is the sort of thing that scares an investor out of his wits.

In addition, Europe's various dictators have yet to prove that they know just what to put in baby's bottle to promote growth and health. Such men as Hitler and Mussolini came to power as a result of agonizing economic crises, but they are not miracle workers.

Putting parliament in jail and ruling the nation through the voice of one man may save a lot of lost motion, but it does not automatically end unemployment and balance budgets.

By way of contrast, over on this side of the Atlantic there is a great nation which seems as little likely to go to war as any country on earth—and which stands the best chance of all of coming out of it comparatively unscathed if war does develop.

It is also a democracy, with a form of government firmly established in the affections of the people; and whatever may be said about the faults of democracy these days, a blind man could see that the American government has a greater stability than the jerry-built dictatorships of Europe.

Added up, this simply means that European investors see in America the one nation that can look to the future with some measure of confidence.

In the face of that, some of our own frantic fears look rather silly. Can't we at least have as much confidence in our own future as Europe has?

SO THEY SAY

Labor has, I think, been given a new charter. A capitalist government has shown that it "cares." The third phase of the New Deal, as I see it, will be not social security, but profit security.—Major L. L. B. Angus, British economist.

The inalienable and sacred rights of human personality are indeed regarded as trivial when the bones of 6,000,000 men can be strewn across the fields for a cause which is still unknown.—Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, Catholic university.

Corporations are frequently regarded as inhuman legalistic creations. In all their affairs, however, they constantly deal with human beings and respond to the sum total of human needs.—Donaldson Brown, motor executive.

New York is the sort of town where one can run around and accomplish very little.—Harry Woodburn Chase, chancellor, New York university.

Where is neutrality when wheat goes to $2 a bushel and cotton to 30 cents a pound?—Bernard M. Baruch, questioned about neutrality laws.

We have come to realize that war is the worst possible enemy of prosperous business.—Herbert S. Houston, newspaper syndicate head.

BARBS

Several million votes undoubtedly await the first candidate whose slogan promises a pork chop in every pot.

A New York woman's attorney says he is "behind her in everything she does." Must be a dare-devil if his claim applies on the highway.

"Ohio farmer finds horse in his well." Whoever was testing that old proverb must have been a determined fellow.

"Hoover asks for liberty." Just as we feared; to keep him silent, G. O. P. leaders have him locked up.

To finance its war, Italy, according to authorities, may have to melt down its gold plate. Then, of course, they can fall back upon Mussolini's brass.

TODAY'S BIBLE THOUGHT

And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.—St. Matthew 21:22.

Faith is the eye that sees Him, the hand that clings to Him, the receiving power that appropriates Him.—Woodbridge.

New Deal In Washington

By Willis Thornton

WASHINGTON.—With war headlines screaming at them every day, the peace societies are redoubting their efforts.

The campaign of the National Council for the Prevention of War to raise a million dollars to propagate peace is only one of several. There is World Peaceways, for instance, whose work is looking up these perilous days.

People who ignore peace work for years will suddenly step up to the bat with a check when the troops are about ready to march.

There are two interesting developments in the peace movement, however. One is the way the churches are taking it up, particularly the evangelical denominations, which used to be so hot for prohibition.

By Armistice day the Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, and Christian churches will have completed a member-by-member canvass to determine the attitude of their members toward war under varying circumstances.

The energy that used to go into fighting the demon rum is now being turned against Mars, and the Anti-Saloon league's loss is the pacifist societies' gain.

The other development is the fact that the National Council for the Prevention of War is preparing to go direct to town in the coming congressional elections, organizing by precinct, ward, and district to defeat candidates who won't subscribe to their peace program. This is an old Anti-Saloon league technique right back again, and presents one more jitter for candidates for congress.

Need A Wayne Wheeler
This "peace action" program is so reminiscent of the days when Wayne Wheeler had half of congress jumping through his hoop that one wonders whether just such a forceful leader may arise in the interests of peace.

The youthful Senator Holt is about to stump the country for peace, and arrangements are being made to stage demonstrations next spring just before the party conventions that can hardly fail to influence the party platforms that will be in the making then.

It's Tough Sledding
Educating for peace is like all educating—discouraging work at times. The Quaker Frederick J. Libby of the NCPW ran smack into this one during a poll being taken at the Rochester State fair recently.

The question was "Shall the United States join the League of Nations on terms of the Pope resolution, which provides that we shall not use armed force to support the league?" The author of this plan is, of course, Senator Pope of Idaho, currently in Europe and sounding off after each day's crisis.

Two questionnaire-answers have evidently never heard of the senator. One answered, "No, I won't vote. I don't see any reason for bringing the Pope into this." The other opined, "I think the Pope's judgment is very good."

Baker Still Adroit
Newton D. Baker has lost neither his adroitness nor his courtliness since retiring from public office. At a recent meeting here of a commission of the American Council on Education to study and make recommendations on a better program for youth, Baker was approached by reporters for a statement.

He demurred, protesting, "If you want to talk to someone really distinguished, you'd better talk to Mrs. Fisher."

He referred to Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author of "The Bent Twig," "The Brimming Cup," and many other novels, who is the latest literary light to turn to public service by asserting that she is willing to give all her time to the work of this commission if necessary.

Astor Set For Reward
Vincent Astor, famous as the yacht-owning friend of President Roosevelt, is again rumored in line for his reward in the form of a high-diplomatic post. . . . August set an all-time record for visitors to Washington—estimated at 312,031, with not one special attraction to draw them.

The Friday the 13th jinx is still gravely regarded in some circles. . . . The colored Elks had chartered a steamship on that date at Alexandria for an annual excursion. . . . Not until the boat stood at the wharf ready for passengers was the date noticed on the tickets. . . . and not one passenger would take a chance; the boat left empty.

CONFEDERATES TO MEET AT CAPITAL

Calling on all Confederate veterans of Louisiana, which he declared now numbered less than two hundred, Major-General W. E. T. Ogletree, commanding the Louisiana division of the U. S. C. V. in a general order, issued from New Orleans Saturday, urged all veterans to attend the annual state reunion which is to be held at Baton Rouge on October 17 and 18.

All camps in good standing were requested to elect two delegates and two alternates and to send their names as soon as elected to Mrs. W. E. Kerman, assistant adjutant general, at 1328 Lowerline street, New Orleans.

Invitations to attend the reunion were extended to the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the chapters of the Children of the Confederacy, Sons of Confederate Veterans and all Spanish war and World war veterans.

Twins Born To Grandmother
Believed to be the youngest grandmother in Britain, Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, aged 38, of London, has just presented her husband with twins. Mrs. Lewis is now the mother of 11 children. All are healthy. Her eldest child, Irene, aged 21, presented her with her only grandchild two years ago. "Ronald, my grandchild, was born about the same time as my daughter, Catherine," Mrs. Lewis said. "Irene had to go out to work soon after Ronald's birth, so I fed him with Catherine."

Mrs. Lewis probably is Britain's oldest mother of twins. And Catherine is actually Ronald's aunt.

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—All around the town: Not all the chorus girls go straight home after their late hours in the night clubs. About a hundred pretty youngsters, with makeup scrubbed from their faces, can be found at early mass at St. Paul's.

Some of the larger Jewish restaurants of the lower East side have installed floor shows. But the chorus girls, though buxom, are all Christians. Men customers prefer them, so I'm told, "because every Jewish girl is looking always to get married."

A man has been plodding up and down Broadway carrying sandwich signs advertising for news of a Ruth Neidman, who disappeared a year ago. Hired by the family, he is to visit other large cities if she isn't found here.

Sidewalk artists have moved in on the town and are sketching portraits for 25 cents, with customers standing in line. . . . Americans won't believe wine or brandy is really old unless the bottles are covered with a thick layer of dust. So dealers oblige by spraying on a preparation that looks like dust, even though the contents are genuine. . . . At St. Queen street was the town's first musical instrument shop. It was conducted by the original John Jacob Astor, in the home of his mother-in-law, and they all lived there in harmony.

Odd Autographs
What's in a name? There's a steeplejack named O. N. High (though he added the middle initial just for the effect). Al K. Hall is not a liquor store proprietor, but an aviator. However, an I. Liquorman runs a bar and grill. And there's a realtor named Sellit, a dentist named Filler, and a tailor who calls himself I. Needle.

The street system here is supposed to be simple, with avenues running north and south, streets east and west. Yet, there are a good many exceptions to disprove the rule. A Greenwich Village is a maze of confusion, with Fourth street crossing Tenth street, and so on. And Pearl street begins and ends on Broadway, meanwhile running in three directions.

Brave Effort
An Indian is making plans to try to reclaim the upper part of Manhattan Island for his people. Says that section never was included in the original $24 transaction. He probably won't get it, but the way taxes and real estate prices are now, he's taking an awful risk.

Remodeling work which is being done for the Liggett Drug company of New York City on the building located at 236 DeSird street, is nearing completion. The property is owned by the Nelson estate and has been leased through F. J. Zuzak and company, Shreveport realtors, to the Liggett Drug company for a period of ten years.

Improvements being made are under the supervision of W. C. Salley, and consist of the complete remodeling of the building with plate glass show windows on the front and sides, black cararra glass in the bulkheads and the metal to be of aluminum alloy, aluminate finish. The floor will be covered with a composition tile with marble finish. The fixtures consist of a 30-foot soda fountain and the latest style show cases, shelves tables and counters, will be of modernistic type finished with birch trim.

Mr. Zuzak, who handled the transaction for the Liggett Drug company, stated that this store will be one of the most complete and most modern drug stores that Liggett has installed in the south. The Liggett Drug company operate 500 stores in the United States and in picking Monroe as an additional city for the large chain, the concern feels that the people of Monroe would appreciate the proper kind of store that is being installed, it was stated. The store will be completed about November 1, and open for business on that day.

Others on the staff are Billy Laffler, associate editor; Walter Savage, news editor; Lloyd Price and Dawson Kennedy, sports writers; Marjory Chambers and Roberta Neal, society editors; M. D. ROYAL CONFECTIONERY IS IN NEW LOCATION

The Royal Confectionery, formerly located at DeSird and Jackson streets has re-opened for business in a newly remodeled building, 701 Jackson street, which was recently purchased by the owners.

Newly purchased fixtures have been installed and the interior pleasingly decorated with a color scheme of olive and gold. Curb service will be a feature of the concern at its new location.

In addition to the serving of sandwiches, drinks and candies, the concern has installed a modern bakery. A counter freezer, which freezes ice cream before the eyes of the customers, is another feature.

A formal opening is planned later. V. C. Vasses and Paul Mavrides are the owners.

OFFICERS DOUBT
TALE OF MURDER

Max King Declares He Committed Crime For Which Others Are Paying

Max King, 24, who pleaded guilty in the district court here Wednesday to a charge of embezzling an automobile owned by the 484 Taxicab company of Monroe, has told members of the sheriff's department that he killed a man while perpetrating, with an accomplice, a robbery of a filling station at Toxoka, Kan., in the latter part of September, 1931. The sheriff's department was included to scout the story.

It is considered probable that King was one of two robbers who committed the filling station hold-up, but the case is complicated by the fact that the other robber, Roy McDaniels, is now serving a life sentence in the Kansas state industrial reformatory for the murder, and the fact that another man, held in the Tennessee state penitentiary has declared that he was one of the robbers of the filling station and was the one who committed the murder.

In the face of these conflicting "confessions," with positive information revealing that only two robbers committed the hold-up, the sheriff's department here plans to remove

LOUISIANA

During the last four years there were numerous revenue laws passed to effect a shift in the burden of taxation from real estate to other sources. Nearly every one of these laws were tested in the courts. Most of these laws were drafted by the Attorney General and his assistants.

Never before was there more co-ordination between the Attorney General's office and the various Departments of our State.

It is generally admitted that, because of these facts, it fell for us to have more work than ever before in the history of the Attorney General's office. We think that we worked hard and well.

On the record of work done and service given by the Department of Justice during the present term, I offer for re-election as Attorney General of Louisiana.

I am running on the Long Administration State Ticket.

SUREBEST BREAD
IN NEW WRAPPER

Brogan Says Interest Shown By Public In Design Is Gratifying

A new design in the wrapper enclosing Surebest bread has found a strong appeal among the bread-buyers of the city, it was stated Saturday by C. P. Brogan of the Surebest Bakeries, Inc., who said the interest shown by the public has been extremely gratifying.

"Of course," said Mr. Brogan, "it is one thing to have a new wrapper design, and another thing to have the quality inside to live up to the suggestion of the wrapper. We are proud to know that our customers are finding the highest satisfaction in the product inside the wrapper as well as in the cover of the bread. The wrapper is a protection of the product, and simply emphasizes the good qualities of the bread inside. Many new customers have come to learn that Surebest lives up to its name, not alone in the wrapper but in the superior qualities of the bread."

Surebest Bakery, Inc., is owned and operated by C. P. Brogan, J. Lacara, and A. P. Colvin, who have announced new improvements at the bakery plant, 100 South Fifth street. A retail department has been added, and all kinds of cookies and bread sweets are being manufactured in response to a demand for this retail service. A day crew has been added to the personnel and orders for birthday cakes and special bakery goods are being taken. Hot buttered biscuits are made at 11:30 each morning. In a few days Surebest salt rising bread will be put on the market.

"During the winter months," Mr. Brogan said, "there is nothing so important for the health of children as Surebest buttered toast. It should be served every morning."

CHAPTER XLIII

Jo's face drained of color at sight of Edna Fragonet, and instantly the thought crossed her mind that Fragonet himself would unwittingly appear at any moment now.

"Please don't look so astonished, Miss Darien," Edna Fragonet said, her voice heavy with sarcasm. "Surely you must have expected to see me some time during your stay in Hollywood."

"I'm afraid I didn't," Jo hoped her words were steady. "But now that you're here . . . won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, no. I'll be only a moment, Miss Darien. I want you to know I don't intend to give Fragonet up."

"I had no idea that you did, Mrs. Fragonet."

"Then what's your game?" asked the other woman. "What did you expect to gain by flying to Hollywood with him, by hounding him?"

"Just a moment, Mrs. Fragonet!" Jo interrupted quietly. "I'll answer your questions—and I'll answer them truthfully. Her voice was steady now, she knew, and it was steel-edged with pride and hatred. "My game in Hollywood is simply to earn an honest living. My reason for coming in your husband's plane was to save the fare, I suppose. And because he invited me. As for hounding Peter Fragonet, I'd be eternally grateful if you'd take him to Europe and keep him there!"

Edna Fragonet's expression did not change. "Suppose," she asked, "that Peter and I stay in Hollywood—where we belong—and you leave?"

"I'll leave Hollywood when I'm ready, Mrs. Fragonet, and I don't believe you or anyone else can make me leave until then."

Fragonet's wife was silent a moment. Then she advanced toward Jo, her fists clenched and her eyes pin-points of anger. "I wouldn't be too sure of that, if I were you. Would it interest you to know that after tomorrow you won't have a job?"

Watching the effect of this question, the woman relaxed, smiling. "And jobs are hard to find here. I think you'll decide you'd best go home."

At first Jo could hardly believe what she had heard, but as she gazed at the cold, venomous glance of the other woman she knew that Edna Fragonet would attempt just what she had promised.

"What if Maisie refuses to fire me?" Jo asked slowly.

"I hardly think she'll be able to afford not to, Miss Darien. But if she wants to be a fool, and you attempt to stay on here, I'll raise a row that will be heard from here to New York!"

"But—but that wouldn't be fair to Boleson, and it would ruin your husband," Jo protested.

The other nodded quickly. "You pretend not to be interested in Fragonet—but why do you want to be so sure his career isn't spoiled?"

Jo was about to answer when she heard the front doorbell, and before she could move from the spot she saw the landlady hurrying past the door on the way to answer it. With a frightened glance at Edna Fragonet, Jo heard Peter's booming voice ask, "Is Miss Darien at home?"

He stopped dead still in the doorway; then, mastering himself as he might for a scene before the camera, he came into the room and walked straight toward his wife.

"What's all this, Edna? Making trouble again?"

Her answer was cold and lifeless, but Jo sensed that there was hurt in it, too. She sensed that Edna Fragonet loved this man in her frigid, possessive way and that she would fight senselessly for him until she died.

"Suppose you explain to me, Peter. You and Miss Darien here."

"There's nothing to explain," Fragonet said quietly. "You've been yelling divorce until my ears are ringing. And I want to marry Jo." His lips curled in a smile that froze Jo's heart. Here was a Fragonet she had never seen.

His wife turned swiftly to Jo. "You hear? You deny that—"

"Wait!" It was almost a scream, that single word crowding from Jo's nerve-tightened throat. "I heard it. I heard what he said—but will you hear what I'm going to say?" She faced them both, holding to a chair, holding because she was weak with anger now. "I—I think you're both fools, and I never want to see you or hear your names again as long as I live! I've had nothing but trouble since the day you came to Crest Lake."

She turned on Fragonet. "Why do you think that when you love a woman it turns something on inside her, like an electric light? What makes you think that all you have to do is say, 'I love you and want to marry you,' and I'll jump at the chance? It must be because you always win in the pictures you make, or maybe it's because of all the foolish letters you get, or what crazy women say when they see you in public—"

"Jo!" Fragonet raised a protesting hand.

"I'm not going to stop until I'm finished. This is what I planned to say to you tonight, and I'm glad your wife is here to hear me say it . . . Jo stopped, breathless, then plunged on again. "I did like you at first—but I never told you I loved you. I never told you that, no matter how you tried to make me believe I did. I liked you at first because . . . because once there must have been something about you that was honest and decent. That must be what they see on the screen, the part of you I saw—before I really knew you."

Mrs. Fragonet moved toward the door. "I see no reason to listen to ravings like this," she said.

But Jo slid between her and the door, tossed back her hair with a nervous hand. "Maybe there's no reason to listen, but you're going to. I want you to get this straight, once and for all—I don't want your husband, and I never did!"

Mrs. Fragonet's smile was cold, unbelieving. "Really," she said, "you're quite a little actress. I'm surprised you haven't tried the studios," with that she swept past Jo and out of the room.

Fragonet stood looking at Jo, his mouth almost comically agape. "You—really feel that way, Jo?" he asked slowly.

Jo nodded. "That's the way I feel. And I want you to go, please . . . and not bother me any more . . . ever."

Dully she heard the outer door slam. Then she stumbled weakly into the half-lighted hall, felt her way along the wall and up the stairway to her room.

Next morning Maisie Lester was at the bungalow almost before Jo was out of bed.

"Say, kid," Maisie greeted her, trying to hide a troubled countenance with one of her wide smiles, "when I hired you I didn't know you wrecked homes in high places. Lolita did tell me that Fragonet was crazy about you and had been pestering you. But last night I was yanked out of my downy couch by a telephone call from Mrs. Fragonet, and—"

"I know, Maisie. She wants you to fire me."

"That's the dope, all right." Jo looked at Maisie questioningly. "Do you have to do what she says?"

"Do what she says? Of course I don't! I own my place and I'll run it the way I like. Only—"

"Only what, Maisie?"

"Well . . . she can make it tough for me, all right. And she can make it tough for you, too."

Jo looked hard at her slippers. "Maybe we ought to hoist the white flag, Maisie."

Maisie sat beside Jo on the edge of the bed, put a plump arm around her shoulders. "If you say we fight, then it's okay with me, Jo. If you can stand all the fireworks, I can stand to lose a little business."

Jo shook her head. "That isn't all there is to it, Maisie. If she gets so wildly jealous that she raises a row it'll mean bad publicity for Atlas. It'd ruin Fragonet and hurt Boleson—and it might hurt some of the people who have anything at all to do with Fragonet's pictures. And I hate messes, Maisie. I've had enough of them this summer."

She turned to her staunch employer. "I know you don't like to fire me, Maisie—so I'll just quit."

"But what are you going to do? I know darned well you haven't saved any money on what I was paying you."

Jo shrugged. "I wish I knew what I was going to do."

"Well," Maisie told her philosophically. "You can always get a sandwich and a cup of coffee at my place. That's a good thing to remember in Hollywood."

AID IS ASKED IN BOY SCOUT DRIVE

Judge Harper Seeks Volunteers To Assist In Annual Campaign

A call for volunteers willing to devote a portion of a day to the forthcoming one-day drive for Boy Scout funds was issued Saturday by Judge W. M. Harper, president of the Ouachita Valley council of the Boy Scouts of America.

A meeting of the volunteers will be held in the Boy Scout headquarters at the parish courthouse next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, to complete plans for the drive, which will be held Oct. 18.

Judge Harper said the invitation to attend the volunteers' meeting is extended to all citizens who are interested in the welfare of boys in this parish, and who "are willing to give a few hours in helping to raise the comparatively small fund that is needed to carry on Boy Scout activities the coming year."

"The Boy Scout organization is of such deep importance to the citizenry of this parish," Judge Harper said, "that every individual concerned for the welfare of our youth should be interested in making this occasion an opportunity of service."

Every person interested in the program is asked to report at the scout office in the courthouse promptly at 7:30 Thursday night.

CROWDER ALLOWS BUT 5 HITS TO BEAT CUBS, 2-1

HARTNETT'S HOME RUN ONLY SOLID HIT OFF VETERAN

'General' Hurls Masterful
Game; Cub Errors
Prove Costly

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
WRIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Alvin Crowder, a baseball veteran who served with the United States army in Siberia, capitalized his experience with wintry weather today to pitch the Detroit Tigers to their third straight victory and within one game of their long-sought goal, the world championship.

The 34-year-old North Carolina right-hander turned back the youthful Chicago Cubs, most of whom were in knee breeches when the "General" was carrying a musket on Asiatic duty, and whipped them, 2 to 1, with a brilliantly executed five-hit performance.

The old warhorse, in achieving his first world series triumph in three starting attempts, not only gave a masterful exhibition, marred only by the home run ball he served to Gabby Hartnett in the second inning, but figured in the scoring of both Detroit runs to make it a glorious day for this captain of the "old guard."

Crowder singled in the third and came home with the tying run on Jo-Jo White's hit and Charley Gehringer's double off Lindstrom's glove. The General had the "breaks" with him in the sixth when his roller was missed by Shortstop Billy Jurges of the Cubs, thereby enabling little "Flea" Clifton, substitute Tiger third baseman, to scamper home with the winning run. Clifton had taken two bases off Augie Galan's miff of a long fly ball and the collapse of the home team's defense proved fatal.

Thus fortified the General swept back the Cubs in their last four attempts to break through the old fellow's crafty pitching defense. Billy Herman doubled in the sixth, to start the home half, but couldn't get beyond third base. Finally, in the ninth, Frank Demaree and Phil Cavaretta hit safely, with one out. The crowd was yelling wildly, Elden Auker was warming up briskly in the Tiger bullpen and it looked as though emergency measures might be necessary. Manager Mickey Cochrane confined himself to a short conference with the General, however, and saw his confidence justified as Stanley Hack grounded to Billy Rogell and into a double play that ended the last Cub hopes.

The American league champions, now leading three games to one, are overwhelming favorites to carry their come-back to baseball's heights for the first time. They have been beaten four times previously by National league opposition. They can end this battle victoriously tomorrow, if Tom-

SILENCES BIG GUNS OF CUBS

Alvin Crowder, veteran Detroit right-hander, was entrusted with the starting assignment in the fourth game of the world series yesterday and responded nobly, holding the Cubs to five hits and winning, 2 to 1. Gabby Hartnett's home run was the only damaging blow off Crowder. The victory gave the Tigers a 3-1 lead in the series.

Crowder's Victory Cheers His Wife, Ill In Hospital

Tiger Players Think It'll End
Today; Grimm Still Hopeful

By Charles Dunkley
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—In a hospital in Winston-Salem, N. C., far from the hue and cry of world series battle, Mrs. Ruth Crowder will be getting much better tonight because her husband, Alvin Crowder, won himself a ball game today.

He came into the Tigers' dressing room, after he had held the Cubs to five hits, beating them, 2 to 1, for his first world series victory in four attempts. And he was so choked up about it, this 34-year-old veteran down near the end of his career, that he almost cried.

His teammates clustered around him, shaking his hand, shouting, slapping his back, and he blinked rapidly, grinned all the time, but he couldn't talk. One of them knew why in all the years "the General" has been pitching important baseball he never showed emotion like this.

And so the teammate explained. "His wife is in the hospital in Winston-Salem, and she's been very sick. The doctor told him that if he won his game, it would help her a great deal to get well. Hell, I'd like to see the guy bust right out crying. He'd feel better and nobody'd mind."

All around the half-dazed Crowder in the swirling hilarous room were the rest of the Tigers, clumped together, getting ready right now to spend the lion's share of the world series money. Already they can feel it jingling in their pockets—that is all but Mickey Cochrane, a bulldog of a man who believes nothing until after it has happened.

Cochrane pulled off his leather shin guards, plopped himself down wearily in his chair. He looked as if he hadn't been to bed for three days. He is a nervous, high-strung, driving ball player who can't relax until an objective is attained.

MANY FUMBLES MARK VICTORY OF PLAINSMEN

Field Goal Gives Alabamans
Early Lead; Tulane
Outplayed

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A fighting band of Auburn Plainsmen gave Tulane's Green Wave a sound trouncing here today 10 to 0 and broke up what the fans had believed was another conference winner.

It was not a victory of accident. The Plainsmen just outplayed Tulane in each branch of the game. It smashed the famous wave running attack, smothered the air attack and then turned around and pounded the life out of the line.

The Plainsmen took the jump in the first minute of play and stood the 18,000 spectators on their feet and held them there during most of the game. They were a constant threat and Tulane's best efforts looked feeble before the flashy, charging Alabamians.

Billy Hitchcock, brother of the famous Jimmy of other years, took the ball two minutes after the game opened and rushed the ball, literally surrounded by his own men, to the four yard line when the fast Fred Priesser, Tulane end, rushed up from behind, broke through the interference and stopped Hitchcock four yards from a touchdown. On the next play Kilgore fumbled the ball and Captain Barney Mintz recovered it on the one yard line.

Apparently that was the cue for the game as Auburn had the ball three other times around the ten yard line and couldn't carry it over. Twice Tulane did likewise but lacked the push to cross the goal.

In the second quarter, Auburn despaired of carrying the ball over and from the 27 yard line, Haygood Patterson, of Montgomery, left tackle, kicked a field goal from an angle, making the score three to nothing one minute before the half ended.

After the half Tulane came out with fire in their eyes and opened a vicious, power attack through the line. Mintz and John Andrews, substitute fullback, carried the ball in alternate line plunges down the field, driving for a touchdown. But on the four yard line, Douglas Johnson, left halfback, missed first down and the ball went over.

The fourth quarter may be called the quarter of fumbles, nine against Tulane and six against Auburn. Both teams dropped the ball on kicks and passes and from hard tackling but Auburn broke through the scramble and scored a touchdown.

Dick Watson, substitute for Johnson, fumbled a lateral from Andrews on Tulane's 32 yard line and Wesley Loftin, of Athens, Ga., Auburn guard, cubbing for McCroskey, recovered. Joe Bob Mitchell, Alexandria, City, Ala., subbing for Hitchcock, stepped back to Tulane's 40 yard line and hurled a high pass to Joe Eaves, subbing for Morris at right end, who was standing in the end zone. He caught the ball as a Tulane man was running frantically to guard him. Patterson, left tackle, kicked the extra point and the scoring was over.

Tulane made a desperate effort in the last half of the fourth but the game ended with the ball in mid-field.

The Tulane stands stood stunned. They had believed to the end that Tulane would pull some spectacular plays and win the game but the Plainsmen rode the Wave down to the bottom of the sea.

WINFIELD DEFEATS RUSTON ELEVEN, 13-6

RUSTON, La., Oct. 5.—(Special)—Featuring a running and passing attack built around Tucker, halfback, the Winfield eleven subdued the Ruston team, 13 to 6, here Friday.

Tucker, dash man from the home of the Winfield Tigers, proved to be the thorn in the side of the local eleven with his sweeping end runs and fake reverses.

The Ruston men, with Reagan and Patterson alternating in carrying the pigskin, advanced the ball to the fifteen yard line at the end of the first quarter and then in the second period Jones, halfback of Ruston, plunged over center on the second play for the first score of the game. Camp failed to convert the extra point.

The Tigers then set to work with a vengeance and with Tucker taking care of the ball-toting honors with his end runs, put over a score near the end of the second quarter. Walsh converted the all-important point to put the Winfield eleven in the lead by one point. Late in the third quarter Winfield ran over their second marker to put the game "on ice."

SPORTS Chatter

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

FADING HOPES
That peculiar noise you hear this morning is coming from your next door neighbor, who's poring over the details of his favorite team's defeat Saturday afternoon. It sounds like a drowning man gulping his last mouthful of water before going down for the third time.

It was all so unexpected. Didn't Bill Whoozle tell him only last Thursday that Ted Cox told Bill's cousin on his mother's side that Tulane had another Rose Bowl team? And didn't the sports editor of the Blankville Bugle pick Tennessee to win the Southeastern championship? And didn't Tuss McLaughry himself tell the newshounds that he had a great team at Brown? What right has Rhode Island to cross Mr. McLaughry like that?

Yea, brethren, it's a cruel world. Imagine a team called the Ft. Hays Teachers beating Kansas State, last year's Big Six conference champion! The little fellows are rising up and smiting their big brothers with reckless abandon. Before long a coach won't know where to look for a set-up.

Anyway, it's good for football, just like the Cubs' victory in the National league stimulated interest in baseball. Even if your would-be champions were knocked off, you must admit that it adds spice to the game and tends to scramble the dope, thus creating renewed enthusiasm, and incidentally, speeding up the clicking turnstiles.

And, who knows, maybe somebody from one of these little colleges will make one of the all-America teams this year. They can't keep knocking off the big fellows without gaining recognition some day.

VOCALIZING AT THE UMP'S
The Cubs, apparently attempting to emulate the Cardinals of 1934, got tough with the Tigers and the umpires right off the bat in the current fight for world baseball supremacy, and they're coming off a poor second in the battle of words.

The Cubs are leading 3 to 1. Bill Lee, a freshman in the majors, is Dean and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 in St. Louis.

UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Ray Hapes, sophomore halfback, ran 98 yards in the third quarter here this afternoon for the touchdown that broke the back of the Southwestern university defense in a game which gave Ole Miss its third straight victory, score 33 to 0.

Ray and his 235-pound brother, Clarence, gave the Memphis Lynx their greatest trouble after Rab Rodgers was hurt in the first quarter. Clarence followed Ray's sensational run with a 40-yard pass for another score.

Repeated thrusts through the line for first downs by Bernard, Peters and Rodgers came to naught after the Southwestern line held at the crucial moments, and Bernard's efforts to pass met with failure. In the second Mayes fumbled a punt on the southwestern 11 and Ole Miss recovered. After gains through the line by Bernard, Peters went around left end for a score.

Ray Hapes circled ends for repeated gains in the third quarter to put the ball in scoring position, and his brother bucked it over. Then followed Ray's 98-yard run down the middle of the field and Clarence's 40-yard pass for the fourth corner.

Robert Kincaid intercepted Morton's pass on the Southwestern 42 in the fourth period and ran for touchdown.

Southwestern's only show of strength came late in the second when the pass combination, Nicholls to Owens, worked twice for long gains, and late in the final quarter when Nicholls interrupted Grissom's pass on the Southwestern 20-yard line and was downed from behind by Grissom on the Ole Miss 8.

TARHEELS CRUSH TENNESSEE VOLTS BY 38-13 SCORE

North Carolina Displays Brilliant Running Attack
To Win

By Roy E. Hutchens
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—A mighty North Carolina team, displaying a brilliant running and passing attack and taking full advantage of numerous intercepted passes, rushed over five touchdowns and kicked a field goal to humble the highly-rated Tennessee Volunteers, 38 to 13, here today before 15,000 spectators.

The Vols, among the kingpins of the Southeastern conference the last seven years, were completely routed by the fighting, driving Tar Heels, members of the Southern conference. It was the worst defeat handed a Tennessee eleven since 1925 when the present system of football was introduced by former Coach Bob Neyland and taken over here by Bill Britton, former assistant to Neyland.

Led by Jackson, halfback, and Hutchins, fullback, the North Carolina team drove relentlessly from the opening whistle to the end of the game. A charging line swept the Volunteers off their feet on their offensive attempts. The Volunteers took

L. S. U. COMES FROM BEHIND TO BEAT TEXAS, 18-6

TIGERS RALLY IN FOURTH QUARTER TO TRIM STEERS

Reed, Crass And Fatherree Lead Attack In Bengal Triumph

TIGER STADIUM, BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 5.—(P)—Yielding the lead at the start, but gathering strength as the game went on, Louisiana State university's versatile and powerful football machine trounced the University of Texas tonight 18 to 6.

It was a victory of a better team over one that fought to the last ditch for every inch of ground that in the end it had to surrender. The Longhorns scored a touchdown in the first period, but offered little thereafter. L. S. U. also scored in the first, and rang up two more in the last period.

Texas owed its tally to a brilliant 85-yard slithering run by Hadlock, a mercury footed substitute for Juracka, who broke loose and was caught on the Louisiana five-yard line by Reed who downed him from behind.

Pitzer went off right tackle over the goal to put the Texans in front. Striking back swiftly, the Louisiana jammers jammed the Lone Star defenders against their goal line after Reed recovered a fumble on their 35. Crass, piledriver Louisiana State fullback, ripped over to score from the one-yard line.

There was no more scoring until nearly the middle of the last quarter. The Tigers of state showing better play in all departments, shoved the Longhorns into the latter's territory and generally kept them there, but the heroic line play of the visitors kept the home team from hitting pay dirt, and it looked like a possible tie game.

Then the superior power and reserve strength of L. S. U. began to tell, and the state backs began to locate holes and go through them. L. S. U. drove from the Texas 44 to first down on the 10, with Crass and Reed ploughing, ripping and running.

Texas held there, however, and punted. Sweeping in the kick, on the Longhorn 48, Reed, stocky and elusive speedster, edged and wormed his way to the goal to give Louisiana a substantial lead of 12 to 6.

Several plays later he nearly did the same thing, running 63 yards on another punt return to the Texas 5. Fighting desperately, the Longhorns held for downs, and punted.

Determined to add another touchdown, Louisiana State hammered back viciously. A quick kick by Crass put the Texans back on their 4-yard line, and Johnston, hurried as he tried to punt by the rush of Tinsley, Louisiana's crack end, got off a hasty pass that Fatherree intercepted and raced 32 yards for a touchdown.

There was little more to the game after that. L. S. U. sent in sophomore reserves, and these held the wearying Texans in midfield.

Coach Jack Chevigny showed a smart, alert team, well coached in line play, and with two ace speed dispensers in Hadlock and Juracka, and a sterling booter in Pitzer. The Texans couldn't get their running attack clicking against the powerful

Four Strong Teams Eaten As Record Crowds See Games

Alabama Whips Colonials, 39-0

Crimson Tide Takes It Out On George Washington In Easy Win

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Loosing all the fury that has been bottled up since its surprise tie with little Howard college a week ago, Alabama's

Clifford Johnson, Monroe boy who starred at Ouachita Parish High school, played a full quarter of the game at Washington yesterday, according to word received here by his parents. Johnson is a sophomore at Alabama and is considered one of the brightest prospects on the squad.

Crimson Tide came roaring back to the football heights today with a relentless attack that crushed George Washington university 39 to 0.

The Crimson lost no time in taking out their wrath on the unfortunate Colonials, scoring twice in the first period and then tagging on four more touchdowns before 30,000 spectators, the largest crowd that has attended a football game here in recent years.

So potent was Alabama's attack and so stubborn its defense that the Colonials had few opportunities and could not so much as make a first down until the game was almost finished.

Alphonse (Tuffy) Leemans, a star in the Colonial backfield for three years, was so completely smothered by the swarming Crimson that he failed to make a single dangerous gesture. The Colonials never threatened and seldom got past midfield.

The Rose Bowl victors sounded their battle cry early, driving 92 yards for their first touchdown, after apparently having been put in a precarious spot by Leemans's 55-yard kick that stopped on Alabama's eight.

Alabama made 23 first downs to George Washington's one. The lineups:

LAFFOON LEADS AT INDIANAPOLIS

Chicago Pro Has 141 For 36 Holes; Winnie Cole Eliminated

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Ky Laffoon, brilliant Chicago golfer, ripped par into ribbons here today with a 68 round over a par 70 course to take the lead in the Indianapolis $5,000 open tournament at the half-way mark of the 72 holes event.

He made one mistake in the 18 holes, getting into a trap on the 17th but ran down three ten foot putts to complete the trip two under par and hang up a total score of 141 for 36 holes.

The tournament will be completed in two rounds tomorrow. So hot was the pace that four British Ryder cup players, including Alfred Perry, the country's open champion, were eliminated.

Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, the United States open champion; Henry Picard, Johnny Revolta, Craig Wood, Gene Sarazen and Paul Runyan, American Ryder cup players, survived along with their teammate Laffoon.

Two strokes behind Laffoon is Al Espinosa, of Akron, Ohio, with 143, while Chandler Harper, Norfolk, Va., and Denny Shute of Chicago, trailed three strokes in the rear.

R. Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis; Bob MacDonald, Chicago; Alfred Padgham of England; Teal Johnson of Winter Haven, Fla., and Ray Mangrum of Pittsburgh, were next in line, each with 145 strokes for 36 holes.

Johnson, who set the pace in the first round with a 69, could not find the grooves today and finished with a 76 to get his 145.

KELLY-METHENY MATCH TOPS STADIUM PROGRAM

'GRUDGE' MATCH BOOKED AS MAIN EVENT THURSDAY

Tommy Marvin Signed For
Semi-Final Of All-Star
Mat Card

An all-star show, headed by a re-shorn match between Ernest Kelly and Metheny, rugged 220-pound Mississippians, has been booked for the weekly program at Roanoke stadium. Promoter Charlie Bruscatto announced last night. The show will be held on Thursday night to avoid conflict with the circus which is playing Monroe on Wednesday night. In addition to the Kelly-Metheny match, Bruscatto has booked Tommy Marvin, well known Indian grappler, for the semi-final and is looking for a suitable opponent for him.

Bruscatto also announced that the 21-year-old admission will remain at 40 cents, despite the fact that the show is costing him more than the usual amount at the stadium. Bruscatto tried to reduce the price last week but a large crowd turned out. No passes will be honored Thursday night, however.

Kelly and Metheny wrestled at the stadium a week and a half ago and Kelly won when Metheny was disqualified for rough tactics. However, Kelly came out on the short end of the affair, for he wound up in a local hospital with several stitches in his head.

After each had won a fall, the two rolled to the side and started slugging away at each other. They finally climbed back on the ledge around the ring and Metheny then sent Kelly spinning toward a corner post. Kelly hit with a thud and a four-inch gash was cut in the top of his head, knocking him out.

Kelly was carried to the dressing room and first-aid treatment was rendered by two physicians. When he recovered enough to dress, Kelly met Metheny in Hank's dressing room and the two started their fist fight anew, only to be stopped by Bruscatto and several others who were in the dressing room at the time. Kelly then went to the hospital, where the wound under his curly locks was sewed up.

Kelly has vowed that he will discard all science when he meets Metheny again. He claims he'll go out fighting and pound Metheny into submission in quick time. Kelly usually wrestles cleanly, but Thursday night no holds will be barred and the winner will take both men's purses.

Bruscatto said last night that Metheny had signed a contract and the promoter guarantees Hank will be on hand. Metheny is bent on dealing out another thrashing to the Tennesseean, Bruscatto said.

"If you insist that I meet Kelly again, I'll have to do it," Bruscatto said Metheny told him. "He asked for it, and I'll let him have it. I hope to be able to finish his career for him Thursday night. He'll need more than two doctors."

Kelly is equally bold in his statements. The fair-haired boy says he's always wrestled on the up and up, but Thursday night he's going to maim Mr. Metheny if possible. "It ought to be a gory affair, if they live up to their boasts."

Bruscatto said he is attempting to book the best opponent available for Marvin in an effort to make the Thursday card the best presented here in many months.

Quachita Preparing For Hard Tilt With Tallulah

Haynes Gives Lions Pair Of Strenuous Week-End
Workouts

The Tallulah high school Trojans, Class B football champions of the state for the past three years, led by Coach "Ma" Phillips, will be in Monroe Thursday night to give Coach "Lefty" Haynes' Quachita parish high school eleven its first real test of the season.

Anticipating a hard fight, Coach Haynes is wasting no time whipping his Lion aggregation into shape for the battle. Friday, following the local's one-sided victory over Columbia's Crimson Tide, Coach Haynes sent his boys through a strenuous two-hour workout and then repeated the same dose yesterday.

The Lions bore up well under the hard drills and appeared to be in good shape. Rudy Vandenberg, center, and Harvey Gregg, quarterback, who have been on the ailing roster for the past few days, are back in the harness and should be able to play against the Trojans. Only one player, Rudy Painich, a halfback who was hurt in the season's opener, is still on the sick list.

While the Lions have been warming up with Class B aggregations, the Trojans have been tackling Class A combinations and have made impressive showings against their opposition.

Both teams have played three games each with Quachita winning all of theirs and the Trojans losing one of theirs. But Tallulah's defeat was by Bolton of Alexandria, one of the strongest Class A teams in this part of the state, and they only beat the Trojans by one touchdown.

Results of games played by the Lions and Trojans thus far this year are: Quachita beat Crossett, Ark., 24 to 0; defeated Delhi, 26 to 0; and trounced Columbia, 33 to 0. Tallulah lost to Bolton, 6 to 0; beat Uca, Miss., 14 to 0; and walloped Farmville, 33 to 0.

Quachita barely beat Tallulah, 13 to 0, last season and Coach "Ma" Phillips' boys will be seeking to avenge that defeat.

"Tallulah has been looking forward to upsetting Quachita ever since that defeat," Coach Haynes said, "but we will be all ready to greet them with a new set of plays, which, added to the ones we have, should give the Class B champions plenty of trouble."

Quachita will probably have the edge where lines are concerned but Tallulah will no doubt have a better backfield, at least one with more experienced men.

The Quachita line composed of Jack Warren, John Renwick and Earl Cobb, ends, F. C. Eason and Billy Trinkle, tackles; Wheeler Mitchell and Mike Peters, guards; and Ruby Vandenberg and Joe Butler, centers, is a veteran combination with the exception of Peters, who is serving his first year as a regular. The Trojans have an excellent line, too, with Scurlia, end, one of the best in high school circles.

With Morton, Cagnoliatti and Coad presenting the chief backfield threat of the invaders, Quachita can expect plenty of trouble from this trio. However, if Sol Mayer, Lion halfback who has been exceeding expectations this season, continues his stellar performance, and he probably will, Quachita may prove equal to any threat by the visitors.

Coach Haynes will continue the hard Lion drills this week and it will not be before Wednesday that he will let up and give his charges a breathing spell.

Quachita fans are all pepped up over the impending clash with the Class B title holders and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to witness the tussle. The game will be played under the lights at Northeast Center of L. S. U.'s stadium.

BENGALS EASILY OUTCLASS WEST CARROLL ELEVEN

Brown Uses Entire Squad In Chalking Up Lop-Sided
Victory

Sweeping through their opposition at will, the Tigers of Neville high school smothered the Oak Grove high school Tigers, 38 to 0, in a game that was all Neville under the lights at Brown stadium last night.

Brown used practically three times as many players as the Oak Grove team, which was unable to do anything about it.

Oak Grove was the lightest team Neville has met this year and for the first time of the season the locals outwitted their opponents. But weight had little to do with the turn of battle. It was simply that Neville was by far the strongest, most experienced team and Oak Grove could do nothing but hold the long runs of Basco, Haddad, Bell and Davis, as well as possible.

Neville's first team started the game and played the entire first quarter, scoring two touchdowns and piling up five first downs. Oak Grove had possession of the ball only twice during the quarter, lost it twice deep in their own territory by fumbles and kicked as soon as they got it the third time as the period was ending.

The Tiger second team played the second quarter, battling Oak Grove on even terms with the invaders getting their first two first downs and Neville making two more. But the regulars took charge again at the half and away they went down the field with the invading Tigers willing before their attack.

Three more touchdowns and five more first downs in the third quarter had the game won by a comfortable margin, so in the second quarter again to be followed by the third stringers and then the lowest of the lowly scrubs. The reserves held out until late in the final period when the regulars returned to top off the skirmish with another touchdown.

Of the five touchdowns scored by Neville, two of them were by the overhand route.

Neville marched straight down the field from their 30 yard line for the first touchdown, which was made by Pete Haddad, quarterback, on a wide right end run from Oak Grove's five yard line.

The second touchdown followed immediately after Cecil Smith, Oak Grove halfback, fumbled on his own 25-yard stripe and Haddad recovered for the locals. Five successive plays by Basco, Haddad and Davis worked the ball to Oak Grove's one foot line and Davis hit the middle for the tally. Davis' kick for the extra point was good as it was following the first touchdown. Later Barnes of North Carolina intercepted Harp's lateral pass on the Vol's 25, and two passes. Jackson to Buck, placed the ball near the edge of Tennessee's goal line. Hutchins plunged over for the Tar Heels' second touchdown.

Hutchins and Bershak, end, intercepted two Tennessee passes in the third quarter, but the Tar Heels failed to capitalize on them.

In the final quarter, Jackson shot a 15-yard pass through center to Buck, who leaped high, juggled the ball, and caught it over the goal line for another North Carolina score. A few minutes later a pass from Dickens, Vol halfback, was intercepted by Snyder, quarterback, who returned to Tennessee's 25-yard stripe. From there Hutchins passed over the goal line to Jackson for a touchdown. Near the close Derryberry, Tennessee reserve back, passed 33 yards to Eben, substitute fullback, who raced 15 yards for the Vol's second score. Burnette's 85-yard swishing dash down the field before the whistle brought the exciting game to a close.

VIDALIA, NATCHEZ END SEASON TODAY

VIDALIA, La., Oct. 5.—(Special)—The final baseball game of the season for Manager Mike Ohlson's Vidalia Tigers will be played in Natchez Sunday afternoon with the Natchez Indians and local and parish fans expected to see a bitter battle of bats to end the season. Last Sunday Vidalia went on the warpath and beat the tribe 15 to 5. Natchez has added strength and expects to even the score Sunday.

to the air, but nine of their passes were intercepted, several of them leading to touchdowns for the visitors.

North Carolina scored a field goal and touchdown in the first quarter, a touchdown in the second, and then rushed over three in the final period, one of which was an 85-yard dazzling run by Burnette, substitute fullback, on a kick-off.

Tennessee scored touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters. North Carolina took an early lead on an intercepted pass from Dickens, the Vols' ace halfback, on North Carolina's 31 yard line. On line plays the Tar Heels drove to the Vols' 19-yard stripe where Daniel, center, booted the ball over the goal post for a field goal.

A few minutes later Barnes, North Carolina end, blocked Captain Palmer's punt and recovered the ball on Tennessee's 25-yard line. A pass and line plays carried the ball to Tennessee's one-yard line where Jackson leaped over for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Harp, red-haired Tennessee sophomore, passed 26 yards to Ditmore, reserve end, who raced 35 yards for Tennessee's first touchdown. Later Barnes of North Carolina intercepted Harp's lateral pass on the Vol's 25, and two passes. Jackson to Buck, placed the ball near the edge of Tennessee's goal line. Mattinson all shared in the ground gaining acts for Neville, while it was the Butler brothers who shouldered Oak Grove's burden. Without the Butler boys Oak Grove would have been farther at sea than they were.

Neville's line did everything it was supposed to do, the game being just a workout for them as they showed their lighter opponents about at will. The lineups:

Markets--Financial INDUSTRIAL---REVIEW OF THE TWIN CITIES

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Net losses ranging from 1 to 4 points were marked up against cotton futures on the market here today in the week-end session.

Hedge pressure offset light trade buying, accounting for the small decline in prices.

The volume of business was light and prices held in a narrow range, but the major influence appeared to be on the downside.

December closed at 10.82, March at 11.02, May at 11.05 and July at 11.06.

There was little change in the aspects of the Ethiopian situation to induce more foreign buying and the majority of the purchases today were for domestic trade accounts.

The customary week-end realizing and evening up of commitments were excellent with buyers taking cotton as fast as it is offered.

Exports today were 10,165 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady at net declines of 1 to 4 points.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Various so-called "war babies" cut a few more teeth in today's brief stock market session and helped to give the list another upward tilt.

Gains of fractions to a point or so predominated at the firm close. Transfers approximated 800,000 shares.

The activity was considerably ahead of last Saturday's proceedings, with the metals, motors, aircrafts and specialties leading the buying demand. Several of the rails and utilities edged forward, but with no great show of buoyancy.

The war picture was still scanned with a little misgiving here and there, although, for the most part, hopes were still high that a general conflagration would be avoided and that peace would be arranged soon.

Wheat and corn pushed ahead briskly at Chicago while cotton was inclined to rest on its oars. Bonds improved with equities. Leading foreign exchanges also displayed rallying tendencies.

Among the livelier share gainers were United States Smelting, American Smelting, Kennecott, Anaconda, Cerro de Pasco, International Nickel, General Motors, Chrysler, Briggs Manufacturing, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Boeing Hercules Powder, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, Owens-Illinois, Westinghouse, American Telephone and Telegraph, General Western Union, Union Pacific, Louisville & Nashville, Schenley and National Distillers. A number of new highs for the year were recorded.

Another advance in export cotton prices to above the 9-cent domestic level, the highest in 4 years, was attributed mainly to immediate war needs and expectations of broadening military preparations by those countries that have thus far not taken active sides in the present controversy.

ALL 1935 SCHEDULES

IN FOOTBALL BOOKLET

It may seem a far cry from the manufacture and merchandising of automobile tires to the gridiron where football teams clash every week from coast to coast. But tire men, as well as automotive, have always been interested in the football fan throngs; they comprise a large section of the tire buying public, the great majority own automobiles, use tires.

All this by way of introducing the fact that the B. F. Goodrich company, Akron, Ohio, is now distributing through many of its dealers one of the most thorough and detailed football schedule booklets ever compiled. It covers 198 prominent college teams from coast to coast, gives complete 1935 schedules and 1934 results.

The 1934 All-America selections are listed, together with tables showing the magnitude of football, leading national and sectional teams from 1920 through 1934, a glossary of football terms, an illustrated code of gridiron signals, diagram of a football field, scoring table, and principal football formations. All the material is carefully indexed.

BETTER BUSINESS SEEN IN NATION

Fenner And Beane's Survey Reveals Decided Economic Improvement

A country much better off than a year ago, yet at this time unwilling to allow the New Deal full credit for the improvement, is revealed by the fourth business survey conducted by Fenner & Beane, leading brokerage and commodity house, and released yesterday.

Tabulations of reports returned show that America is obviously in the process of steady recovery. Manufacturing the survey indicates, has shown distinct improvement which varies from 5 per cent to 21 per cent in different sections of the country. Heavy industry has shown a somewhat larger recovery, now standing at levels ranging from 8 per cent to 30 per cent above last year. Bankers, the survey shows, are willing to loan money to responsible borrowers and credit is ready to flow into commerce and industry when needed. Employment in the sections reviewed has been stepped up anywhere from 10 per cent to 25 per cent, while retail trade has been showing gratifying improvement, now ranging from 13 per cent to 21 per cent above last year. Installment sales, particularly, have been highly active on the upside, moving ahead anywhere from 12 per cent to 25 per cent above a year ago, according to the Fenner & Beane survey.

Farm income, the survey shows, has gained about 18 per cent over the past year. Credit for this improved situation is generally divided between the AAA benefits, on the one hand, and higher prices for agricultural products on the other, with prices being given the advantage of any doubt in any case the country sees the economic condition of the farmer as somewhat better than "fair," with 1935

SUPPLY OF CHRISTMAS SEALS RECEIVED HERE

The first supply of 1935 Christmas seals, which go on sale throughout the nation on Thanksgiving day, have been received here by the Ouchita Tuberculosis and Public Health association.

The new seals, which portray a girl of the 1860's in colonial dress posing a letter in a corner mailbox, was designed by Ernest Hamlin Baker, noted Carmel, N. Y., artist. Miss Virginia McMullen, of New York, posed for the design.

The seals are being distributed among some 2,000 tuberculosis and public health associations throughout the nation and from the sale of these seals will come a large part of the funds required annually in the fight to curb tuberculosis, which claims thousands of lives each year.

From Thanksgiving until Christmas the seals will be available and the by-word is "seal each letter with a seal."

ADVISES EXTERMINATION OF PEACH TREE BORERS

Now is the time to use chemicals for the extermination of the peach tree borer, a worm that is second only to the San Jose scale in the extent of damage it causes. E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, said yesterday afternoon.

The chemical popularly used in exterminating the borers is commonly known as paradiethylbenzene. Mr. Strahan said the chemical should be placed around the base of peach trees three years old or older, and covered with dirt for 28 days.

Changing into a gas, the chemical exterminates the young worms which were hatched at the base of the tree in August.

SCHNEIDER NAMED ON L. S. U. COUNCIL

Lake Providence Man Represents Local Area On Alumni Board

BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 5.—(Special)—F. H. Schneider of Lake Providence, prominent business man and alumnus of the Louisiana State university, has been elected to represent the fifth congressional district on the L. S. U. alumni council for the 1935-36 term. It is announced by Ray Mobley, executive secretary of the alumni federation, following the tabulation of votes mailed from the fifth congressional district to the central alumni office at the university this week.

Schneider was graduated from the university in 1896. He represented the fifth district on the council in 1933-34, having been superseded in last year's election by D. Y. Smith of Sterling. Other district representatives elected in the mail balloting are: First district, Cyril Moresi, New Orleans; second, Clarence Yancey, New Orleans; third, Roland B. Howell, Thibodaux; fourth, J. Stewart Slack, Shreveport; sixth, T. T. Dunn, Bogalusa; seventh, S. W. Plaque, Lake Charles; eighth, O. E. Laborde, Jr., Marksville.

Terms of district representatives are for the year following election, and induction into office is coincident with publication of results. Formal ceremonies of installation are not held, except at the volition of individual groups.

Members of the council at large, elected at the annual spring business session at the university, are Miss Bessie Colomb, New Orleans; John M. Dupont, Thibodaux, and Alfred C. Glassell, Jr., Shreveport.

The next meeting of the council will be held at the university in November, at the call of Mrs. Malcolm Dougherty of Lindsay, federation president.

OIL TEST TOPS OOLITIC LIME

Ouachita Formation Checks High; Drillers To Set Six-Inch Casing

Coring at approximately 5,300 feet, in one of the deepest tests for oil that has been drilled in Ouachita parish, the Golsen No. 1 well of the American Liberty Oil company of Dallas, Texas, located in section 25-17-1 east, Ouachita parish, about 16 miles southwest of Monroe, topped the oolitic lime of the Trinity series, and was said to be preparing to set six-inch casing sometime this week.

The well is being drilled on a geophysical high worked out by the Dallas company and local operators declare that formations are checking high.

Considerable interest attaches to the report that the oolitic lime has been cored in this well due to recent developments in the new Rodessa oil field near Shreveport, where this formation resulted in the completion of a 50,000 barrel well last August and the opening of new deep pay in the Trinity horizon.

Since the discovery of the Monroe gas field in 1916, several major oil companies have drilled deep tests but without success, although the wells were drilled to the so-called redbeds. The Golsen well is the first test outside the recognized gas area to penetrate the anhydrites and top the Trinity. Operators are hopeful that the well comes in as a producer, though none would venture a prediction as to the final results.

SMART MODES FOR FALL AND WINTER

Mrs. Edward Seymour's petite type of beauty is accentuated by a blue ensemble of naive simplicity. Her swagger coat is fashioned of navy blue corduroy and her sport type frock is of blue and white check wool with boyish Eton collar. With this costume she wears a mannish hat of blue suede cloth.

Mrs. Joseph Isaacman, noted for her discrimination in the selection of clothes, interprets the new fall mode in a handsome tailleur of gray worsted. Black accessories, a bag of antelope, suede gloves, a satin blouse and close-fitting hat of velour, add a note of distinction.

Miss Leigh Russell, upon her return from Denver where she spent the summer, was seen wearing a smart swagger coat of heavy white silk flecked with black.

Vagabond, Gypsy Longings Are Born Of Early Fall Weather

Migratory Birds Are Winging Way South

Party Of Young Men Are On Week's Voyage; Circus Coming To Town; Cupid Is Busy In City Of Monroe

By Eve Bradford

Under the soft October skies, a lazy, listless languor falls upon the earth. Vagabond and gypsy longings are born again when the wood fire curls through the hazy air. The migrating paths are bordered with banquet halls for passing birds pausing in their flight to the tropics. Dogwood trees are blushing red in old pastures, candleberry bushes are frosted with gray-white clustering berries, fragrant of colonial mothers who lighted their homes with bayberry candles but always left enough for the birds. Nature, remembering, has filled the glorious month of October with food for the soul of man and for the material needs of all forms of animal life.

Wild geese moving south ahead of the Canadian border are now silhouetted nightly against the harvest moon. These mighty voyagers fly with a stately sort of beauty that holds most of us spell-bound. They seem so confident of their course and so sure that they will arrive in time before the frost comes to the hills.

A group of young sportsmen succumbing to the lure of golden October weather, left yesterday on board the Sun Dart the Second, with Travis Oliver, Jr., host. They will wind in and out of the picturesque bayous for one week feasting on birds, fish and other seasonal game, and just lolling on deck in the warm sunshine of these perfect days. In the party, in addition to the host, were Floyd Martin, Earl Stovall, Henry Hinkle, Glenn Walker, and, of course, their faithful cook and guide, old John Whitlow, who has navigated these streams and bayous and bent his shoulders over the task of preparing food for hungry hunters high upon forty years.

The feet of every child in Monroe will be pointed toward the circus grounds on Wednesday. Some will wear sturdy oxfords, while a number, as is always the case, will be unshod. Such is the allure of the circus. Dignified business men, substantial citizens 364 days out of the year will, on October day, suddenly become a nine-year-old. For the remainder of the week he has a mighty difficult time getting separated from the odor of the menagerie that clings around him still. On Wednesday, thousands of men, women and children will walk past the cages where the animals are harried to death by boredom. The sight of an endless procession of paunchy, bespectacled, tittering men and gurgling ladies saying "isn't the monkey just too cute for words?" and screeching, finger-pointing children often sends an animal into a black decline from which it can never extricate itself—at least this is the information we received.

Why experiment when you can have the best, at no extra cost?

Garden Club Meets

The meeting of the Garden club was held at the American Legion home Friday afternoon, with Mrs. T. C. Rowland leading a discussion on wild flowers and shrubs, in the absence of Miss Julia Wossman, who was ill.

Programs for the year were distributed by Mrs. John Beard, Mrs. W. B. Clarke and Mrs. Kate Morrice. They are printed on local kraft paper in a most attractive manner.

The civic committee is planning to do some active work in the near future toward beautification of streets and highways. The club will strive to stimulate the knowledge and love of gardening and protection of native trees, plants, and birds by asking the cooperation of parents and children and teachers in the schools. The encouragement of children in flower growing and appreciation of nature is now accepted as a basic essential to the value and permanence of all future civic undertakings of the garden clubs.

With the tremendous acknowledged benefit, physical, mental and material, to be derived from garden, flower and nature interest, it is difficult to understand why the basic art of gardening has been and still is scarcely touched upon in the schools. All classes of workmen seek and find daily inspiration and profit in flowers, gardens and nature. How much happier and richer are the lives of those who have been taught early in life to see and enjoy the beauties of nature. If every child between the ages of four and fourteen were led into the adventure of garden making, flower growing and nature appreciation, not as a chore, but as an interesting recreation or pastime, there would soon be no such thing as slums, breadlines, promoters of public utilities tearing away our natural resources for selfish gain, and wild flower vandals. It has been found that even the most unruly of boys will turn as naturally to garden and nature interests as the flower turns to the sun. Since we are all nature's children, she is elemental within us. Why go blithely on, allowing our children to live blindly, unaware of these joys and valuable interests that will so enrich their lives? Angel Patri, the well known educational leader says: "By allowing the children to share and work in the garden home, you are bringing creative power to the fore, you are giving the children a chance to complete their ideas of home. The children's garden is a part of their essential education."

Miss Julia Wossman, principal of Barkdull Faulk school, has and is stressing nature and has a wildflower garden at the school. The garden club members can assist the school teachers by opening their gardens to the pupils, with the teacher giving talks and demonstrations. In many schools where there is no time for a course in nature study, teachers are finding that there is a wonderful opportunity for correlating gardens and nature with other subjects, such as geography, history, art, music, gymnasium, and language. A study of garden, flower, tree and weed products from each country fits naturally into geography lesson. Arithmetic problems may be worked from the actual selling of flower seeds from pupils' gardens. The artistic arrangement of flowers and accessories will stimulate interest in any art class. The art teachers, who use shadow boxes in which pupils take turns with arrangements, are reporting most enthusiastically of the pupils' progress in an understanding of color harmony, balance and harmony of forms. Playground associations are finding it of such popular interest and value to follow garden and nature interest that the schools have started continuing them through municipal gardens, nature hikes, and garden games of educational value.

The practical application of this plan is shown in Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where there are between two and three thousand junior gardeners actively engaged in garden, flower and nature interests. There are now more than sixty acres in playground gardens. Each child has its own plot where flower and vegetable seeds are planted.

The Monroe Garden club will have its fall flower show October 29. Classification is to appear in the near future.

Travel To Far Away Places Not Necessary

Gems Of Prose And Poetry Recalled While Viewing Natural Beauty; Vacationists Tell Of Experiences

October, the golden month of the year, is here. Vacations are now just a pleasant memory, dear experiences that we hope will abide with us through all the working days ahead. Not all of us have traveled far or into strange lands, but distance or strange scenes or novelty are not of the essence of vacationists. A half day's travel into the country or beside still waters is far enough. After all, it depends on one's ability to absorb quietude and to indulge the philosophy of silent communion—whether we sing with Isaac Walton, saunter with Thoreau or go afield with Burroughs.

The great need is romantic, spiritual companionship. This poets and the dreamers of the world give us and we should take them along. Of course we should go with you only in memories—books and their makers, in person, must be left behind. The pleasure and the rest they afford us lie in the little treasures of thought they have imparted to us to be stored up. There are great phrases of the poets stamped on our memories that return to us in such vacation moments. The odds and ends of poetry and prose will glide into our sauntering and musings with startling power to "soothe and heal and bless." Perhaps for the first time we may come to realize what Wordsworth really meant when he confessed that for him "the meanest flower that blows has thoughts that lie too deep for tears." Or the healing touch of "those words of his great ode, "The thought of our past years in me do breed perpetual benedictions." Snatches of song, remnants of a verse or the memory of some glorious occasion in our lives, will perhaps be recalled when a full moon fills a summer night with splendor. The swish of waves on a shore has the power to stir memories of a woodpecker tapping some hollow tree will recall Tom Moore's "If there's a peace to be found on this earth it is here."

We step aside from a caterpillar in our path remembering Cowper's "I would not enter on my list of friends, though graced with polished manners and fine sense, the man who needlessly steps foot upon a worm." Who has not instantly recalled the passage from the Bible, "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament his handiwork," when standing alone on some high hill where the beauty of the surrounding country is spread out in glorious panorama? These fragments of prose and verse will perhaps bring you back to your tasks with renewed faith in people and in life itself. Solitary rambles always provokes new chain of thought and helps us to forget the troublesome odd ones.

Two Monroe vacationists, Miss Eleanor Faulk and Miss Carrie Dee Drew, who spent the summer on a dude ranch in Arizona, speak of the "intensity of a western setting that irons out artificialities, soothes jangled nerves and tends to deflate the human ego. All the silly, pompous thoughts city dwellers entertain are reduced to absurd insignificance by the grandeur of the hills, the shadowy forests, the orange camp-fires against dusky tree trunks and miles of sage, like a sea of silver, under a full moon."

Mrs. Walter J. Meyer speaks of the thoughts that come trooping when eyes are lifted to the snow-capped mountains fringing Lake Placid where she spent the summer. All the petty things of life drop from you when you are confronted with the solemnity, the immensity and the awe-inspiring beauty of the mountains.

Miss Beryl Madison, who has twice crossed the Atlantic, finds "a healing touch" in the vast expanse of water. When tossed about by the ocean's depths, she remembers snatches of poetry that "soothe and heal and bless."

Mrs. George Lowery needs only to walk along the quiet countryside or to look from her own window at a flaming sunset to find ends of poetry gliding into her thoughts. The sight of a red-bird winging its way in the cloudless blue has the power to send her into ecstasies of delight. Mrs. Ida Kaplan will never forget the smell of fresh salt air and the sound of the waves dashing on the rock-bound coast of Gloucester where she spent the past summer.

For some, a trail of smoke on a far horizon will awaken a new train of thought; and for others, the cry of a gull, a flash of moonlight, a strain of music, the rustle of brown leaves, the flame of a candle, along autumnal trails, has the power to stir them and to awaken memories.

Fall Is Home Time
The summer, which fixed all eyes on the out-of-doors, is spent. Our horizons may have been the end of the garden where flowers glow, or the open road, or some far away place in a cooler clime. But with the first hint of autumn, our horizon immediately becomes the four walls of our home.

Now that home once again becomes the center of our universe, what is it like? At no time of the year is the family quite so conscious of the interior, as these first fall days. Walls seem to enfold you, floors cry out for new, soft coverings and curtains that seemed so fresh and airy last spring are now bedraggled. In fact, you are getting a closeup of your own home, and what do you see? Exactly what every alert-minded visitor sees in your house—a lot of things that need your attention.

The H. K. Touchstones are happily installed in the R. W. Germany home, which they recently purchased. A low stone wall enclosing the garden adds a distinctive note. The interior has also been transformed to suit the individual taste of the new owners. The location is ideal, with the long avenue of oaks leading to the driveway.

Toy Project Planned

Christmas may seem far away to impatient little children but to the earnest-hearted band of workers who sponsor the toy shop each year, it seems just around the corner. There is work to be done; and to accomplish what they have set out to do they utilize every minute from now until the twenty-fifth of December to the best advantage.

As is always the case, when there is work to be done, a leader is necessary. With this thought in view, Mrs. John Theus and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf have been selected to lead the splendid group of workers all of whom are conscientious, public-spirited men and women who have the unfortunate children of Monroe at heart. One important committee, that which will solicit toys, will be headed by Miss Elizabeth Langford. She will be assisted by Mrs. W. C. Holstein, Captain Whitaker of the Salvation Army and Mr. O. Black.

Others have been appointed as follows: Co-chairmen, Miss Lucille Godwin, Mrs. F. B. Neely.

Publicity, Miss Katie McGee, Miss Bernice Wright.

Building, Mr. S. H. McClary, Rev. W. C. Scott, Mrs. Fagan Cox.

Making new toys, Mrs. G. K. Cranford, Mrs. W. Wales, Mrs. Dorothy Rinehart, ERA craft shop.

Soliciting materials, Mrs. John Theus.

Dressing dolls, Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Chairman volunteer group, Mrs. Lizzie Morris.

Distributors, Miss Rebecca Cassell, Mrs. Fagan Cox, Captain Whitaker.

That gallant company of men members of the Monroe fire department, have volunteered their services again this year and will give all their leisure time to remodeling toys. Under their skillful fingers, toys are transformed. Dolls that suffered an 18-nomious death at the ruthless hands of some child will again smile into the faces of some little girl who yearns for a doll. Broken, cast-off wagons, tin soldiers, roller skates, and all sorts of mechanical toys that are broken and bent and rendered useless will again gladden the hearts of children after they have gone through the rebuilding process.

With Christmas just ten weeks away, workers in the Council of Social Agencies find there is much work to be done. Let every parent in Monroe resolve to assist in this wonderful toy shop project and gather up the broken toys in their home in order that the little unfortunates of Monroe will be happy this year.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Murray Hudson, the building on the corner of Wood and Grand has been given over to the toy shop project.

Miss Elisabeth Platt, Bride-To-Be, Is In Social Spotlight

Vaughan Compliment Lovely Artistic Affair

Home Beautifully Decorated For Event; Keno Is Diversion; Honoree Is Remembered With Rock Crystal Set

Miss Elisabeth Platt selected the ninth of October for her marriage to Mr. John Duluisson and since the announcement was made she has been in the social spotlight.

Mrs. J. B. Vaughan's compliment on Thursday was quite the loveliest and the most artistic event of the early fall season.

Immense silver urns overflowing with pink Columbia roses were grouped in the drawing room and inspired the silver color theme reflected in every detail. The tea table in the dining room presided over by Miss Ann Platt in handsome afternoon model of gold cloth and Miss Jean Dryburgh in silver cloth model, was developed exclusively in crystal and silver. A flat mirror centering the lace covered table reflected an imported, ornamental silver tree and at either side was an exquisite corage, one for Miss Platt's mother, Mrs. J. W. Platt, and one for her aunt, Miss Mollie Tucker. Crystallized baskets filled with sweet meats were served with the coffee and tea poured from handsome silver services.

The guests, upon arrival, were served luscious canapés and cocktails at the small tables where keno was introduced by the hostess and supplied the afternoon's diversion. Attractive gifts, wrapped in silver tissue and tied with silver metallic ribbons, were presented to the winners. Miss Platt's gift from Mrs. Vaughan and her niece, Miss Betty Reilly, was a rock crystal cream and sugar set.

Mrs. Newton Knowles was fortunate in cutting the handsome novelty bowl bordered with crystal blossoms.

Miss Platt was a charming figure on this occasion in a smart brown ensemble with all accessories of the same shade. Invited to share the pleasures with Miss Platt were: Miss Ellen Kent Millsaps, Miss Leigh Russell, Miss Elizabeth Kennedy, Miss Happy Hudson, Miss Margaret Hudson, Miss Ann Platt, Miss Jean Dryburgh, Miss Wanda Tremaine, Mrs. Newton Knowles, Jr., Mrs. Samuel Jones, Mrs. Prentice Clark, Mrs. James Trousdale, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Mrs. Tilden Austin, Mrs. Victor Davis and Mrs. J. W. Platt.

Kelly-Adams

A wedding characterized by lovely simplicity and claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was that of Miss Sara Mae Adams, charming young daughter of Mrs. J. L. Adams and the late Dr. Adams, and Mr. Warren Kelly, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly.

The impressive ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother on Jackson street Saturday afternoon, October the fifth, at four o'clock, with Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends.

Glorious golden-hued chrysanthemums banked the reception suite and the improvised altar, where tall, golden tapers pricked the evening shadows.

Miss Jane Burgess and Miss Doris Davenport, the bride's attendants, wore smart rust-colored afternoon models with brown velvet hats and accessories of brown. They carried picturesque sheaves of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Kelly was attended by Mr. Harrison Jordan, Mr. L. A. Stulce, soloist, rendered, in beautiful voice, "O Promise Me," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Grover Cornett.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. L. Adams, wore a stunning model of gold cloth with brown accessories. A swag coat, with handsome racoon collar, completed the distinctive ensemble. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze-colored chrysanthemums.

An informal reception was held following the ceremony, permitting friends to offer their felicitations.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their future home in Rayville, where Mr. Kelly is a prominent young business man. He is a graduate of Louisiana State university and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Mrs. Kelly, a great favorite in younger social circles, attended Northeast Center of L. S. U. last year.

Winter Fashions Step From Canvases Of Great Painters Of The Renaissance

From the regal days of the Renaissance comes inspiration for this Paris evening wrap and gowns designed by Jodelle. The wrap is of changeable red and black velvet, designed with a big hooded collar, big topped sleeves which are tightly cuffed and a full skirt falling from a slender waistline. It is fastened with a long jeweled buckle set with simulated rubies.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Raphael, Titian, Botticelli, great painters of the Renaissance, are having another inning of world influence—winter fashions for twentieth century moderns.

From colors and fabrics, to hats, frocks and shoes, 1936 clothes have borrowed inspiration from Italian art hundreds of years old.

Fra Angelico blues, soft greyed Madonna blues, rich Palma Vecchio reds, vivid cardinal reds, ecclesiastical purples, Veronese greens, and burnt siennas from the palettes of Renaissance masters are important colors in the winter mode.

The rich black velvets beloved by Renaissance beauties and nobles, jewel toned changeable velvets and brocaded silks make a number of evening frocks, designed with full skirts and low décolletés revealing white shoulders. Other evening gowns fashioned of white chiffon and belted with silver rope look like the robes of Raphael angels; hostess gowns in warm rich hues are cut like the costumes of monks of the middle ages, and evening wraps suggest hooded monk's capes. Gold lame halos or net caps of seed pearls accompany some of the evening costumes.

Evening shoes reflect the Renaissance effect too. The most striking models are pointed toes, sole-less, heel-less satin slippers richly worked in gold thread and sparkling stones.

The Venetian youth has inspired a good number of daytime fashions. His tunic with its flared peplum appears in several wool frocks, his trim belts mark others and his peaked hat with its tall feather now crowns a number of smart feminine heads. Halo hats are another bit of smart headgear inspired by paintings of the middle ages.

The jewels and embroidery which decked the robes of the Medicis and other nobles of the Renaissance play a big role in 1936 fashions. Multi-colored jewels stud belts, long buckles and clips and tiny pearls are embroidered on evening frocks. Bright and sober silk embroideries trim a number of day frocks.

Jodelle repeats the jeweled trim of the Renaissance wrap in this gown of white crepe, richly embroidered at the neckline and waist in gold and imitation rubies, sapphires and emeralds.

Paris Does New Tricks With Furs

WHEN Schiaparelli works in fur, she can be lavish and strikingly different. She uses silver fox to make huge gauntlet gloves extending to the elbow and to form the backward falling collar on this black wool coat. Then she tops the black felt toque with a fox tail sweeping forward like a plume.

By Adelaide Kerr
PARIS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Parisian designers are doing new tricks with furs this year.
She puts fox tails on heads, fox fur on hands, dyes old pelts new shades and uses new ones for novel accents. The result is both smart and amusing.
Fur has "gone to the head" of a number of smart costumes. Besides Schiaparelli's toques, which are accented with a fox tail raking forward like a plume, there are fezzes and chimney toques of black astrakhan trimmed with a new 1936 note, with a cluster of asters or a slim quill, and felts with smart fur touches. To accompany some of them there are gauntlets of silver fox or astrakhan, which reach to the elbow, look like twin muffs and are guaranteed to make one stare.
Staid stand-by furs have been dipped in colored baths this season and have emerged in hues which should be a surprise even to themselves. Foxes are shaded from golden yellow to brown, from soft gray green to bottle green and used to trim wool coats of harmonizing hue, while caracul is dyed dark red or blue and made into hip-length coats.
The season's favorite furs—Persian lamb, astrakhan, breitschwanz, silver fox, Alaska seal, beaver and nutria—are used in new and amusing ways as trimmings.
Persian lamb is everywhere. It makes entire sleeves, small standing military collars, big throat-swathing collars, muffs, frog fastenings, pockets and the plaques of belts. Breitschwanz and beaver make the new buttons and hoods which may be worn either on the head or falling from the back like a cow collar. Foxes trim the decoilets of several evening gowns, contribute lavish swirling trims to afternoon coats and decorate evening wraps.
Long fur evening capes sweep to the floor in costly luxury. One model is made entirely of silver foxes, another of black seal lined in orange satin, a third of ermine. Capes of red foxes, lynx, silver fox, monkey, astrakhan and beaver sweep by during the day.

Tallulah
The quarterly meeting of the women's religious organizations of Tallulah was held recently at the Episcopal church when a program on "Prayer" was rendered. Ministers of the various churches took part. Rev. Skardon D'Aubert gave a number of Bible quotations on meditation and prayer. Rev. H. N. Alexander of the Presbyterian church spoke on "The Need of Prayer" and Rev. L. A. Materne of the Baptist church on "Answer to Prayer." Miss Annette Beers presided at the organ for the assembly singing of several appropriate hymns.
Mrs. A. T. Palmer entertained the members of the Tuesday club at her home, serving a delicious salad course at the conclusion of the bridge games, which concluded with Mrs. A. L. Sevier winning the high score prize and Mrs. J. A. Gilbert the floating prize. Those in attendance were Mesdames B. A. Tate, J. R. Medlin, L. Stevens, A. H. Hurd, J. K. Post, J. A. Gilbert, A. L. Sevier and T. P. Cassidy of Tucson, Arizona.
Mr. R. W. Gandy, who had been a patient in a hospital in Shreveport for over a year, has returned to his home here.
Mr. J. R. Linton, Mrs. A. M. Easley, Miss Rosalyn Kemp and Mrs. C. E. Hester attended the meeting of the panel forum of the state teachers' association recently held in Alexandria.
Superintendent Huey and Elementary Supervisor Rosa Veal of West Carroll parish were visitors to the fair here recently.
Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Speed were called to Jackson, Miss., recently by the death of a relative.
Miss Verther Sevier was hostess to the members of her bridge club recently at her home here. Mrs. Jim Gilfoil won the high score prize and Mrs. B. R. Coad consolation. A tempting salad course was served at the conclusion of the games to the guests: Miss Cary Breckenridge, Mrs. L. Stetist women at the Mangham Baptist church recently. This was in accordance with the custom of the two organizations to entertain alternately. A varied program of vocal and instrumental music was presented. Refreshments were served.

8,000,000 SEE EXHIBITS GIVEN AT SIXTY FAIRS

Better Housing Booths Excite Interest Of Vast Crowds Of People

WASHINGTON, D. C.—More than 8,000,000 people have attended 60 state and county fairs in 46 states since July 1 where booth and exhibit space was devoted to the federal housing administration's program, according to a compilation by the exhibitions unit of the administration. This figure, considered to indicate a widespread interest in better homes and better building, is conservative, it was pointed out, when it is learned that 663 fairs to be held by the end of next spring have definitely arranged for booths and other exhibit space featuring the housing administration's program. The official attendance figure for the 60 fairs held so far was $2,355,503. It is considered of great value in the education of the general public in the advantages to be derived from the national housing act that booths be operated at state and county fairs. The opportunity to give personal explanations of the modernization credit plan and the mutual mortgage insurance plan is believed to be the chief advantage of fair booths.

MIRROR DOORS
Add a full-length mirror door in the entry closet. This will be convenient for those who live in the house as well as for guests.

Water Softener Sales Increase Hits New High

Sales of water-softening equipment for use in the home have increased each month for the first seven months of 1935, and reached a peak in June of 147 per cent greater than the same period for 1934, according to reports to the Federal Housing Administration. The Modernization Credit Plan, the reports state, has proved an important factor in this result.

Automatic home water softeners are a comparatively new addition to the list of labor-saving devices. With a few exceptions hard water is a problem in most of the thickly populated states and larger cities where the annual waste from damage to water pipes alone is said to reach a huge figure. Hard water is one of the chief causes of scale in pipes and resulting stoppage of water flow. Water that is too hard also makes quick inroads on clothes and linens, on kitchen utensils, water heaters, and boilers.

Soft water, which makes a creamy, rich lather, is a beauty treatment well known for its beneficial effect on the complexion. It is also used widely for shampooing as it prevents stringy soap curds from sticking in the hair and does not destroy luster. As an aid to shaving, the water softening equipment commands the interest of the men in the family.

Water-softening equipment makes for great savings in soap bills and prevents clothes from wearing out so quickly, as the real wear in most laundry operations comes from the soap curds that will not wash out of fabrics in hard water.

The modern type of electric automatic home water softener can now be installed under the Federal Housing Administration Credit Plan at costs comparable with such labor-saving devices as oil burners and automatic refrigerators. The softener includes two units, one is the softener itself in which the water passes through a bed of minerals leaving calcium and magnesium behind; the other is a reservoir containing a solution of common salt which regenerates and invigorates the minerals of the softening tank from time to time.

DECORATIVE PLASTER
If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, investigate the possibilities of decorative plaster over mantels.

Often a picture over the fireplace will overbalance the wall. An attractive design in relief left the same color as the remainder of the walls, will add interest to the space above the fireplace, but will not overemphasize it.

Many attractive designs are executed for this purpose. Among the interesting subjects used in a modern room was a relief map of the state in which the house was located.

MODERNIZE TO FIGHT FIRE IS THEME OF PLAN

Housing Body Cooperating In Program To Educate The Public

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The full force of the widespread organization of the federal housing administration is being marshaled to lend support to the national fire prevention program, following announcement by Administrator Stewart McDonald that modernization and careful planning of new buildings materially decreases fire hazard.

State and regional directors and local better housing committee chairmen have been informed of the housing administration's accord with this observance and special celebrations whereby the relation of modernization and repair to fire prevention may be shown to the public as being planned in hundreds of communities.

Administrator McDonald's announcement of federal housing administration cooperation with National Fire Prevention week celebrations followed invitations extended the administration by Terence F. Cunnane, secretary of the national fire waste council; T. Alfred Fleming, chairman of the international committee for fire prevention week; and representatives of other organizations of similar character. Industrial groups, represented by advisors at housing administration headquarters in Washington, have also indicated that they will cooperate with the housing administration in conducting educational work throughout the nation to impress the public with the advantages to be derived from modernizing to reduce the ever-present fire menace.

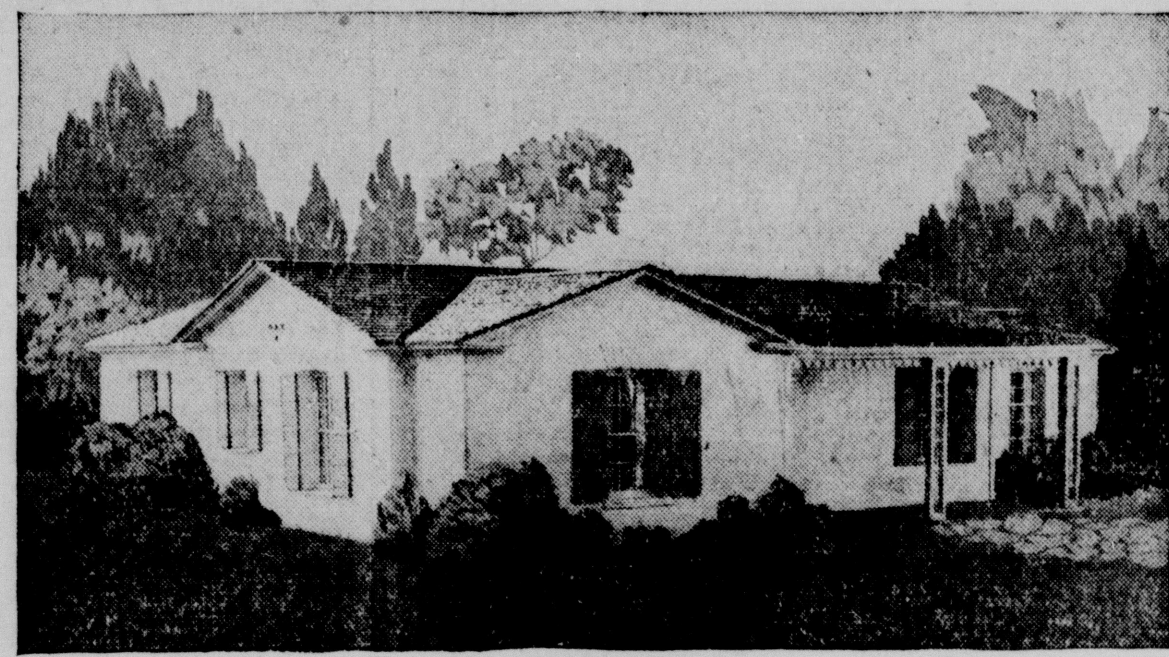

A booklet is being prepared by the housing administration which will outline the relationship of modernization and repair to fire prevention. This booklet will be off the press within the next several days, and copies will be made available to interested groups or individuals. Extensive radio motion-picture, and newspaper educational programs are in progress of formation with special celebrations and programs to be held in virtually every state in the Union.

OFFICE WAITING ROOMS
The federal housing administration has received word that in many cities business men are taking advantage of modernization credit insured by the federal housing administration to remodel the waiting rooms for their offices.

It is reported that they find the first impression on the customer of an attractively modernized waiting room has a definite and favorable effect on making sales.

Light, restful wall colors in durable finishes which can be washed, simple moldings, and comfortable built-in furniture are being used. A desk where the client may do some work while waiting for an interview, convenient upholstered window seats, and shelves for books also add to the interest and usefulness of this room.

Appropriate to Southern Climate

The exterior design of the house is particularly attractive and appropriate for southern regions.

The cross-ventilation in every room makes it an especially good plan for use in warm climates.

Built-In Beds Add To Conveniences Of Home

A small bedroom in a house or an apartment may be made more convenient by the addition of a built-in bed. In the household which has several children who bring guests for the week-end, the efficient utilization of small extra rooms or attics for additional guest room space is an important factor. Double-decker built-in beds will greatly aid in the solution of the problem.

The built-in bed may be very attractive if it is properly designed. It should harmonize with the other furnishings in the room. With proper care, the space above, below, and at the end may be utilized. Usually a room is a few feet longer than a bed, even though it be the old sewing room or second floor storage space. This length from the end of the bed to the wall may be used for a closet. A two or three foot hanging space will be sufficient for the normal amount of clothes the overnight or week-end guest will bring. A shelf for shoes set up off the floor and a shelf above for hats should be added.

The space below the bed may be enclosed by doors and be used as a storage space for luggage. On the wall at the head of the bed a shelf for books and a reading lamp may be added.

The double-decker bed may be planned to provide the above spaces, although an additional book shelf and lamp should be added for the upper bed.

If the room is too small to hold a comfortable arm chair, the bed may be used as a couch in the daytime. Large triangular pillows and a spread of a durable material will make this more comfortable.

If no other furniture is available for the extra rooms, a built-in dressing table and bench may be installed at the same time the bed is built. The dressing table may be so designed that one-half of it can be used as a writing desk.

HOMES BENEFITED BY 'OVER-ROOFING'
Homes that are growing old, and are badly in need of remodeling can be vastly improved in appearance, sales value, and added insulation from heat and cold, by directly over-roofing the old roof with new shingles. In re-roofing, labor and expense of removing the old roof is eliminated. The ease of applying the new shingles is materially increased and of great importance is the fact that there will be no litter falling on shrubbery which will frequently injure, costly planting beyond recovery. During the process of re-roofing, the interior of the house is protected from damage by rains for the old roof will act as a protective covering the process. Many types of roofing materials may be satisfactorily applied over old roofs.

The Federal Housing Administration modernization loans for work of this kind.

Copper Executive Says Way Is Pointed To Better Conditions

NEW YORK, N. Y.—With a pretentious building program carefully worked out by the Federal Housing Administration, American industry has a golden opportunity to emerge from the depression, according to Bertram B. Caddie, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research association of New York.

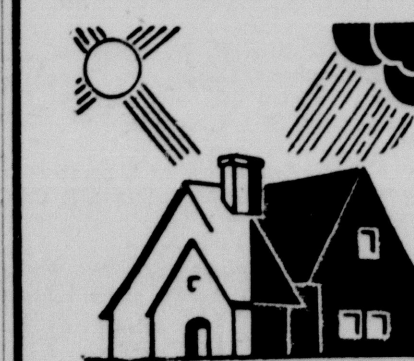

"Manufacturers of building materials who are taking advantage of their opportunities," he continued, "are increasing their production. There is a growing demand for better construction and for remodeling. The amount of money that will be expended in 1936 should far exceed that of any year since the depression was first felt by industry some six years ago."

"The copper and brass industry has been closely tying up with Federal Housing Administration activities. The consumption of copper for flashings, gutters, and downspouts; copper and brass pipe and copper tubing for water lines; solid brass and bronze for hardware and lighting fixtures; and bronze insect screen cloth show steady increases."

PREVENT HEAT LOSS
In western-framed houses the studs are not stopped at each floor but run up through the full height of the house. If these spaces are open either to an unprotected attic or basement, or both, the rising air through these openings will decrease the efficiency of the heating system by transferring warm air into the attic.

Close these spaces at the basement and attic floor levels and considerable savings will be effected in heating bills.

FARM BELT IN POSITION FOR MODERNIZATION

Survey Reveals Principal Areas For Activity In Repair Plans

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The farm belt seems to be in a better position as a whole to repair and modernize its residential property than any other section of the country.

This is indicated by a survey made by the federal housing administration to guide its activities in educating the people of the country as to the privileges to be enjoyed under the national housing act. The survey, which represents a compilation of figures obtained from various sources, both governmental and private, attempts to determine the areas from which the bulk of the business of repair and modernization will be derived—not from an inspection of the properties themselves but from their type and condition of ownership and the ability of the people to buy the materials and equipment that go to make good housing.

Based upon $1,000,000,000 total expenditures for modernization and repairs, the federal housing administration undertook to establish quotas for various areas. The 96 metropolitan districts or trading areas centering about one or more cities and having a population of 100,000 or more, as established by the census, comprise just short of half of the population of the country. The study indicated that the per capita expenditure for the group as a whole might be $9.41.

However, the farm-belt cities show up better than any of the others. The quota for Des Moines and environs, with a population of 160,963, is $14 per capita. The quota for the district embracing Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Iowa, with a population of 273,851, is close behind, being $13.88. The quota for Wichita, Kans., is $13.46.

The second best area for repair and modernization is Oklahoma, which is neighboring territory. The quota for both Oklahoma City and for Tulsa is $12.19.

A group the west-coast cities are able to provide good housing for themselves. The quota for San Jose, Calif., is highest with $11.62; San Francisco is close behind with $11.60. Seattle and Los Angeles are about on a par, with quotas of $10.76 and $10.73, respectively.

A full tabulation of the 96 metropolitan districts and the per-capita quota for each is presented herewith:

It is reported that the creation of special rooms for the sale of antiques or a group of related articles in department stores increase sales. This is particularly true of smaller luxury articles. While the customer may inquire about the location of necessities, she will frequently search out the location of the more expensive small items.

Costume jewelry may not show sufficient sales if located along an aisle where gloves, hosiery, handkerchiefs and other small articles are sold. A special room decorated to attract the customer and to harmonize with the articles to be offered, can be separated from the main store area by semipermanent partitions or screens.

Modernization loans insured by the federal housing administration up to $50,000 are available for permanent additions to department stores.

More BUILDING Necessary for Entire Nation!

FULL BACKING TO FHA GIVEN BY 4-H CLUBS

Organization Plans For Home Improvement Throughout Country

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Four hundred and seventy-five 4-H clubs in thirty states are now cooperating with the Federal Housing Administration in its task of creating better living conditions in the rural areas of the nation.

Improvement of rural housing conditions has for many years been one of the themes of the 4-H club movement, and cooperation with the Housing Administration has given added stimulus to the work.

Each club participating in the program has either appointed a better housing representative or has organized a committee to study conditions in rural housing. Housing literature supplied from Washington is being used in many localities for the purpose of outlining local repair programs for "typical farmsteads." Club members have also served in better housing booths at county and state fairs and have functioned as judges of farm housing as well as on demonstration teams.

Through the assistance of the 4-H clubs the Housing Administration of the belief that a more widespread appreciation of better farm homes will be developed in rural communities.

With the number growing weekly, at present South Carolina leads in the number of 4-H clubs cooperating with the Federal Housing Administration with 186; Ohio, second, with 102.

The number of clubs cooperating by states is as follows:

- Arkansas, 2; California, 2; Connecticut, 1; Delaware, 56; Florida, 1; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 3; Indiana, 1; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 19; Kentucky, 6; Michigan, 5; Minnesota, 23; Missouri, 12; Montana, 2; New Mexico, 4; New York, 3; North Carolina, 3; Ohio, 102; Oklahoma, 13; Oregon, 1; South Carolina, 186; South Dakota, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2; Vermont, 3; Virginia, 1; Washington, 2; West Virginia, 2; and Wisconsin, 3. KANSAS PAPER COMMENDS FHA

Three-Fold Benefits Of Plan Are Enumerated By Publication

The following editorial appeared in the Topeka (Kan.) Journal of August last under the caption "Housing Act Benefits." It says in part: "The first assignment of the federal housing administration, the repairing and remodeling of homes, has brought untold benefits. It has stimulated the sale of material; it has provided employment for men who needed it; and it has resulted in improved homes for families that could pay for them."

"The extent to which these benefits have been spread in Kansas is indicated by official reports which include statements by home owners of savings made or in progress amounting to almost $23,000,000 the first year. It is estimated that some 60 per cent of the money spent went into wages paid Kansas workers."

"At the time of its inception the better housing campaign seemed a long measure of recovery. The experience of the state justifies that view."

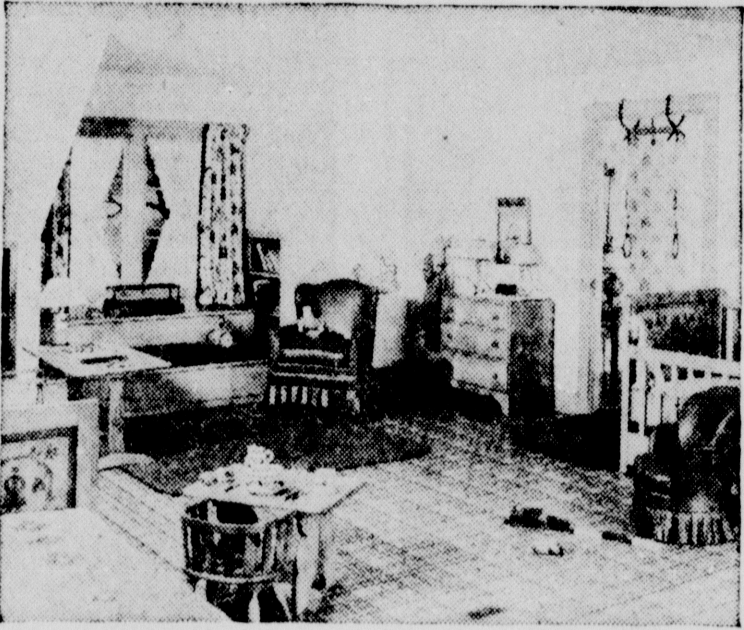

"The repairing and remodeling activities, however, are more in the nature of an emergency program. The lasting benefits of the national housing act probably are to come from some of its other features. One mortgage insurance in which money for the acquisition or the construction of homes is made available at low rates."

"Through the housing act the elimination of the defects of former plans of home financing may be reduced or minimized. They constituted a heavy burden upon the purchasing or building family. The United States now looked forward to every man coming a capitalist through the ownership of property but our theory of security depends upon it. The weaknesses of our financing plans in the conditions under which they are operated permitted abuses which at times contributed to dissatisfaction and unrest."

For all that it is recently enacted national housing act is no quick-thrown together hodgepodge of gerrymandered action. For years the defects mentioned had received the light and study of practical men. The present act, partly based upon the studies, may develop weaknesses and defects of its own. If so, it can be remedied. But in some of the law probably will be permanent, because it is based upon a sound need."

HOT-WATER HEATERS
Any kind of small hot-water heater which may be turned on a few minutes before hot water is needed is available.
When preparing the home for winter use, consider adding a hot-water heater. An electric or gas heater may be placed in the basement and turned on from the basement landing or porch.
This type of heater is economical in the intermittent use of hot water.

Modern Children's Room

Every consideration has been given to the children who will occupy this room by those who planned the juvenile apartment. Linoleum floor covering is easily cleaned, and the children's fun is not hampered by fear of spilling anything on the floor. With such an attractive nursery, brother and sister will be content to play at home, and far away street corners with their traffic dangers will not beckon. A room of this type may easily be created from waste attic space or other rooms under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Housing Question Box

Q.—Can I stain plaster satisfactorily?

A.—A stained finish may be given to rough but not to smooth-finished plaster. It is advisable to size the wall before application of the stain.

The stain used must be one which will strike in and not dry too rapidly—any of the prepared stains of the oil type are satisfactory.

Q.—I wish to build a brick-veneer residence. Is this a satisfactory type of construction?

A.—Frame structures veneered with a single layer of brick attached at frequent intervals to the wood framework or sheathing are used in many parts of the country.

So far as structural stability is concerned, well-built veneered dwellings can be safely constructed of the same height and under the same circumstances as those with 8-inch masonry walls. The structural frame should be adequately braced.

Anchorage between the veneer and the wood should be frequent and substantial.

Openings should be carefully flashed and caulked to prevent the entrance of water behind the facing. Building paper should be used between the veneer and sheathing to prevent the penetration of moisture and the infiltration of air. Some types of sheathing have a heavy paper backing attached to a sheet of welded wire fabric. With this type it is common practice to slush mortar in between the sheathing and the veneer. It is usually advisable to flash under the veneer where it meets the foundation.

Q.—My kitchen does not have proper ventilation. How can I remove cooking odors?

A.—Electrically driven fans may be installed in the exterior wall of the kitchen. Such a device will set up sufficient circulation to keep the air in the kitchen free from cooking odors and keep them from circulating through the rest of the house.

Q.—What causes paint to blister?

A.—Excess moisture in wood, which is drawn to the surface by heat (either from the sun or other sources), will cause paint to blister. Always be sure that the surface to be painted is thoroughly dry before work is begun.

Q.—Joints in my woodwork have opened up. How can I remedy this?

A.—Fill the open joints with putty tinted to match the paint finish or some other appropriate material, a number of which are available on the market.

If the open joints are too wide for this treatment, mouldings and other parts of the trim can be removed and refitted.

Care must be exercised in removing the trim, so that both it and the wall will not be injured.

Q.—Must a hot-water heating unit be placed in the basement?

A.—It is not necessary to place a hot-water system in the basement.

The boiler may be located on the same level as the heated space. It need not be centrally placed. If your heating system has been designed for location in a basement it will have to be redesigned into an overhead system which is required where the unit is on the same level as the areas to be heated.

Q.—The inside wall surface and floors of my house show signs of "sweating." Can I prevent this?

A.—If there is no sign of leaking, the moisture on your walls and floor is probably caused by condensation. This varies with the temperature of the wall or floor as related to the room temperatures, the humidity, and the flow of air current. In a room containing warm, moist air, condensation may occur if the inner wall or floor surfaces are cooler than the air. Remedy this either by placing insulation between the inner and outer walls. In the case of the floors lay an additional floor over the present one, raising it sufficiently to allow air to circulate below it.

Q.—Would it be advisable for me to insulate the roof of my house before winter, and what type should I use?

A.—In the ordinary house, about one-fifth of the heat lost in winter will be through the roof, while during the summer outside heat will enter the upper part of the house. Adequate insulation will overcome both of these difficulties.

The kind of insulation to be used as well as the method of application will depend on the design of the house and the roof.

When an attic is open and usable as storage space but need not have a finished surface, insulation can be placed between the rafters or supported by a wire network, depending on the type used. For a finished room, plaster board or wall board may be nailed to the under edges of the rafters and loose insulation poured or packed into this space, or insulated wall board used.

If the attic is not used, insulating material can be laid between the floor beams.

There are many different types on the market, and you will readily be able to determine the best for your particular condition. Concerning the cost, you may take competitive bids and make final choices from the lowest dependable bidder.

HOME CHARM IS AIDED BY STUCCO

Method Of Applying Material Given By Experts In The Process

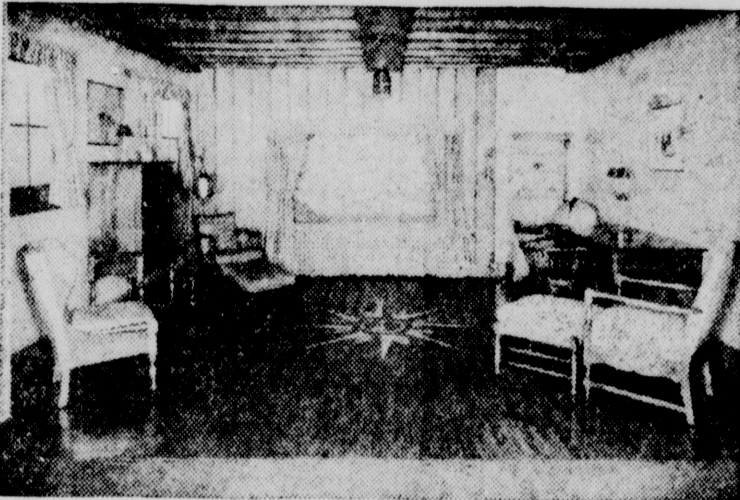

When a house has a weathered or uninteresting exterior wall and is in need of a new surface, stucco can be applied as an over coating.

Masonry walls are superior as a basis for the addition of stucco, because they are stable and minimize cracking. The chief requirements for such bases besides rigidity are that they should be straight and sufficiently rough to provide a good key. If the wall is bricks, the mortar joints should be raked out to a depth of about three-eighths of an inch, and other masonry that has been painted should be covered with metal lath, hacked with a rough tool or sand blasted to remove all the old paint, oil, or other material which may prevent a good bond.

Frame structures should be rigidly braced and have a good foundation to prevent settling. For this reason it is usually fairly safe to apply stucco to a sturdy old frame building, for there is little danger of additional settling. If the weatherboarding is in good condition, it may be retained to assure stability, covered with waterproof paper and metal lath, carefully laced with wire and stapled not more than six or eight inches apart. Wood lath may also be used. The lath should be applied so as to form a nearly uniform fabric as possible over the whole structure. Care should be given to the proper extension of the window and door frames to meet the increased wall thickness.

Stucco is durable when properly applied, and the design of the structure has much to do with its lasting qualities. All surfaces should be as nearly vertical as possible, and it is usually best not to cover copings, sills, or other projections if the house is in a locality with a variable temperature. An architect should be called in to determine the adaptability of the house for stucco coating.

Modern Young Man's Room

Unused attic space or outmoded bedrooms may be readily transformed into modern accommodations for the son and heir to the family fortunes. As illustrated in the above photograph, a minimum of furniture gives spaciousness to such a room, which may be further augmented by the inclusion of a built-in bed such as is seen at the end of the room. When such a room is constructed in an attic, interesting ceiling treatments are possible by utilizing beams, dormers, and other parts of the existing structure. Cleanliness is assured when a modern, colorful linoleum flooring or other combination material is installed. Built-in shelves and bookcases also combine utility with decoration.

This work may be financed through the low-rate modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

KITCHEN CLOSET

Add an appliance closet in the kitchen. Here all the smaller mechanical equipment—mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc.—may be placed on shelves designed to accommodate them. On the door, place a row of books and paste white labels above each one. The electric cords which fit each appliance may be hung here and the name of the appliance placed above it. This will prevent cords from becoming tangled, and they will be easy to locate.

Paint the interior of the closet a color which contrasts with the main kitchen wall color.

PAINT FIRM SHOWS PROFIT DESPITE DUST

PUEBLO, Colo.—Despite set-backs to business caused by the devastating dust storms in March and April, a prominent paint manufacturing company here reported that their business for the first six months of 1935 exceeded the entire amount of business done in 1934. In the first six months of 1935 the company's business totaled $213,000. During the twelve months of 1934 the same concern did a total business of $206,000. Officials of the concern told the associate director of the federal housing administration that the sales increases were caused principally by the federal housing administration's program.

Guard Summer Home Against Winter Blasts

A little time spent on reconditioning the summer cottage before it is deserted for the winter will protect it from deterioration and will prepare it for occupancy next year.

Check over the items which may need attention. Will the roof develop leaks during snow or heavy rainstorms? Should it have new shingles or stain? Are the metal flashings and drain pipes in good order. Will exterior porches and steps rot before another summer? Are the basement walls waterproof, etc.?

A careful checking of all these items will probably reveal a number which should be tended to immediately. For example, while you may wish to wait until spring to apply a fresh coat of paint so that it will be bright for the summer, it is much wiser to apply it now. Exterior paint is essentially a protective coating and during the next six months a cottage needs protection more than during the summer months.

If downspouts or gutters are in bad condition, the water will often seep down the wall and into cracks which otherwise would give no trouble. If any article left in it will mildew. While the weather is still good, make these repairs and save major reconditioning jobs next spring.

Methylene blue injections have been found very beneficial in the treatment of leprosy.

Crosby Starred In New Liltng Comedy, 'Two For Tonight'

Crooner Has Leading Role In Laugh Riot

New Songs Introduced In Feature Film At Paramount Today

BRIGHT-SPRITED comedy, liltng love songs, and gay romance make Bing Crosby's "Two For Tonight," which opened at the Paramount theater yesterday, one grand hour of fun and entertainment, topped by a supporting cast of skillful, but none the less hilarious, comedians, headed by the buoyant inanities of Mary Boland and the droll humor of Lynne Overman.

Bing's newest laugh riot provides the crooner with plenty of opportunity to indulge his flair as an ace singer and master of farce. Presenting Crosby in one mirth-provoking dilemma after another, "Two For Tonight" is a perfect vehicle for Bing's light-hearted, insouciant, personable style of acting.

The comedy centers around the humorous experiences of a struggling young singer when he is erroneously taken for a playwright. Bing is one of three brothers, sons of Mary Boland, who are evicted from their home. Secreting themselves in the garden of a renowned music publisher's home, Bing sings while the other plays the piano, unaware that the publisher is deaf as a post. An airplane crashes, putting Bing in the hospital. Miss Boland, in her effort to collect $50,000 damages, writes the pilot that the accident has prevented her son from completing his play. The pilot appears, in the person of Joan Bennett, secretary to a famous stage impresario, Lynne Overman. Through her, Bing and his family have an appointment with Overman who straightway assigns Bing to write a play for his star, Thelma Todd without giving him a chance to explain.

The fun begins when Bing, finding himself short of ideas, acts upon the suggestion of Ernest Cossart, Overman's astute butler and ex-theatrical producer, to go out and make things happen to get more material for his play. He starts an hilarious seltzer water-siphon-shooting battle in a night club which sends him to jail. By this time Miss Bennett has fallen in love with the romantic tenor, but runs away when she sees him in an embrace with Miss Todd, rehearsing a love scene. Overman, suddenly returning from Europe, also sees them, and fires Bing.

A sparkling, breezy sentimental finale forms the exciting climax to the fun fest. A fine assortment of catchy melodies have been provided by Gordon and Revel, including "From the Top of Your Head to the Tip of Your Toes," "Without a Word of Warning," "Two for Tonight," "Takes Two to Make a Bargain," and "I Wish I Were Aladdin." Frank Tuttle's direction is swiftly paced, attaining distinction by its excellence. Mary Boland, Overman, Cossart, James Blakely, Douglas Fowley, Charles Arnt and others carry off high honors on the amusement end.

Bing Crosby and Joan Bennett as they appear in the Paramount comedy with music and song, "Two for Tonight," the attraction playing at the Paramount theater for the last times today. Mary Boland, Lynne Overman, and Thelma Todd head the specially selected supporting cast.

James Dunn and Mae Clarke supply the romance and most of the fun in Fox film's new mirth-revel, "The Daring Young Man," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday and Wednesday. Jimmy Dunn's portrayal of the young reporter who left his bride-to-be at the church to dash off on a secret assignment is the "tops" in madcap comedy.

Spring comes to New York City when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey combined circus unloads its four trains of thrills and wonders for the annual engagement in Madison Square Garden. Then it is that the greatest city lays aside its mask of sophistication and unaffectedly becomes itself—and that self is symbolized by the Skippy-like boy shown here leading Big Bill, dean of the big show's herd of fifty elephants, from one of their ornate cars at the Harlem river railroad yards. The Greatest Show on Earth will exhibit in Monroe Wednesday.

'Thunder In Night' Now At Capitol

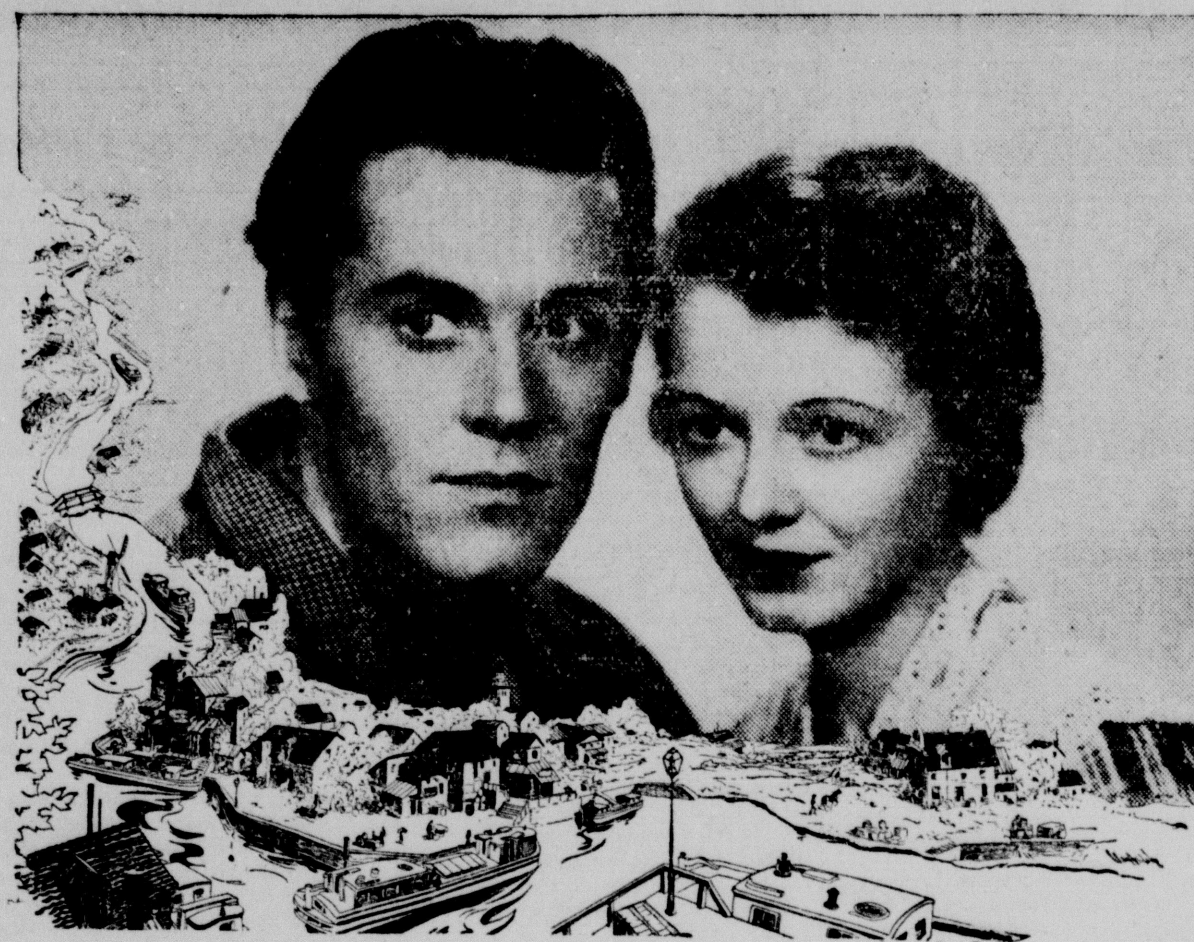

Edmund Lowe Tops Big Cast Appearing In Mystery Melodrama

"THUNDER in the Night," the Fox mystery melodrama which opens at the Capitol theater today, will provide mental exercise for the keen followers of mystery tales and a pleasant revelation for the admirers of that likable and versatile star, Edmund Lowe, who emerges in an entirely new type of characterization in this picture. Cleverly written, directed and photographed, "Thunder in the Night" keeps its audiences at a high pitch of suspense with its whirlwind sequence of events in one of the fastest mystery pictures brought to the screen.

The picture covers only six hours in the life of a gay Budapest detective, but what an eventful six hours!

Edmund Lowe is the detective, with a pronounced partiality for the ladies and a keen mind on the trail of a criminal. The story's action begins with a murder in a tawdry hotel which Lowe is called to solve. He is on the way to guard the celebration at the home of his friend, Paul Cavanagh, newly elected president of the cabinet, but stops to investigate the murder.

Lovers weave their dreams in the magical spell of the Erie canal waterways, in the great American romance, "The Farmer Takes a Wife," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday. Janet Gaynor and Henry Fonda are the screen's happiest lovers in this film, adapted from the stage success of the same name.

Fine unashamed sentiment, gusty comedy, homely reality and slap bang action all geared to the greatest amount of entertainment, for the greatest number of folk is what is promised of the picture "The Irish in Us," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. The stars pictured above are Pat O'Brien, Olivia De Havilland, and James Cagney. Among its merits are the finest Irish mother that ever waddled across the screen in the person of Mary Gordon, and the most slashing genuine ring fight the films have seen.

The wife of his best friend . . . yet he must accuse her of murder. Edmund Lowe, who plays the role of a suave, gentleman detective in Fox film's "Thunder in the Night" at the Capitol today and Monday, appears in a thrilling scene from the picture with Karen Morley and Paul Cavanaugh.

rectly at Karen Morley, wife of Cavanaugh. Lowe hastens to the castle, not to arrest Miss Morley, but to cover her up. His superior officer, Russell Hicks, who is Cavanaugh's political enemy, discovers the same clues and anticipates Lowe.
The story revolves itself into a two-sided battle between Lowe and Hicks. Hicks wishes to precipitate a scandal which will ruin Cavanaugh; Lowe hopes to protect him.
A terse dramatic climax at the scene of the murder uncovers a startling set of facts. Lowe, with remarkable ingenuity and intelligence, reconstructs the murder and ferrets out the criminal, bringing the pic-

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Robbin Coons
HOLLYWOOD—Several months ago, by saying "yes" to the opportunities of a studio that wanted him to do a picture, Will Rogers might have changed the course of events that led to his tragic death.

Because he said "no," a shocked Hollywood has another "if only" story to record.
Will Rogers made his first local stage appearance in many years—in a play, that is—when he took the leading role in a production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" He was a tremendous success in the role that George M. Cohan played in New York, and the show could have run many weeks longer, with capacity houses, than it did.

Brown Hopeful
Meanwhile M-G-M had purchased the screen rights to this play, and Rogers loomed as the logical choice for the assignment. He had permission from his own studio to make the picture, and Metro offered handsome inducements. But for some reason or another, Rogers never entered the negotiations wholeheartedly.

For a long time Clarence Brown, directing the picture, postponed his selection of a star in the hope that Rogers would change his mind. Some said the reason Will refused the part was his desire to let well enough alone, that he was content with what honors he had gained by his stage interpretation. But no real explanation was offered, either by Metro or by the occasionally taciturn Rogers.
"If only," as Hollywood could reflect today, Will had accepted this role he would have been on location in New England, where Lionel Barrymore is doing the part intended for him.

Will Rogers, of course, never indulged in "if only's."
He was too busy working, or flying, or tending to things on his ranch, or lending his wit to civic affairs.
He never took himself seriously as an actor, but he did take seriously his obligation to his great public—even in small things.
Once a director wanted him to fake some accordion-playing for a scene.

TODAY

Be Cunning, Be Savage
Scattered, Little Wars
A Shot At A Bird
Bombs Follow Pamphlets

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1935, by King Features

ITALIAN TROOPS advance into Ethiopia, "guided by planes overhead" that drop bombs wherever they see a flash of white cotton cloth, indicating the presence of natives, make Italy's advance easy.

Ethiopia's emperor, in black satin cloak, leaning from his north tower, gave wise advice to frantically howling and dancing tribesmen "who flourished their knives before the palace." This is quoted from a special cable to the New York Times: "I am happy to see you before me with knives, swords and rifles. Soldiers, I give you this advice: Be cunning, be savage, face the enemy one by one, two by two, in fields and mountains. Do not wear white cloths. Do not mass as now; hide and strike suddenly. Fight the nomad war. Steal up, snipe and murder singly. Scatter and advance to victory."

Thereupon the whole wild assembly clapped sharply thrice, shouted "Glory to the emperor" and plunged away through the narrow palace gates.

BEFORE THE EMPEROR gave the wise advice to his warriors, the throng of savage tribesmen had appeared before the north tower of his palace, where he stood in perfect calm and dignity. Whipping out their knives they shouted:

"Death to the Italians. We shall finish them once and for all. We thank you for your decree. God give you long life."

THE ITALIAN-ETHIOPIAN war starts various little wars. In New York, Italians and colored citizens argued, fought, a policeman had his hand broken, by a colored man with a blow from the staff of an Ethiopian flag. The policeman, who did not start the war, thought that unnecessary.

Mr. Valentine, New York's wise commissioner of police, keeps 1,200 policemen in reserve, ready for more riots.

In Rome, Americans have been advised to talk English cautiously, as "English" means "Englishman" and Englishmen are not popular in Italy.

The American consul in Rome was obliged to show his credentials to avoid trouble when he talked English with friends at a restaurant.

France dislikes the war and everybody connected with it. At Toulon, French crowds yell "Down with Mussolini and war" as fifty young French start homeward by rail, to help fight Ethiopia. It is "war," rather than Mussolini, that young French demonstrators dislike.

Anthony Eden, British minister, had results shouted at him when he arrived at the Paris railroad station Thursday. Young men of France and other nations close to the big war know from uncles, fathers, older brothers, what war means, and they want none of it.

LITTLE THINGS start big wars. Dr. Potter, formerly professor of political science in the University of Wisconsin, one of an international committee of four that tried to settle a quarrel between Italy and Ethiopia in 1934, says that Italy has good grounds for complaint against Ethiopia and that a soldier's casual shot at a bird probably started the present trouble.

Five hundred native Italian troops, and 1,500 Ethiopian troops, watching each other "from their positions, in some cases only two yards apart,"

MANIAC KILLS WOMAN AS CROWD LOOKS ON AT FLINT, MICHIGAN

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 5.—(P)—Horrible shoppers saw Mrs. J. Odran, 69, beaten to death on a street here today and police seized Andrew Goodrich, 29, who shouted "the Lord commanded me to kill" as he was taken to headquarters.

Mrs. Odran, her arms filled with groceries, was walking with her niece, Esther Roberts, 14, when she was attacked.

Police said witnesses told them Goodrich felled her with a table leg and continued to beat her until he had beaten her to death. He was held by Capt. Edward S. Tewhey and sergeant Ray Miller, of the police, arrived.

Mrs. Odran was dead upon admission to a hospital.

Two Floors Suddenly Give Way Under Crowd Gathered For Funeral

Corpse Falls On Horrified Mourners; Two Are Injured Seriously

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—At least 24 persons were injured, two seriously, and more than 40 other persons shaken up in the collapse here late today of two floors of a Dauphine street residence just before a funeral was about to begin.

Friends and relatives, gathered for last rites of Mrs. Lawrence Ingargiola, who died yesterday, were hurled down 10 feet to a concrete floor below, along with the casket, a piano and other articles of furniture.

The floors of two second-story rooms, crowded with more than three score mourners, suddenly gave way, hurling the occupants to the ground floor in a screaming scramble. The body was thrown from the casket in the crash.

Fred Meyer, 34, and his brother, Otto Meyer, 28, who assisted in rescue efforts, said that more than 40 persons fell in a heap in a mad tangle of timbers and furniture.

"My brother and I kicked a side door off its hinges and assisted in pulling injured persons from the residence," Fred Meyer said.

The corpse fell on two, horrified women mourners. It was replaced in its casket and was quickly removed to a hearse, which had been waiting, and carried to the St. Vincent De

ASSERT LONG MIGHT HAVE BEEN ACCUSED OF TAX VIOLATIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Treasury officials said today it was "a perfectly legitimate guess" that had Senator Long lived three months longer the government would have filed an income tax suit against him.

One official said the treasury had always refused to confirm or deny recurring rumors against delinquencies in Long's returns. However, it was recalled that indictments had been returned against several of Long's associates.

Long frequently declared on the floor of the senate that his returns were being investigated by the bureau of internal revenue.

TONGUE SWALLOWED BY YOUNG FOOTBALL PLAYER

BRAINTREE, Mass., Oct. 5.—(P)—A football player swallowed his tongue today in a high school game here when kicked in his Adams apple during the final scrimmage of the contest. Tonight he was reported out of danger.

Eldredge Allen, 16, of the Braintree high team was the victim.

The boy was described by other players as slowly strangling when Dr. Arthur P. Morris of Braintree, called from the crowd of spectators, reached him. The physician gave first aid and took the boy to Quincy hospital. Several hours later the hospital reported the boy would be sent home shortly.

'SHADOW' MENACES EUROPE

A new "shadow" threatens Europe as the result of sanction threats against Italy—the "shadow" of a new alignment splitting center Europe from Italy to Poland. Recent developments indicate that for one reason or another several nations might refuse to join hands with other League of Nations members in enforcing economic or military sanctions against Italy. The map shows these nations—Hungary, Austria, Germany and Poland.

MRS. MUENCH IS GIVEN FREEDOM

Former Society Matron Acquitted In Kidnaping Of Dr. Isaac Kelley

MEXICO, Mo., Oct. 5.—(P)—Mrs. Nellie Tipton Muench, former St. Louis society matron, was acquitted of a charge of conspiracy in the kidnaping of Dr. Isaac D. Kelley today.

The attractive, 43-year-old defendant was in tears as a jury of farmers reported its verdict at 9:59 a. m. after 5 1/2 hours actual deliberation.

She shook hands with each juror. In two dramatic witness stand appearances at her trial, brought here on a change of venue, the red-haired sister of a Missouri supreme court judge had denied categorically the state's case that sought to connect her with the 1932 ransom abduction of the wealthy St. Louis throat specialist.

Her husband, Dr. Ludwig O. Muench, threw his arms around her as Judge W. C. Hughes read the verdict.

Tension in the courtroom snapped suddenly after the verdict was read. As Judge Hughes left the bench spectators surged in front of the bar rail and in a few minutes were mingling with the 10 farmers and two rural merchants who finally decided the long-delayed case.

As Mrs. Muench left the courthouse in company with Edgar J. Keating, Kansas City, one of the best of attorneys who participated in the defense, a large crowd formed on the courthouse square and flanked her on either side. She walked rapidly toward a waiting automobile, apparently with no regard for the hundreds of curious men and women.

Acquittal of Mrs. Muench was the first rebuff received by the state in prosecuting those charged with abducting the wealthy, socially prominent Dr. Kelley on April 20, 1932.

Angelo Rosegrant and Felix McDonald, two of the alleged gang, have been convicted and given prison sentences of 20 to 60 years respectively.

FARMER KILLED AS HE TRIES TO STOP TRUCK WITH MILK

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 5.—(P)—Herman Slater, 41, a farmer living five miles south of Burlington, Wis., was killed today when, with a group of farmers, he attempted to stop one of five trucks hauling milk to Chicago.

Sheriff C. F. Erickson said he was informed that between 150 and 200 men massed on highway 42 one mile south of Kenosha at 1:30 a. m. and tossed planks into the path of five trucks bound for Chicago.

The first truck, Erickson said, swerved to the left, striking Slater. The second machine pulled to the right, missing him. The third ran over him as he sat in the road. Erickson quoted witnesses as reporting, "The trucks did not stop."

Erickson followed the truck train into Illinois and found William Leahy, driver of the first truck, at Lake Forest, a Chicago suburb. He returned Leahy to Kenosha, detaining him without charge pending an investigation.

LOUISIANA AWAITS DEVELOPMENTS IN POLITICAL BATTLE

Reports From All Quarters Show No Compromise Between Factions

DEAR SAYS BASE IS LAID FOR STATE ORGANIZATION

Administration Forces Reveal No Signs Of Easing Up On Dictatorship

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—The people of Louisiana settled back today awaiting announcements of candidates and platforms for the January 21 statewide Democratic primary campaign.

Reports from all quarters indicated that there was no compromise nor alliance in store between the followers of the late Senator Huey P. Long and anti-Longs, but that a fierce political struggle was in store.

The Longs indicated no intention of loosening up on the dictatorship, which the assassinated senator set up before the election as they hoped to keep the Long and Governor O. K. Allen machine in power by the whip of the laws of Long.

But on the other hand the forces of the anti-Longs were working toward a combination of all anti-Long factions sufficient to overthrow the dictatorial reign at the ballot box with a promise of equal representation for candidates at the polls and a "fair election count."

There are two announced anti-Long candidates for governor, Cleveland Dear, eighth district congressman, and Mason Spencer, a state representative.

Dear today issued a brief statement in which he said the foundation had been laid for a state organization,

Harold F. McCormick And William C. Cummings Get Blackmail Notes

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(P)—Harold F. McCormick, and William C. Cummings, Chicago industrial leaders, have been threatened with abduction and blackmail over a period of three weeks, Police Captain John Prendergast said today.

During that time, the police and agents of the department of justice have made secret efforts repeatedly to trap the plotters through negotiations by telephone and letter from the home of Cummings, president of the Drovers' National bank.

Captain Prendergast said the extortionists last night agreed to accept $30,000, but no one appeared at the Cummings home to collect the money. Cummings told the authorities he had received several unsigned notes, reading: "We have been thinking about kidnapping you for a long time. Pay us $30,000 and you'll be in no danger. If you don't you'll be in trouble plenty."

Four similar notes were received by Cummings and McCormick, who is chairman of the board of the International Harvester company. They apparently were the work of a poorly educated person, Capt. Prendergast said.

The police also investigated the possibility the threats might be the work of a crank.

Three Young School Girls Drowned In River Tragedy

CARTHAGE, Miss., Oct. 5.—(P)—This community was blanketed in sorrow tonight as it prepared to bury three young girls, all students at the Carthage high school, who were drowned last night when a small skiff sank in the Pearl river during an outing at McMillan's camp five miles southwest of here.

The tragedy cut short a happy week-end excursion for a group of 32 home economics students who had gone to the camp in charge of Miss Mary Norwood Puryear, a high school instructor, who was rescued from the treacherous currents of the stream along with two students.

The dead: Gene Wagner, 15-year-old daughter of Shelby Wagner of the Progress community.

Mary Elizabeth Henderson, 13, daughter of Circuit Clerk E. R. Henderson of Carthage.

Dollie Booser, 14, daughter of Dan Booser of the Goshen community. Saved with Miss Puryear were Zelda Dickens, 15, and a girl named Wilkinson.

The bodies of the victims were recovered from the river three hours after the boat sprang a leak and capsized. They were lying close together in ten feet of water and were pulled from the stream with grappling hooks in the hands of a searching party.

Miss Puryear said the group arrived at the camp shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday. About 9 o'clock, she said, the five students wanted to cross the river in a small fishing skiff tied up at the camp. She agreed to accompany them. They made it across and were returning when the boat started leaking, she said.

"It all happened so suddenly that we had no time to get aid," she said. "It was pitch dark and we were thrown into the river when the boat sank."

Miss Puryear said when she was thrown into the water she struck a Count Ciano (above), son-in-law of Premier Mussolini, said yesterday that the capture of Aduwa was imminent by Italian forces. The count is commanding an air squadron in the African war.

ADUWA TO FALL, DECLARES CIANO

(Copyright, 1935, by Associated Press)
ASMARA, Eritrea, Oct. 5.—Count Galeazzo Ciano, son-in-law of Premier Benito Mussolini and commander of the "Desperate" air squadron, announced shortly before noon today that the Ethiopian town of Aduwa would fall around 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

In the early afternoon Italian troops under Gen. Mariavigna were at the gates of Aduwa, the goal of Italy's 40-year-old desire for revenge, with the Ethiopians offering no resistance.

General Mariavigna was pushing forward with a strong squadron of tanks drawn up to storm Aduwa.

Chief resistance, it was reported authoritatively, came from Ethiopian mud huts half hidden in the mountainside.

Ethiopians maintained a continual sniping at the advancing Italian troops from holes in the walls of these rude structures.

Italian officers estimated Ethiopian forces between Aduwa and Adigrat at between 20,000 and 25,000 warriors.

Opposing them is an Italian army force numbering approximately 75,000. No news has been received here of Italian Consul Franco of Aduwa who was unable to get out of town before the Italian advance began.

The Italian troops are moving forward into Ethiopia in waves.

RESOLUTION FLAYS METHOD OF NAMING BALLOT OFFICIALS

CROWLEY, La., Oct. 5.—(P)—A resolution condemning the method of selecting election officials as called for by the state laws and asking that candidates be allowed to choose their own commissioners was passed today at a meeting of the Acadia parish Democratic executive committee.

With only one dissenting vote and two refusals to vote, the resolution requests that the state-chosen board of election supervisors allow candidates to submit the names of commissioners to it as formerly, that those names be drawn as has heretofore been custom by a committee in a public place, and that the persons whose names are drawn be appointed commissioners and alternates "as provided by existing law."

The resolution states "such condition as is existing is not now and never has been contemplated as a part of democratic government."

TWO DRIVERS ARE HURT IN DIFFERENT MISHAPS

Frank Creighton, of 715 South Second street, was carried in an ambulance to the Riverside sanitarium late yesterday afternoon for treatment of injuries received when an automobile he was driving turned over near the intersection of the DeSiard and Sterling roads.

Sterlington suffered a laceration over his right eye, general bruises and abrasions and his back was severely bruised. An x-ray picture of his back was to be made.

League Of Nations Delegates Absolve Ethiopia Of Blame

Geneva Fails To Take Immediate Action On Plea To Stop 'Massacre'

STRATEGY BODY NAMED TO HANDLE AFRICAN MATTER

Group Must Pick Aggressor In Report To League Tomorrow Afternoon

GENEVA, Oct. 5.—(P)—The council of the League of Nations appointed a "strategy" board of six to handle the Italo-Ethiopian warfare tonight but failed to take immediate action upon a solemn Ethiopian appeal to "stop the massacre of innocent populations."

A report submitted to the council by its committee of 13 absolved Ethiopia of blame for the African fighting. A member said it inferred Italy was "clearly in the wrong."

Failure of the council to act immediately upon Ethiopia's plea for adoption of military, naval and air sanctions against Italy brought forth later private expressions of reproach from even the most ardent advocates of the league.

League circles heard one of the first actions of the committee of six was to ask the league secretariat to draw up a statement based on the assumption Italy has committed unprovoked aggression.

This statement will be discussed by the committee tomorrow afternoon. No actual decision of war guilt against Italy was reached by the group, it was said, but its action in directing the secretariat to draft a preliminary document of that nature was held to be significant.

The strategy committee must make recommendations upon Ethiopia's plea for military sanctions and also must name the aggressor, in a report to the council Monday afternoon. The committee of six went into session tonight immediately upon council's adjournment.

With desperate fighting continuing in northeast Africa, the gravity of the situation as seen in Geneva was shown by the fact President Eduard Benes convoked a session of the league assembly for next Wednesday.

This means that almost 60 nations will be asked to give their opinion and share responsibility in any decision for sanctions against Italy.

When the committee of 13's report absolving Ethiopia from blame was made the Italian delegation instantly entered a declaration of full reservations concerning it.

Baron Aulic, head of Premier Mussolini's delegation, made the reservations before packed galleries at a public afternoon session of the council.

Italy made an explanation to the council tonight of the fighting in Africa. Presumably the contention was pressed that the action was of a "military police" and "defensive" nature.

Countries named upon the committee of six were Great Britain, France, Rumania, Portugal, Chile and Denmark.

After the report was made, Aloisi charged the council with failing to handle the problem from the standpoint of realities and accused Ethiopia of aggression.

The little Ethiopian, Teclé Hawariat, then rose.

"I ask the council to address to the Italian government an appeal to cease all military operations and to stop the massacre of innocent populations," he said.

The chief preoccupation of the British delegation at the moment seems to be to force speed in the present crisis.

2 TOWNS REPORTED TAKEN BY ITALIANS IN ETHIOPIAN WAR

PARIS, Oct. 6.—(Sunday)—(P)—The Havas news agency said today that Ras Seyoum, commander of the Tigre troops in northwest Ethiopia, reported Italian troops took Wageta and Enguela, south of Aduwa, at 4 p. m. Saturday.

The Ethiopian commander was quoted as saying there were numerous dead on both sides, including four Italian officers.

The Italians were reported advanced to a position 100 kilometers from the frontier, apparently in an effort to encircle Aduwa, goal of a concerted Italian drive, and Aksum.

Airplanes, the Ethiopian leader reportedly said, flew over the entire region, bombing the population, including women and children, at Adigrat.

The commander said the Ethiopians were withdrawing before the Italians, leading them to a favorable terrain before offering resistance and possibly launching a counter-offensive.

Action Of President Frankly Recognizes State Of War In Africa

HAND-TO-HAND STRUGGLES ARE WAGED NEAR ADIGRAT

Native Women Rush Into Battle Bearing Water And Liquor For Troops

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Frankly recognizing a "state of war" between Italy and Ethiopia, President Roosevelt today declared an immediate embargo on American shipment of "arms, munitions and implements of war" to either nation.

Acting under provisions of the new neutrality act in an effort to assure the United States shall not become involved in the conflict, the president confined the embargo to implements and munitions actually used in warfare.

These included airplanes, airplane engines and parts, rifles, guns, ammunition, poison gas, warships and their equipment. Hereafter, any American who violates the embargo may be punished by a $10,000 fine, 5 years imprisonment or both.

If the president chooses, he may later expand the prescribed list to include such things as cotton, copper and other raw materials.

Now on the Pacific aboard the cruiser Houston, the president has kept in constant communication with Washington by radio. Upon receiving official advice that the Italian-Ethiopian clashes had resulted in a "state of war," he directed Secretary Hull to issue the embargo proclamation.

Issuance of the proclamation, and clamping on of the embargo, were made mandatory by the neutrality act as soon as it had been determined that a state of war existed.

Carefully maintaining a neutral position, however, the Roosevelt proclamation made no attempt to define either Italy or Ethiopia as the "aggressor."

Further fighting was reported on the southern Ogaden front, facing Italian Somaliland, with 2,000 Ethiopians dead.

FIERCE FIGHTING RAGES ON FRONT

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 5.—(P)—Fierce fighting raged today on the northern front, near Adigrat, where Ethiopian warriors engaged in hand-to-hand combat with the Italian troops, fighting with bayonets and daggered enemy forces that used planes overhead.

The number of casualties was not learned.

Further fighting was reported on the southern Ogaden front, facing Italian Somaliland, with 2,000 Ethiopians dead.

On the northern front the Ethiopian lines are straggled along a fertile plain en route to Asmara, 22 miles south of the Eritrean border. Throughout the day, since the beginning of hostilities, the native women have been rushing to the battle lines with great black jugs of water and tea (a liquor) on their shoulders. They also bore sacks of corn to the fighters.

Unofficial reports reached the capital that Aduwa had been occupied by an unopposed Italian army, the Ethiopians having withdrawn to reinforce their brothers in arms near Adigrat. The town was occupied by women, children and men too infirm for war duty, the reports said.

(An official communique to Rome by the advancing army reported Aduwa still in the hands of the Ethiopians, but expected it to be encircled by evening. A similar communication was received at Rome from the Italian commander in Asmara.)

The Ethiopians are fighting on the northern front to block a semi-circular encirclement by the Italian army from the south.

The Italians penetrated the towns of Wayeta and Enguela, near Adigrat, said a government communique, "but have not yet reached Adigrat."

"A spirited battle occurred between the forces of Ras Seyoum (Ethiopian commander of the area) and of General Emilio de Bono (Italian leader), resulting in the capture by the Ethiopians of one Italian captain, three Eritrean officers, two machine guns and ten rifles."

"No Ethiopian officers were killed, but considerable casualties were reported among the soldiers on both sides."

Further official charges were made by Ethiopia of attack on non-combatants. A squadron of Italian planes, the charge related, shelled women and children in the village of Betta Hawariat, near Adigrat.

Mussolini's armies are making heavy use of planes. Attempts to bomb Makale, 100 miles southeast of Aduwa on the northern front, were reported, the missiles going wide and setting fire to a nearby forest.

Another report placed a battle plain within 48 miles of Addis Ababa, the capital of Ethiopia (not shown on map). The report still unconfirmed, said they were in a state to bomb the capital but that they were further fighting is raging in the Mount Mussa Ali sector, according to reports reaching here, with Selassie's troops defending the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway, the empire's only modern contact with the outer world.

The Addis Ababa correspondent for Reuters (British) said 700 Italians had been unofficially reported killed in an all-night battle in the Danakil country, with Ethiopian deaths totaling 1,300. He also said Dessale, 150 miles from Mussa Ali, had been bombed by the Italians.

THREE-SIDED ATTACK LAUNCHED BY ITALIANS

ROME, Oct. 5.—(AP)—The might of Benito Mussolini's modern African army was hurled against ancient Ethiopia today in a three-sided attack. Infantry, tanks, cavalry and destructive aerial squadrons went into action as Italy swiftly and boldly followed up the outbreak of war.

A near ring was thrown about the coveted town of Adduwa, in northern Ethiopia, where fascists hunger for a triumph to obliterate the bitter sting of a defeat in 1935.

An unofficial report in Addis Ababa said Adduwa has fallen. Ethiopian warriors evacuated the town before the Italians entered, the report asserted.

Striking in the south, forces from Italian Somaliland marched across the border, escorted by bombing planes, and moved into Bolo.

Action in the third sector was around Mussa Ali, bordering upon Eritrea. This movement was coupled with that against Adduwa.

Fierce fighting was reported, with the engagements going on under a broiling sun and over Ethiopia's difficult terrain. There was no mention here of casualties.

Italian forces in northern Ethiopia occupied Adigrat, Entisico and Daro Tacla, throwing something like a ring around the historic battle scene.

The black warriors of Emperor Haile Selassie are putting up a bitter resistance, an official communique admitted.

When troops advanced at dawn upon Adigrat and Entisico under the leadership of General Emilio de Bono, the communique said, Ethiopian civilians ran up white flags of surrender and placed themselves under Italy's protection.

Troops which captured Daro Tacla were expected later in the day to drive southward against Adduwa.

General de Bono reported that despite long marches under a hot sun the troops were withstanding these hardships and combat in excellent fashion.

Bombs were dropped upon a heavy force of tribesmen fighting under Sultan Teru in the eastern lowlands of the Assua region, the communique said, and they were dispersed. Warriors at Ambabircutan were also bombed.

The southern advance, it was disclosed, included a bombardment of the city of Gorrabai in that region.

WILSON TALKS AT LABOR MEETING

Congressman Riley J. Wilson, speaking before members of the Central Trades and Labor council at the Labor temple Friday night, explained the purpose of recent labor legislation passed by the last congress and the benefits which will result to labor as a result of the new measures.

He stated that congress through the passage of new legislation affecting labor had made great strides towards settling some of the pressing problems with which labor had been confronted and that every effort is being made to meet all reasonable demands which labor may make in the future, pointing out that such a policy is an integral part of the "New Deal" of the administration.

He said the anti-Long candidates would announce individually, that "we will have the best ticket ever presented to the people" and that a state campaign would be vigorously carried on.

Both Dear and Spencer announced for governor on platforms of repeal of the Long dictatorship.

Opposing them are Judge Richard W. Leche, the Allen candidate for governor and James A. Noe, lieutenant-governor under Long who was left off the Long-Allen campaign ticket.

Congressman John N. Sandlin, of Minden, is opposing Allen J. Ellender, speaker of the state house of representatives for the senate seat left by Long. The former is anti-Long and the latter is endorsed by the Allen forces.

The Democratic state central committee, which met during the week ended Governor Allen is chairman and turned down a suggestion for the naming of election commissioners by the candidates instead of by the parish boards of election supervisors which the governor controls.

Today Oscar R. Whildens, chairman of the steering committee of the Square Deal (anti-Long) association, issued a statement in which he told the voters that the candidates would have equal representation at the polls.

The line infantrymen follow and then come the subsistence units and munitions squadrons.

The Italians surprised the Ethiopians by making an aerial reconnaissance from the rear. A squadron of the latest type of planes, capable of a speed of more than 200 miles per hour, flew southward from Italian Dancalia and then out through Plano del Sale salt plain—into Ethiopia.

Thus they were able to approach the Ethiopian forces from the rear and gather valuable information.

The planes dropped tens of thousands of pamphlets printed in Amharic informing the Ethiopian civil population of the Italian advance and warning the natives to submit to the Italian troops.

Native troops have thus far led the advance for the Italian forces, because Italian officers said they believed the Ethiopian population would submit more readily to troops of their own color.

As the right and left columns moved forward today under General Mervino and General Sontino they sent in advance battalions of natives.

The central column was composed entirely of native troops.

Many village priests carrying crosses led the civilian population from tiny native settlements to meet the advancing Italians. When the troops approached closely, the priests lowered their crosses to the ground as a sign of submission.

TRANSIENT BUREAU INMATES TAKEN TO CAMP BEAUREGARD

Liquidation of the Monroe bureau of transients located at Plum street is about completed, according to Walter Craddock, district director, who stated Saturday that all unattached men with the exception of four, have been transferred to the WPA camp at Camp Beauregard near Alexandria.

Of the 72 families which were at the bureau rolls prior to the order to liquidate, only 35 are now at the bureau, the rest having been sent to their respective homes. Ten of these are classified as unemployables and efforts to establish legal residence in each case is being made so that they may be sent home. The rest will be transferred to the FERA, and this work is expected to be completed during the month of October.

The kitchen at Plum street has been closed since October 2 and only the administration offices are now open, Mr. Craddock declared.

If all the spores of one giant puff-ball produced new puff-balls, the earth would not be able to hold them all. One was found to contain 7,000,000,000,000 spores, each capable of reproduction.

Gly-Cas Enables Him To Enjoy Life As Others

Mr. Campbell, 79, Finds New Remedy Just What He Should Have Had Years Before: Stomach, Kidneys Regulated, Sleeps Good, Dizziness Ended—Like New Again.

"Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have ever found that would give the exact results that were claimed for it," said Mr. W. H. Campbell, age 79, 3008 Dick Taylor street, Monroe, respected local gentleman recently in talking with the Gly-Cas man who is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new medical discovery.

"Gly-Cas gives the desired results," said Mr. Campbell, "I cannot remember the number of years that I had been troubled with constipation, my system became clogged with poisons and high blood pressure alarmed me. My heart became involved with gases in my stomach. Indigestion was terrible, dizzy spells were entirely too frequent and had to continually be careful of my diet. Often had attacks of shortness of breath until I thought I would surely smother to death. I began to have all kinds of trouble with my kidneys and bladder, couldn't control back pains and my sleep was disturbed every night. Each morning I was worn-out, had no energy to do anything it seemed. I became alarmed over my condition for regardless of how much money I spent on my case or what I did I could not find anything to help me. When I began to hear so much praise for this new Gly-Cas and learned of the wonderful results it had given so many people here, I decided it surely was different and I decided it was a trial in my own case.

"Little did I realize any medicine could be as remarkable as this new remedy, Gly-Cas, has been in my case," continued Mr. Campbell, "My bowels were regulated almost at once and in a most natural way. Soon I began to eat the foods I had had to deny myself for years and with no ill effects afterwards. I have not had a single attack of indigestion, gas or dizziness since I began Gly-Cas. Even my kidneys have been regulated until I can get a good nights sleep. I feel better than I have in many years and have more energy and strength to enjoy life as others once more. Too much praise cannot be given Gly-Cas for it actually accomplishes what sufferers had hoped for for many years."

The Gly-Cas man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this valuable new remedy.

Who Did It?

The terrific hurricane which recently swept the Florida keys, destroying much property and many human lives, has been termed widely, "an act of God."

Did God create that hurricane and direct its course? Does God send floods and earthquakes to assail human beings? That is a question that many persons have tried to answer, with a more or less distorted idea of cause and effect.

Do destructive winds, floods and earthquakes strike only where human beings are living—and where the most wicked human beings are living? The evidence is that more often than otherwise those disturbances occur where they harm mankind.

In reaching a conviction regarding the matter, we may well distinguish between the performances of nature and the acts of the Almighty.

This earth was created to perform certain functions. Certain natural, immutable laws govern this globe permanently so those functions may be carried out. The machinery has been set going. It is still going.

If you get tangled up with a corn sheller and get hurt, can your injury be blamed on the manufacturer of the corn sheller? Did he do what was done to you? If a man builds a house for his family and a member of that family falls off the roof or out of a window and gets killed, should the rest of the family declare, "He was killed by an act of Papa?"

This earth could not sustain human life as human life is sustained now but for the existing natural laws. Those laws must work, no matter whom they hurt occasionally, in order that the affairs of the earth may continue.

Instead of being concerned over the occasional disturbances that bring disaster to human kind, let us rather stand in awe and adoration of the providence which keeps the world moving in its course with so few upheavals.

Many of the losses suffered by mankind from nature's disturbances are the fault of mankind itself. Why should we persist in living where natural catastrophes are known to occur and can not be guarded against? Why live in a dangerous earthquake zone or under the shadow of a threatening volcano or in a notorious hurricane area?

"Your mama should have had better sense than to build her nest here," observed a farmer as he compassionately surveyed the fledglings his reaper had mutilated.

It might be reasonably contended that the Florida keys in their present stage of formation were never intended for do not harm mankind.

Most of the floods which sweep men to death and destruction are the direct result of the ignorance and indifference of men—the ruthless cutting down of forests where Nature intended forests to be.

The practice of blaming God for natural catastrophes is a hangover from the days when everything was attributed to God. If a man stubbed his toe and fell down, God did it. If a person got hard boiled, God hardened his heart. God sent the plagues—which were the result of dirt. And He sent the famines—which were the result of laziness and simple foresight.

Natural calamities might better be termed "acts of Nature," to which could sometimes be added "and man's lack of sense."

THAT, ANYHOW

As well as being pointless, it would be impossible to attempt to set forth all the obstacles encountered by General Johnson as administrator of works projects in New York City. In his own incomparable manner, the general has battled valiantly with the problems which have arisen in the task of getting workers transferred from the relief rolls to jobs that were waiting for them and hence to the government pay rolls. The general has had his own misgivings about the enterprise and has wondered where the workers would be when the improvised jobs had run out.

Recently, however, the able and esteemed park commissioner of the city, Mr. Moses, has found himself unable to hold in any longer and charges the general's administration with "stupid, arrogant and arbitrary action" in "dumping" 11,000 unsupervised workers on park projects, with the result that "hundreds of men have been lying around in the parks, doing absolutely nothing except jeering at workers, shooting craps, drinking and generally creating a menace to the public."

Nevertheless the general has one defense, and it is formidable. It is implied in his statement in another connection that the pay roll machinery of his section of the works progress administration is functioning satisfactorily. The money is going out. To that extent the general has been successful.

Mr. Hopkins might well be reminded that you can't prime a pump by using a medicine dropper.

Senator Borah, to put it mildly, is receptive. Though aged 70, he has young ideas.

SCIENCE AND THE GARDEN

(A scientist has discovered that plants of several varieties will flourish better if fed with manganese and boron.)

If you possess expensive plants
That you set special store on,
They'll be kept free from slugs and ants
By manganese and boron.
Without these chemicals, I'm told,
The shrubs you love and cherish,
Their little buds will swiftly fold
And then they'll shortly perish,
And not a single growing spray
Will live to see another day.

All plants are choosy with their fare,
Beyond the slightest question,
If they're not fed with proper care,
They'll die of indigestion.
Their favorite diet must be found
To give them every season,
Or they'll be stricken to the ground
And you will know the reason.
But then you'll find it is too late—
They can't evade a dreadful fate.

I know no more of growing flowers
Than does the average moron,
I don't know how to feed bright bowers
With manganese and boron;
But I possess a large back yard
And there I labor yearly
To raise up blooms which I regard
And cherish very dearly.
And not a chemist that I know
Puts on a better flower show.

Confidence From Europe

BY BRUCE CATTON

If the returning of the million-dollar gate to the prize-fighting racket made it seem as if happy days were here again, with the voice of the turtle being heard in the land once more, the latest news about gold shipments has a similar sound.

Transatlantic liners are bringing the metal to America once more, even as in the good old days before the crash. Latest estimates are that fully a billion dollars' worth will be brought in before the trend changes. If so, we shall have the distinction of holding around $10,000,000,000 in hard metal in our vaults, with no citizen permitted to get so much as a peek at it.

What the effect of all this may be something for the economists to worry over. It is what has caused this movement that is interesting.

Europe is sending over gold simply because foreign investors have a relatively greater confidence in the future of this country than they have in their own.

The threat of war, never very far removed from Europe, is right down around the houseposts these days. The rhythmic crash of the feet of marching men on the pavement may have a sweet sound to the militarists and the dictators, but it is the sort of thing that scares an investor out of his wits.

In addition, Europe's various dictators have yet to prove that they know just what to put in baby's bottle to promote growth and health. Such men as Hitler and Mussolini came to power as a result of agonizing economic crises, but they are not miracle workers.

Putting parliament in jail and ruling the nation through the voice of one man may save a lot of lost motion, but it does not automatically end unemployment and balance budgets.

By way of contrast, over on this side of the Atlantic there is a great nation which seems as little likely to go to war as any country on earth—and which stands the best chance of all of coming out of it comparatively unscathed if war does develop.

It is also a democracy, with a form of government firmly established in the affections of the people; and whatever may be said about the faults of democracy these days, a blind man could see that the American government has a greater stability than the jerry-built dictatorships of Europe.

Added up, this simply means that European investors see in America the one nation that can look to the future with some measure of confidence.

In the face of that, some of our own frantic fears look rather silly. Can't we at least have as much confidence in our own future as Europe has?

SO THEY SAY

Labor has, I think, been given a new charter. A capitalist government has shown that it "cares." The third phase of the New Deal, as I see it, will be not social security, but profit security.—Major L. L. B. Angus, British economist.

The inalienable and sacred rights of human personality are indeed regarded as trivial when the bones of 6,000,000 men can be strewn across the fields for a cause which is still unknown.—Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen, Catholic university.

Corporations are frequently regarded as inhuman legalistic creations. In all their affairs, however, they constantly deal with human beings and respond to the sum total of human needs.—Donaldson Brown, motor executive.

New York is the sort of town where one can run around and accomplish very little.—Harry Woodburn Chase, chancellor, New York university.

There is neutrality when wheat goes to $2 a bushel and cotton to 30 cents a pound?—Bernard M. Baruch, questioned about neutrality laws.

We have come to realize that war is the worst possible enemy of prosperous business.—Herbert S. Houston, newspaper syndicate head.

BARBS

Several million votes undoubtedly await the first candidate whose slogan promises a pork chop in every pot.

A New York woman's attorney says he is "behind her in everything she does." Must be a dare-devil if his claim applies on the highway.

"Ohio farmer finds horse in his well." Whoever was testing that old proverb must have been a determined fellow.

"Hoover asks for liberty." Just as we feared; to keep him silent, G. O. P. leaders have him locked up.

To finance its war, Italy, according to authorities, may have to melt down its gold plate. Then, of course, they can fall back upon Mussolini's brass.

TODAY'S BIBLE THOUGHT

And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive.—St. Matthew 21:22.

Faith is the eye that sees Him, the hand that clings to Him, the receiving power that appropriates Him.—Woodbridge.

New Deal in Washington

By Willis Thornton
WASHINGTON.—With war headlines screaming at them every day, the peace societies are redoubling their efforts.

The campaign of the National Council for the Prevention of War to raise a million dollars to propagate peace is only one of several. There is World Peaceways, for instance, whose work is looking up these perilous days.

People who ignore peace work for years will suddenly step up to the bat with a check when the troops are about ready to march.

There are two interesting developments in the peace movement, however. One is the way the churches are taking it up, particularly the evangelical denominations, which used to be hot for prohibition.

By Armistice day, the Methodist, Baptist, Congregational, and Christian churches will have completed a member-by-member canvass to determine the attitude of their members toward war under varying circumstances.

The energy that used to go into fighting the demon rum is now being turned against Mars, and the Anti-Saloon league's loss is the pacifist societies' gain.

The other development is the fact that the National Council for the Prevention of War is preparing to go direct to town in the coming congressional elections, organizing by precinct, ward, and district to defeat candidates who won't subscribe to their peace program. This is an old Anti-Saloon league technique right back again, and presents one more jitter for candidates for congress.

Need A Wayne Wheeler

This "peace action" program is so reminiscent of the days when Wayne Wheeler had half of congress jumping through his hoop that one wonders whether just such a forceful leader may arise in the interests of peace.

The youthful Senator Holt is about to stump the country for peace, and arrangements are being made to stage demonstrations next spring just before the party conventions that can hardly fail to influence the party platforms that will be in the making then.

It's Tough Sledding

Educating for peace is like all educating—discouraging work at times. The Quaker Frederick J. Libby of the NCPW ran smack into this one during a poll being taken at the Rochester State fair recently.

The question was "Shall the United States join the League of Nations on terms of the Pope resolution, which provides that we shall not use armed force to support the league?" The author of this plan is, of course, Senator Pope of Idaho, currently in Europe sounding off after each day's crisis.

Two questionaire-answers had evidently never heard of the senator. One answered, "No, I won't vote. I don't see any reason for bringing the Pope into this." The other opined, "I think the Pope's judgment is very good."

Baker Still Adroit

Newton D. Baker has lost neither his adroitness nor his courtliness since retiring from public office. At a recent meeting here of a commission of the American Council on Education to study and make recommendations on a better program for youth, Baker was approached by reporters for a statement.

He demurred, protesting, "If you want to talk to someone really distinguished, you'd better talk to Mrs. Fisher."

He referred to Dorothy Canfield Fisher, author of "The Bent Twig," "The Brimming Cup," and many other novels, who is the latest literary hit to turn up in public service by asserting that she is willing to give all her time to the work of this commission if necessary.

Astor Set For Reward

Vincent Astor, famous as the yacht-owning friend of President Roosevelt, is again rumored in line for his reward in the form of a high-diplomatic post. August set an all-time record for visitors to Washington estimated at 312,031, with not one special attraction to draw them. The Friday the 13th jinx is still gravely regarded in some circles. . . . The colored Elks had chartered a steamship on that date at Alexandria for an annual excursion. . . . Not until the boat stood at the wharf ready for passengers was the date noticed on the tickets. . . . and not one passenger would take a chance; the boat left empty.

CONFEDERATES TO MEET AT CAPITAL

Calling on all Confederate veterans of the war which he declared now numbered less than two hundred, Major-General W. E. T. Ogletree, commanding the Louisiana division of the U. S. C. V. in a general order, issued from New Orleans Saturday, urged all veterans to attend the annual state reunion which is to be held at Baton Rouge on October 17 and 18.

All camps in good standing were requested to elect two delegates and two alternates and to select their names as soon as elected to Mrs. W. B. Kernan, assistant adjutant general, at 1528 Lowerline street, New Orleans.

Invitations to attend the reunion were extended to the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the chapters of the Children of the Confederacy, Sons of Confederate Veterans and all Spanish war and World War veterans.

Twins Born To Grandmother
Believed to be the youngest grandmother in Britain, Mrs. Dorothy Lewis, aged 38, of London, has just presented her husband with twins. Mrs. Lewis is now the mother of 11 children. All are healthy. Her eldest child, Irene, aged 21, presented her with her only grandchild two years ago. "Ronald," Mrs. Lewis's youngest, was born about the same time as my daughter, Catherine," Mrs. Lewis said. "Irene had to go out to work soon after Ronald's birth, so I fed him with Catherine."

Mrs. Lewis probably is Britain's oldest mother of twins. And Catherine is actually Ronald's aunt.

TUESDAY: THE CHIMNEYLESS TOWN.
(Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Lights Of New York

By Paul Harrison

NEW YORK.—All around the town:

Not all the chorus girls go straight home after their late hours in the night clubs. About a hundred pretty youngsters, with makeup scrubbed from their faces, can be found at early mass at St. Paul's.

Some of the larger Jewish restaurants of the lower East Side have installed floor shows. But the chorus girls, though buxom, are all Christians. Men customers prefer them, so I'm told, "because every Jewish girl is looking always to get married."

A man has been plodding up and down Broadway carrying a sign which signs advertising for news of a Ruth Neidman, who disappeared a year ago. Hired by the family, he is to visit other large cities if she isn't found here.

Sidewalk artists have moved in on the town and are sketching portraits for 25 cents, with customers standing in line. . . . Americans now believe wine or brandy is really old unless the bottles are covered with a thick layer of dust. So dealers oblige by spraying on a preparation that looks like dust, even though the contents are genuine. . . . At 81 Queen street was the town's first musical instrument shop. It was conducted by the original John Jacob Astor, in the home of his mother-in-law, and they all lived there in harmony.

Odd Autographs

What's in a name: There's a steeplejack named O. N. High (though he added the middle initial just for the effect). A. K. Hall is not a liquor store proprietor, but an aviator. However, an I. Liquorman runs a bar and grill. And there's a realtor named Sellit, a dentist named Filler, and a tailor who calls himself I. Needle. The street system here is supposed to be simple, with avenues running north and south, streets east and west. Yet, there are a good many exceptions to disprove the rule. Greenwich Village is a maze of confusion, with Fourth street crossing Tenth street, and so on. And Pearl street begins and ends on Broadway, meanwhile running in three directions.

Brave Effort

An Indian is making plans to try to reclaim the upper part of Manhattan Island for his people. Says that section never was included in the original $24 transaction. He probably won't get it, but the way taxes and real estate prices are now, he's taking an awful risk.

Second avenue: Solemn, fat Italians bowling on the cinder lot at Houston street. . . . Walters in Feinbaum's wearing neither ties nor shirts. . . . Horseshoe pitchers in a neighboring lot. . . . An old man playing a flute, bestowing blessings for pennies, yet frequently stopping to pull at a bottle of expensive brandy. . . . Your weight and height, all for a penny. The scale men rejoice on days when they make 25 cents. . . . Signs in the windows: "Attend Monster Anti-Nazi Demonstration."

Chinatown: Soup, beans, pork, vegetables, bread, coffee—10 cents, at the Sun Rise restaurant. . . . On Doyers street, a cellar cafe conducted by one Bamboo, his American wife, son, James and nephew Hotcha. "Cha" means tea in Chinese, so the lad is tickled by the double meaning. . . . Bamboo is pleased with his son and his American education. "Stand here and speak the piece," he orders proudly, James, not a bit abashed, stands and speaks: "Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. . . .

Pulling Wires

New racket reported: Swindlers watch the New York newspapers for stories of elopements. Assuming that many surprise newlyweds tell no one of their honeymoon plans, they dispatch frantic honeymoon telegrams to the families requesting money. The wires come from likely honeymoon spots and the relatives, excited and off guard, often respond without insisting on adequate identification.

Two large swastikas decorate the smokestacks of the imposing Cornell Medical center—an institution largely built by Jewish money. . . . For excitement, a chauffeur named William Fuchs tells me, you can't beat taxi drivers. In his cab, usually parked on Broadway, there have been two attempted murders, one birth, one natural death—and once he got $350 for hauling big Mohammedans all the way to Chicago.

LIGGETT BUILDING NEARS COMPLETION

Remodeling work which is being done for the Liggett Drug company of New York city on the building located at 238 DeSard street, is nearing completion. The property is owned by the Nelson estate and has been leased through F. J. Zukaz and company, Shreveport realtors, to the Liggett Drug company for a period of ten years.

Improvements being made are under the supervision of W. W. Salter, and consist of the complete remodeling of the building with plate glass show windows on the front and sides, black cararra glass in the bulkheads and the metal to be of aluminum alloy, aluminite finish. The floor will be covered with a composition tile with marble finish. The fixtures consist of a 30-foot soda fountain and the latest style show cases, shelves tables and counters, will be of modernistic type finished with birch trim. Mr. Zukaz, who handled the transaction for the Liggett Drug company, stated that this store will be one of the most complete and most modern drug stores that Liggett has installed in the south. The Liggett Drug company operate 500 stores in the United States and in picking Monroe as an additional city for a large chain, the company feels that the people of Monroe would appreciate the proper kind of store that is being installed, it was stated. The store will be completed about November 1, and open for business on that day.

Max King Declares He Committed Crime For Which Others Are Paying

Max King, 24, who pleaded guilty in the district court here Wednesday to a charge of embezzling an automobile owned by the 404 Taxicab company of Monroe, has told members of the sheriff's department that he killed a man while perpetrating, with an accomplice, a robbery of a filling station at Texoka, Kan., in the latter part of September, 1931. The sheriff's department was inclined to scut the story.

It is considered probable that King was one of two robbers who committed the filling station hold-up, but the case is complicated by the fact that the other robber, Roy McDaniels, is now serving a life sentence in the Kansas state industrial reformatory for the murder, and the fact that another man, held in the Tennessee state penitentiary has declared that he was one of the robbers of the filling station and was the one who committed the murder.

In the face of these conflicting "confessions," with positive information revealing that only two robbers committed the hold-up, the sheriff's department here plans to remove

King from the parish jail soon to the Louisiana state penitentiary, where he was sentenced to serve from five to fifteen years for embezzling the taxicab. Other authorities, in the meantime, will decide what to do about the murder "confession."

In addition to the murder "confession" to be investigated by other authorities, federal agents are expected to make an investigation for the purpose of lodging a white slave charge against King, who was said to have taken a woman who was not his wife from here to Brookhaven, Miss., making the trip in the stolen taxicab. King was arrested by Brookhaven authorities and returned here after extradition papers were secured by the local sheriff's department.

Another charge of embezzling an automobile also may be filed against King. The sheriff's department said he has admitted stealing an automobile from a dealer at Sikeston, Mo., and driving the car to Louisiana, where he sold it to a relative in Richland parish for $20. This was in July of this year. King was a salesman for the dealer whose car he admitted embezzling.

On October 29, 1931, King was sentenced at Wichita to serve from 5 to 15 years in the Kansas state industrial reformatory for larceny of an automobile. At that time a month had elapsed since the filling station robbery and murder.

King said he had his own car when the filling station hold-up and the attendant killed. With a woman friend, he said he went to Wichita. The woman disappeared with his car, and it was then that he committed the automobile theft for which he was convicted and sentenced, he said. He was paroled from the penitentiary September 4, 1934.

Bristol lies on the border of Tennessee and Virginia. State street is the dividing line of the states. Virginia is wet, Tennessee dry; tax rates are higher in one state than in the other; traffic regulations and Sunday laws are different; and all tend to make it a complicated city.

SUREBEST BREAD IN NEW WRAPPER

Brogan Says Interest Shown By Public In Design Is Gratifying

A new design in the wrapper enclosing Surebest bread has found a strong appeal among the bread-buyers of the city, it was stated Saturday by C. P. Brogan of the Surebest Bakeries, Inc., who said the interest shown by the public has been extremely gratifying.

"Of course," said Mr. Brogan, "it is one thing to have a new wrapper design, and another thing to have the quality inside to live up to the suggestion of the wrapper. We are proud to know that our customers are finding the highest satisfaction in the product inside the wrapper as well as in the cover of the bread. The wrapper is a protection of the product, and simply emphasizes the good qualities of the bread inside. Many new customers have come to learn that Surebest lives up to its name, not alone in the wrapper but in the superior qualities of the bread."

Surebest Bakery, Inc., is owned and operated by C. P. Brogan, J. Lacara, and A. P. Colvin, who have announced new improvements at the bakery plant, 100 South Fifth street. A retail department has been added, and all kinds of cookies and bread sweets are being manufactured in response to a demand for this retail service. A day crew has been added to the personnel and orders for birthday cakes and special bakery goods are being taken. Hot buttered biscuits are made at 11:30 each morning. In a few days Surebest salt rising bread will be put on the market.

"During the winter months," Mr. Brogan said, "there is nothing so important for the health of children as Surebest buttered toast. It should be served every morning."

as to sharing the wealth—and not a rotating dollar in sight to date. Let us live in hopes if we die in despair. My plan is feasible and fair: Seven Dollars a day as Commissioner of Streets and Parks, four dollars a day for humanity, down but not out. This is a vegetarian proposition for both of us—Beef Steaks, Breakfast Bacon and Bank Rolls in our dreams. I am not so hot financially, having lost heavily, for a lightweight, in Building and Loan Stock, canceled life insurance, and town lots covered with weeds—and taxes—and in competition with wholesale groceries and lumber yards in the roofing business.

Seven Dollars a day and not a dime of capital invested looks like an oasis and the fountain of life in the middle of the desert of depression.

I am not partial to commission form of government, but if three good heads can run the City Government economically and successfully, why not elect me as one of them. Efficiency is the big word. Any one is more than welcome to toss their hats into this political ring with mine and if a more charitable, just and fair proposition is offered, then I am going to support and vote for you.

I pay no money and promise no jobs before being elected—win, lose or draw—your vote will be appreciated more than the job. I am in favor of a five-cent rate on electric current to rich and poor alike. I would not tax you with a high rate because you were not able to buy an electric refrigerator. In some towns privately operated companies are giving a four-cent rate. Why should a municipally owned plant not be able to operate at a five-cent rate? I would like a fighting chance to prove I am game in behalf of old age, the widows and the under dog. $3,481.61 blowed for the upkeep of a one gallus zoo in 1935. $2,899.30 blowed for the same monkey show in the year 1934. Taking 1934 for an average year, in 15 years we have $43,497.00 monkey board bill. We also have a park in the southeast corner of nowhere which cost $41,142.00 with 6% interest—a conservative figure of $84,639.00 and not a single brick laid in the Charity Hospital to date—plenty of monkey money, but nothing for the poor. There have been more bear, deer, elk, mountain lion and buffalos dead and buried than there is alive in the zoo today. These birds and beasts have never been tried before any judge or jury—have committed no crime. Why is it that birds are born with wings? Why is it the wealthy do not build their mansions near this Wild Wood Bullfrog Natatorium, Song Bird Sanctuary in the southeast corner of nowhere?

It would have been more economical to have given every voter a complimentary ticket to Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Combined Circus and Menagerie, viewing a much larger collection of animals, to say nothing about a first class circus and a red glass of lemonade.

Talk is cheap; a man's word is as good as his bond. If elected, I propose and will furnish a gilt-edged surety bond backing all my assertions. Elderly men who have not had a day's work in the year will distribute my circulars about town.

Silver threads among the gold—Grandmother, dear, it is for thee I sigh when you get old. A pension for the aged—a lump of sugar for the old fire fighting hose, as to standing hitched, I am Yours truly,

GASTON L. PORTERIE

TO THE PEOPLE OF LOUISIANA

During the last four years there were numerous revenue laws passed to effect a shift in the burden of taxation from real estate to other sources. Nearly every one of these laws were tested in the courts. Most of these laws were drafted by the Attorney General and his assistants.

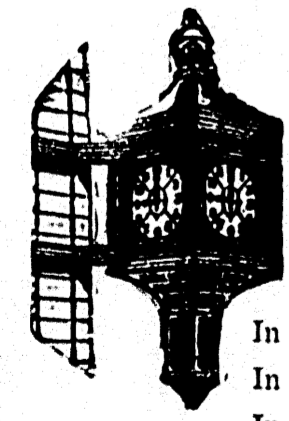

Never before was there more co-ordination between the Attorney General's office and the various Departments of our State.

It is generally admitted that, because of these facts, it fell for us to have more work than ever before in the history of the Attorney General's office. We think that we worked hard and well.

On the record of work done and service given by the Department of Justice during the present term, I offer for re-election as Attorney General of Louisiana.

I am running on the Long Administration State Ticket.

SUN-TAN

CHAPTER XLIII
Jo's face drained of color at sight of Edna Fragonet, and instantly the thought crossed her mind that Fragonet himself would unwittingly appear at any moment now.

"Please don't look so astonished, Miss Darien," Edna Fragonet said, her voice heavy with sarcasm. "Surely you must have expected to see me some time during your stay in Hollywood."

"I'm afraid I didn't," Jo hoped her words were steady. "But now that you're here . . . won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, no. I'll be only a moment, Miss Darien. I want you to know I don't intend to give Fragonet up."

"I had no idea that you did, Mrs. Fragonet."

"Then what's your game?" asked the other woman. "What did you expect to gain by flying to Hollywood with him, by hounding him?"

"Just a moment, Mrs. Fragonet!" Jo interrupted quietly. "I'll answer your questions—and I'll answer them truthfully."

Her voice was steady now, she knew, and it was steel-edged with pride and hatred. "My game in Hollywood is simply to earn an honest living. My reason for coming in your husband's plane was to save the fare, I suppose. And because he invited me. As for hounding Peter Fragonet, I'd be eternally grateful if you'd take him to Europe and keep him there!"

Edna Fragonet's expression did not change. "Suppose," she asked, "that Peter and I stay in Hollywood—where we belong—and you leave?"

"I'll leave Hollywood when I'm ready, Mrs. Fragonet, and I don't believe you or anyone else can make me leave until then."

Fragonet's wife was silent a moment. Then she advanced toward Jo, her fists clenched and her eyes pin-points of anger. "I wouldn't be too sure of that, if I were you. Would it interest you to know that after tomorrow you won't have a job?"

Watching the effect of this question, the woman relaxed, smiling. "And jobs are hard to find here. I think you'll decide you'd best go home."

At first Jo could hardly believe what she had heard, but as she gazed at the cold, venomous glance of the other woman she knew that Edna Fragonet would attempt just what she had promised.

"What if Maisie refuses to fire me?" Jo asked slowly.

"I hardly think she'll be able to afford not to, Miss Darien. But if she wants to be a fool and you attempt to stay on here, I'll raise a row that will be heard from here to New York!"

"But—but that wouldn't be fair to Boleson, and it would ruin your husband," Jo protested.

The other nodded quickly. "You pretend not to be interested in Fragonet—but why do you want to be so sure his career isn't spoiled?"

Jo was about to answer when she heard the front doorbell, and before

she could move from the spot she saw the landlady hurrying past the door on the way to answer it. With a frightened glance at Edna Fragonet, Jo heard Peter's booming voice ask, "Is Miss Darien at home?"

He stopped dead still in the doorway; then, mastering himself as he might for a scene before the camera, he came into the room and walked straight toward his wife.

"What's all this, Edna? Making trouble again?"

Her answer was cold and lifeless, but Jo sensed that there was hurt in it, too. She sensed that Edna Fragonet loved this man in her frigid, possessive way and that she would fight senselessly for him until she died.

"Suppose you explain to me, Peter, you and Miss Darien here."

"There's nothing to explain," Fragonet said quietly. "You've been yelling divorce until my ears are ringing. And I want to marry Jo." His lips curled in a smile that froze Jo's heart. Here was a Fragonet she had never seen.

His wife turned swiftly to Jo. "You hear? You deny that?"

"Wait!" It was almost a scream, that single word crowding from Jo's nerve-tightened throat. "I heard it. I heard what he said—but will you hear what I'm going to say?"

She faced them both, holding to a chair, holding because she was weak with anger now. "I—I think you're both fools, and I never want to see you or hear your names again as long as I live! I've had nothing but trouble since the day you came to Crest Lake."

She turned on Fragonet. "Why do you think that when you love a woman it turns something on inside her, like-like an electric light? What makes you think that all you have to do is say, 'I love you and want to marry you,' and I'll jump at the chance? It must be because you always win in the pictures you make, or maybe it's because of all the foolish letters you get, or what crazy women say when they see you in public?"

"Jo!" Fragonet raised a protesting hand.

"I'm not going to stop until I'm finished. This is what I planned to say to you tonight, and I'm glad your wife is here to hear me say it . . ."

Jo stopped, breathless, then plunged on again. "I did like you at first—but I never told you I loved you, I never told you that, no matter how you tried to make me believe I did. I liked you at first because . . . because once there must have been something about you that was honest and decent. That must be what they see on the screen, the part of you I saw—before I really knew you."

Mrs. Fragonet moved toward the door. "I see no reason to listen to ravings like this," she said.

But Jo slid between her and the door, tossed back her hair with a nervous hand. "Maybe there's no reason to listen, but you're going to. I want you to get this straight, once and for all—I don't want your husband, and I never did!"

Mrs. Fragonet's smile was cold, unbelieveable. "Really," she said, "you're quite a little actress. I'm surprised you haven't tried the studios," with that she swept past Jo and out of the room.

Fragonet stood looking at Jo, his mouth almost comically agape. "You—you really feel that way, Jo?" he asked slowly.

Jo nodded. "That's the way I feel. And I want you to go, please . . . and don't bother me any more . . . ever."

Dully she heard the outer door slam. Then she stumbled weakly into the half-lighted hall, felt her way along the wall and up the stairway to her room.

Next morning Maisie Lester was at the bungalow almost before Jo was out of bed.

"Say, kid," Maisie greeted her, trying to hide a troubled countenance with one of her wide smiles, "when I hired you I didn't know you wrecked homes in high places. Lolita did tell me that Fragonet was crazy about you and had been pestering you. But last night I was wanked out of my downy couch by a telephone call from Mrs. Fragonet, and—"

"I know, Maisie. She wants you to fire me."

"That's the dope, all right."

Jo looked at Maisie questioning. "Do you have to do what she says?"

"Do what she says? Of course I don't! I own my place and I'll run it the way I like. Only—"

"Only what, Maisie?"

"Well . . . she can make it tough for me, all right. And she can make it to look hard at her slippers. 'Maybe we ought to hoist the white flag, Maisie.'"

Maisie sat beside Jo on the edge of the bed, put a plump arm around her shoulders. "If you say we fight, then it's okay with me, Jo. If you can stand all the fireworks, I can stand to lose a little business."

Jo shook her head. "That isn't all there is to it, Maisie. If she gets so wildly jealous that she raises a row it'll mean bad publicity for Atlas. It'd ruin Fragonet and hurt Boleson—and it might hurt some of the people who have anything at all to do with Fragonet's pictures. And I hate messes. Maisie, I've had enough of them this summer." She turned to her staunch employer. "I know you don't like to fire me, Maisie—so I'll just quit."

"But what are you going to do? I know darned well you haven't saved any money on what I was paying you."

Jo shrugged. "I wish I knew what I was going to do."

"Well," Maisie told her philosophically. "You can always get a sandwich and a cup of coffee at my place. That's a good thing to remember in Hollywood."

AID IS ASKED IN BOY SCOUT DRIVE

Judge Harper Seeks Volunteers To Assist In Annual Campaign

A call for volunteers willing to devote a portion of a day to the forthcoming one-day drive for Boy Scout funds was issued Saturday by Judge W. M. Harper, president of the Ouachita Valley council of the Boy Scouts of America.

A meeting of the volunteers will be held in the Boy Scout headquarters at the parish courthouse next Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock, to complete plans for the drive, which will be held Oct. 18.

Judge Harper said the invitation to attend the volunteers' meeting is extended to all citizens who are interested in the welfare of boys in this parish, and who "are willing to give a few hours in helping to raise the comparatively small fund that is needed to carry on Boy Scout activities the coming year."

"The Boy Scout organization is of such deep importance to the citizenry of this parish," Judge Harper said, "that every individual concerned for the welfare of our youth should be interested in making this occasion an opportunity of service."

Every person interested in the program is asked to report at the scout office in the courthouse promptly at 7:30 Thursday night.

CROWDER ALLOWS BUT 5 HITS TO BEAT CUBS, 2-1

HARTNETT'S HOME RUN ONLY SOLID HIT OFF VETERAN

'General' Hurls Masterful
Game; Cub Errors
Prove Costly

By Alan Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)
WIGLEY FIELD, CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Alvin Crowder, a baseball veteran who served with the United States army in Siberia, capitalized his experience with wintry weather today to pitch the Detroit Tigers to their third straight victory and within one game of their long-sought goal, the world championship.

The 34-year-old North Carolina right-hander turned back the youthful Chicago Cubs, most of whom were in knee breeches when the "General" was carrying a musket on Asiatic duty, and whipped them, 2 to 1, with a brilliantly executed five-hit performance.

The old warhorse, in achieving his first world series triumph in three starting attempts, not only gave a masterful exhibition, marred only by the home run ball he served to Gabby Hartnett in the second inning, but figured in the scoring of both Detroit runs to make it a glorious day for this captain of the "old guard."

Crowder singled in the third and came home with the tying run on Jo-Jo White's hit and Charley Gehringer's double off Lindstrom's glove. The General had the "breaks" with him in the sixth when his roller was missed by Shortstop Billy Jurges of the Cubs, thereby enabling little "Felix" Clifton, substitute Tiger third baseman, to scamper home with the winning run. Clifton had taken two bases off Augie Galan's miff of a long fly ball and the collapse of the home team's defense proved fatal.

Thus fortified the General swept back the Cubs in their last four attempts to break through the old fellow's crafty pitching defense. Billy Herman doubled in the sixth, to start the home half, but couldn't get beyond third base. Finally, in the ninth, Frank Demaree and Phil Cavarretta hit safely, with one out. The crowd was yelling wildly, Eldon Aukes was warming up briskeys in the Tiger bullpen and it looked as though emergency measures might be necessary.

Manager Mickey Cochrane confined himself to a short conference with the General, however, and saw his confidence justified as Stanley Hack grounded to Billy Rogell and into a double play that ended the last Cub hopes.

The American league champions, now leading three games to one, are overwhelming favorites to carry their come-back to baseball's heights for the first time. They have been beaten four times previously by National league opposition. They can end this battle victoriously tomorrow, if Tom-

Crowder's Victory Cheers His Wife, Ill In Hospital

Tiger Players Think It'll End
Today; Grimm Still Hopeful

By Charles Dunkley
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—(AP)—In a hospital in Winston-Salem, N. C., far from the hue and cry of world series battle, Mrs. Ruth Crowder will be getting much better tonight because her husband, Alvin Crowder, won himself a ball game today.

He came into the Tigers' dressing room, after he had held the Cubs to five hits, beating them, 2 to 1, for his first world series victory in four attempts. And he was so choked up about it, this 34-year-old veteran down near the end of his career, that he almost cried.

His teammates clustered around him, shaking his hand, shouting, slapping his back, and he blinked rapidly, grinning all the time, but he couldn't talk. One of them knew why in all the years "the General" has been pitching important baseball he never showed emotion like this.

And so the teammate explained. "His wife is in the hospital in Winston-Salem, and she's been very sick. The doctors told him that if he won his game, it would help her a great deal to get well. Hell, I'd like to see the guy bust right out crying. He'd feel better and nobody'd mind."

All around the half dazed Crowder in the swirling hilarity of the world series rest of the Tigers, clumped together, getting ready right now to spend the lion's share of the world series money. Already they can feel it jingling in their pockets—that is all but Mickey Cochrane, a bulldog of a man who believes nothing until after it has happened.

Cochrane pulled off his leather shin guards, plopped himself down wearily in his chair. He looked as if he hadn't been to bed for three days. He is a nervous, high-strung, driving ball player who can't relax until an objective is attained.

"Hey, Mike, it'll be all over tomorrow, won't it?" an interviewer yelled at him.

"I don't know," he replied wearily. "Wait until tomorrow and we'll see." The Tigers are not of the same mind. Schoolboy Rowe, standing six feet four inches tall and draping a big bath towel around his lanky frame, was leading a chant.

"Boys, I can't talk. I'm so glad it'll be all over tomorrow. Just one more game—that's all."

Cochrane, puffing a cigar, praised the pitching performance of Crowder, declaring he hurled the best game of the series.

"They both pitched great ball," said Grimm. "It was one of those games that either team could have won. They got the breaks and we didn't. Crowder pitched a smart game all the way through. He had a good curve ball and used his head in pitching to our hitters."

MANY FUMBLES MARK VICTORY OF PLAINSMEN

Early Lead; Tulane
Outplayed

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—A fighting band of Auburn Plainsmen gave Tulane's Green Wave a sound trouncing here today 10 to 0 and broke up what the fans had believed was another conference winner.

It was not a victory of accident. The Plainsmen just outplayed Tulane in each branch of the game. It smashed the famous Wave running attack, smothered the air attack and then turned around and pounded the life out of the line.

The Plainsmen took the jump in the first minute of play and stood the 18,000 spectators on their feet and held them there during most of the game. They were a constant threat and Tulane's best efforts looked feeble before the flashy, charging Alabamians.

Billy Hitchcock, brother of the famous Jimmy of other years, took the ball two minutes after the game opened and rushed the ball, literally surrounded by his own men, to the four yard line when the fast Fred Priesser, Tulane end, rushed up from behind, broke through the interference and stopped Hitchcock four yards from a touchdown. On the next play Kilgore fumbled the ball and Captain Barney Mintz recovered it on the one yard line.

Apparently that was the cue for the game as Auburn had the ball three other times around the ten yard line and couldn't carry it over. Twice Tulane did likewise but lacked the push to cross the goal.

In the second quarter, Auburn despaired of carrying the ball over and from the 27 yard line, Haygood Patterson, of Montgomery, left tackle, kicked a field goal from an angle, making the score three to nothing one minute before the half ended.

After the half Tulane came out with fire in their eyes and opened a vicious, power attack through the line. Mintz and John Andrews, substitute fullback, carried the ball in alternate line plunges down the field, driving for a touchdown. But on the four yard line, Douglas Johnson, left halfback, missed first down and the ball went over.

The fourth quarter may be called the quarter of fumbles, pines against Tulane and six against Auburn. Both teams dropped the ball on kicks and passes and from hard tackling but Auburn broke through the scramble and scored a touchdown.

Dick Watson, substitute for Johnson, fumbled a lateral from Andrews on Tulane's 32 yard line and Wesley Galan, lf, of Auburn, recovered. Subbing for McCroskey, recovered. Joe Bob Mitchell, Alexandria City, Ala., subbing for Hitchcock, stepped back to Tulane's 40 yard line and hurled a high pass to Joe Eaves, subbing for Morris at right end, who was standing in the end zone. He caught the ball as a Tulane man was running for a touchdown.

Klein, Tulane left tackle, kicked the extra point and the scoring was over.

Tulane made a desperate effort in the last half of the fourth but the game ended with the ball in mid-field.

The Tulane stands stood stunned. They had believed to the end that Tulane would pull some spectacular plays and win the game; but the Plainsmen rode the Wave down to the bottom of the sea.

CHOUDRANT, La., Oct. 5.—(Special)—Playing heads-up football, the Choudrant Aggies defeated Jonesboro 3 to 0 in a hard fought game at Jonesboro Friday. A large crowd accompanied the team to Jonesboro expecting to see a thrilling battle, and they weren't disappointed.

Most of the play was in mid-field. In the second half Choudrant penetrated deep in Jonesboro territory several times and with three minutes remaining, Rawlins kicked a field goal on fourth down from the 18-yard line.

WINFIELD DEFEATS RUSTON ELEVEN, 13-6

RUSTON, La., Oct. 5.—(Special)—Featuring a running and passing attack built around Tucker, halfback, the Winfield eleven subdued the Ruston team, 13 to 6, here Friday.

Tucker, a dash man from the home of the Winfield Tigers, proved to be the thorn in the side of the local eleven with his sweeping end runs and fake reverses.

The Ruston team, with Reagan and Patterson alternating in carrying the pigskin, advanced the ball to the fifteen yard line at the end of the first quarter and then in the second period Jones, halfback of Ruston, plunged over center on the second play for the first score of the game. Camp failed to convert the extra point.

The Tigers then set to work with a vengeance and with Tucker taking care of the ball-toting honors with his end runs, put over a score near the end of the second quarter. Walsh converted the all-important point to put the Winfield lads in the lead by one point. Late in the third quarter Winfield ran over their second marker to put the game "on ice."

The modern world uses two kinds of time: Sideral time, which is absolutely correct, and solar time, which is not entirely accurate except on or about March 21 of each year. This latter time scale is the one in common usage.

SPORTS Chatter

BY GEO. V. LOFTON

FADING HOPES

That peculiar noise you hear this morning is coming from your next door neighbor, who's poring over the details of his favorite team's defeat Saturday afternoon. It sounds like a drowning man gurgling his last mouthful of water before going down for the third time.

It was all so unexpected. Didn't Bill Whoosis tell him only last Thursday that Ted Cox told Billy's cousin on his mother's side that Tulane had another Rose Bowl team? And didn't the sports editor of the Blankville Bugle pick Tennessee to win the Southeastern championship? And didn't Tuss McLaughry himself tell the newshounds that he had a great team at Brown? What right has Rhode Island to cross Mr. McLaughry like that?

Yea, brethren, it's a cruel world. Imagine a team called the Ft. Hays Teachers beating Kansas State, last year's Big Six conference champions. The little fellows are rising up and smiting their big brothers with reckless abandon. Before long a coach won't know where to look for a set-up.

Anyway, it's good for football, just like the Cubs' victory in the National league stimulated interest in baseball. Even if your would-be champions were knocked off, you must admit that it adds spice to the game and tends to scramble the dope, thus creating renewed enthusiasm, and, incidentally, speeding up the clicking turbines.

And, who knows, maybe somebody from one of these little colleges will make one of the all-America teams this year. They can't keep knocking off the big fellows without gaining recognition some day.

VOICIZING AT THE UMPS

The Cubs, apparently attempting to emulate the Cardinals of 1934, got tough with the Tigers and the umpires right off the bat in the current fight for world baseball supremacy, and they're coming off a poor second in the battle of words.

The Cubs are leading 3 to 1. Bill Lee, a freshman in the majors, is UNIVERSITY, Miss., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Ray Hapes, sophomore halfback, ran 98 yards in the third quarter here this afternoon for the touchdown. He broke the back of the Southwestern university defense in a game which gave Ole Miss its third straight victory, score 33 to 0.

Ray and his 235-pound brother, Clarence, gave the Memphis Lynx their greatest trouble after Ray Rodgers was hurt in the first quarter. Clarence followed Ray's sensational run with a 40-yard pass for another score.

Repeated thrusts through the line for first downs by Bernard, Peters and Rodgers came to naught after the Southwestern line held at the crucial moments, and Bernard's efforts to pass met with failure. In the second Mayes fumbled a punt on the southwestern 11 and Ole Miss recovered. After gains through the line by Bernard, Peters went around left end for score.

Ray Hapes circled ends for repeated gains in the third quarter to put the ball in scoring position, and his brother bucked it over. Then followed Ray's 98-yard run down the middle of the field and Clarence's 40-yard pass for the fourth corner.

Robert Kincaid intercepted Morton's pass on the Southwestern 42 in the fourth period and ran for touchdown.

Southwestern's only show of strength came late in the second when the pass combination, Nicholls to Owens, worked twice for long gains, and late in the final quarter when Nicholls interrupted Grissom's pass on the Southwestern 20-yard line and was downed from behind by Grissom on the Ole Miss 8.

breazing along. A close play comes up, and what does Charley Grimm and his bench riders do but rush out and argue so vehemently that Charley is chucked out of the ball game. Does that help young Mr. Lee maintain his equilibrium? It does not. He blows, and so does the ball game.

Then they continue the argument from the bench, and two more players are given the bum's rush. Among them is Captain Woody English. Comes the eleventh inning and Freddie Lindstrom, pulled in from center field to replace Jurges at short, makes an error that allows the Tigers to score the winning run. If English, cooling his heels under the grandstand by request of the umpires, had been on the premises, he would have been there at short and Lindstrom would have been back out in center field where he belonged.

Surely Manager Grimm had a right to kick on any decision: he thought unjust, but arguing himself and a couple of other players out of the ball game is something else again.

We've been in this business for many years and we've never seen anybody win an argument with an umpire yet. Mr. Grimm should save his fine baritone voice to entertain his youthful charges on those long sleeper jumps next year.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

One Year Ago Today—Detroit took a 3-2 edge in world series games as Tommy Bridges outpitched Dizzy Dean and beat the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1 in St. Louis.

Five Years Ago Today—Jim Maloney was given a decision over Primo Carnera after 10 rounds in Boston. It was Carnera's first setback in this country.

Ten Years Ago Today—Walter Johnson, of Washington, defeated the Pirates, 4-1, in the world series opener in Pittsburgh.

They Call Alvin Crowder "General" and he didn't surrender today. He gave the Cubs just three hits until the ninth inning and then court-martialed them. The "General" once struck Ty Cobb out three times in one afternoon.

The Cubs have to start a three-game winning streak at once—or else. If they lose four in a row, it'll be the second time in history a team has won the first game and then lost the next four. It happened to the Phillies playing the Red Sox in 1915.

Beaten in four world series, the Tigers now stand but a game away from their long sought conquest. The Cubs beat them twice, the Pirates and the Cardinals once. Against the Pirates and Cardinals, they were shut out in the final, deciding game, 8 to 0 and 11 to 0, respectively.

Umpire George Moriarty, who almost broke up the ball game yesterday during his feud with the Cubs, was booed lustily as he came onto the field today. But the game was so close and exciting that the shivering fans promptly forgot all about the fiery Irishman. He had one close play where he umpired at first and he gave the decision to the Cubs.

Jo-Jo White has opened three games by striking out. He opened by whiffing in the first, third and fourth games. Superstitious ball players say that when the first batter up strikes out that his side always wins. The superstition is batting .667 in the series.

Ticket scalpers finally cashed in although their prices weren't out of sight. Almost every seat was occupied today. Some buyers were stuck with third game tickets despite warnings issued by Cub officials.

RICE GAINS 27-TO-7 WIN OVER DUQUESNE

HOUSTON, Tex., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Rice opened its home season here today with a 27 to 7 victory over Duquesne university, before 18,000 spectators. The defending Southwest conference champions were without the services of Bill Wallace, because of an injured knee. "Big Jaw" McCaulley, the other half of the "touchdown twins," scored two of the Owl's four touchdowns.

TARHEELS CRUSH TENNESSEE VOLTS BY 38-13 SCORE

North Carolina Displays Brilliant Running Attack To Win

By Roy E. Hutchens
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 5.—A mighty North Carolina team, displaying a brilliant running and passing attack and taking alert advantage of numerous intercepted passes, rushed over five touchdowns and kicked a field goal to humble the highly-rated Tennessee Volunteers, 38 to 13, here today before 15,000 spectators.

The Vols, among the kingpins of the Southeastern conference the last seven years, were completely routed by the fighting, driving Tar Heels, members of the Southern conference. It was the worst defeat handed a Tennessee eleven since 1925 when the present system of football was introduced by former Coach Bob Neyland and taken over this year by Bill Britton, former assistant to Neyland.

L. S. U. COMES FROM BEHIND TO BEAT TEXAS, 18-6

Read, Crass And Fatherree Lead Attack In Ben-gal Triumph

TIGER STADIUM, BATON ROUGE, La., Oct. 5.—(P)—Yielding the lead at the start, but gathering strength as the game went on, Louisiana State university's versatile and powerful football machine trounced the University of Texas tonight 18-6.

It was a victory of a better team over one that fought to the last ditch for every inch of ground that in the end it had to surrender. The Longhorns scored a touchdown in the first period, but offered little thereafter. L. S. U. also scored in the first, and rang up two more in the last period.

Texas owed its tally to a brilliant K-yard slithering run by Hadlock, a mercury footed substitute for Jurecka, who broke loose and was caught on the Louisiana five-yard line by Reed who downed him from behind. Pitzer went off right tackle over the goal to put the Texans in front.

Slithering back swiftly, the Louisianians jammed the Lone Star grid-ers against their goal line after Crass recovered a fumble on the 35. Crass, slithering Louisiana State fullback, ripped over to score from the one-yard line.

There was no more scoring until nearly the middle of the last quarter. The Tigers of state showing better play in all departments, shoved the Longhorns into the latter's territory and generally kept them there, but the heroic line play of the visitors got the home team from hitting pay dirt, and it looked like a possible tie.

Then the superior power and reserve strength of L. S. U. began to tell and the state backs began to balk and holes and go through them.

L. S. U. drove from the Texas 44 to first down on the 10, with Crass and Reed ploughing, ripping and running.

Texas held there, however, and punted.

Sweeping in the kick, on the Longhorn 45, Reed, stocky and elusive speedster, edged and wormed his way to the goal to give Louisiana a substantial lead of 12 to 6.

Several plays later he nearly did the same thing, running 63 yards on an ankle punt return to the Texas 5. Fighting desperately, the Longhorns held for downs, and punted.

Determined to add another touchdown, Louisiana State hammered back viciously.

A quick kick by Crass put the Texas back on their 4-yard line, and Johnston, hurried as he tried to punt to the rush of Tinsley Louisiana's quick end, got off a hairy pass that Fatherree intercepted and raced 32 yards for a touchdown.

There was little more to the game after that. L. S. U. sent in sophomore reserves, and these held the wearying Texans in midfield.

Cochran Chevigny showed a smart, alert team, well coached in line play, and with two ace speedsters in Hadlock and Jurecka, and a sterling booter in Pitzer. The Texans couldn't get their running attack clicking against the powerful

Four Strong Teams Beaten As Record Crowds See Games

Louisiana forwards and ends, however, after their first quarter offensive, and for most of the game they only scoring hope seemed to be the possibility of shaking loose one of their racy backs.

Hadlock, who might have given the Tigers a lot more trouble had he remained in the game, had to be taken out following his brilliant run in the first because of being slammed down so hard when he was downed.

Louisiana State was credited with 14 first downs to 7 for the Texans.

ALABAMA WHIPS COLONIALS, 39-0

Crimson Tide Takes It Out On George Washington In Easy Win

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—(P)—Loosing all the fury that has been bottled up since its surprise tie with little Howard college a week ago, Alabama's

JOHNSON PLAYS Clifford Johnson, Monroe boy who starred at Ouachita Parish High school, played a full quarter of the game at Washington yesterday, according to word received here by his parents. Johnson is a sophomore at Alabama and is considered one of the brightest prospects on the squad.

Crimson Tide came roaring back to the football heights today with a relentless attack that crushed George Washington university 39 to 0.

The Crimson lost no time in taking out their wrath on the unfortunate Colonials, scoring twice in the first period and then tagging on four more touchdowns before 30,000 spectators, the largest crowd that has attended a football game here in recent years.

So potent was Alabama's attack and so stubborn its defense that the Colonials had few opportunities and could not so much as make a first down until the game was almost finished.

Alphonse (Tuffy) Leemans, a star in the colonial backfield for three years, was so completely smothered by the swarming Crimson that he failed to make a single dangerous gesture. The Colonials never threatened and seldom got past midfield.

The Rose Bowl victors sounded their battle cry early, driving 92 yards for their first touchdown, after apparently having been put in a precarious spot by Leemans's 55-yard kick that stopped on Alabama's eight.

Alabama made 22 first downs to George Washington's one.

The lineups: Pos. Geo. Wash. Bryant, LB. Vander Brugge, RB. Deming, LG. Kolker, Francis, C. Rathjen, White, RG. Harrison, Young, RE. Prather, Smith, LB. Wright, Leemans, Stapp, LB. Jenkins, Angeli, RB. Hanken, Nesbit, FB. Reeves.

Score by periods: 13 6 14—39 Alabama 0 0 0 0—0 George Washington

Points from try after touchdown: Smith (place kick); Whaley (place kick); H. Walker (place kick).

Officials: Referee, Magoffin (Michigan); umpire, Perry (Sewanee); field judge, Ramey (V. M. I.); head linesman, Hackney (North Carolina).

LAFFOON LEADS AT INDIANAPOLIS

Chicago Pro Has 141 For 36 Holes; Winnie Cole Eliminated

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Ky Laffoon, brilliant Chicago golfer, ripped par into ribbons here today with a 68 round over a par 70 course to take the lead in the Indianapolis $5,000 open tournament at the half-way mark of the 72 holes event.

He made one mistake in the 18 holes, getting into a trap on the 17th but ran down three ten foot putts to complete the trip two under par and hang up a total score of 141 for 36 holes.

The tournament will be completed in two rounds tomorrow.

It took 152 or less to keep in the tournament. So hot was the pace that four British Ryder cup players, including Alfred Ryder, the country's open champion, were eliminated.

Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh, the United States open champion; Henry Piers, Johnny Revolta, Craig Wood, Gene Sarazen, and Paul Runyan, American Ryder cup players, survived along with their teammate Laffoon.

Two strokes behind Laffoon is Al Espinosa, of Akron, Ohio, with 143, while Chandler Harper, Norfolk, Va., and Denny Shute of Chicago, trailed three strokes in the rear.

Neal McIntyre, Indianapolis; Bob MacDonald, Chicago; Alfred Padgett, of England; Ted Johnston, of Winter Haven, Fla., and Ray Main, of Pittsburgh, were next in line, each with 145 strokes for 36 holes.

Johnson, who set the pace in the first round with a 69, could not find the grooves today and finished with a 76 to get his 145.

Johnny Camet of Baton Rouge, La., had a score of 76-155; Cole of Monroe, 88-84-187. Camet was eligible for the last two rounds tomorrow and Cole was eliminated.

KELLY-METHENEY MATCH TOPS STADIUM PROGRAM

'GRUDGE' MATCH BOOKED AS MAIN EVENT THURSDAY

Tommy Marvin Signed For
Semi-Final Of All-Star
Mat Card

An all-star show, headed by a rematch between Ernest Kelly, popular local favorite, and Hank Metheney, rugged 220-pound Missouri, has been booked for the weekly program at Rowlett stadium.
Promoter Charlie Bruscatto announced last night. The show will be held on Thursday night to avoid conflict with the circus which is playing Monroe on Wednesday night. In addition to the Kelly-Metheney match, Bruscatto has booked Tommy Marvin, well known bandman grappler, for the semi-final and is looking for a suitable opponent for him.

Bruscatto also announced that the price of admission will remain at 40 cents, despite the fact that the show is costing him more than the usual lineup at the stadium. Bruscatto tried to get the reduced price last week and a large crowd turned out. No passes will be honored Thursday night, however.

Kelly and Metheney wrestled at the stadium a week and a half ago and Kelly won when Metheney was disqualified for rough tactics. However, Kelly came out on the short end of the affair, for he wound up in a local hospital with several stitches in his head.

After each had won a fall, the two rolled to the aisle and started slugging away at each other. They finally climbed back on the ledge around the ring and Metheney then sent Kelly spinning toward a corner post. Kelly hit with a thud and a four-inch gash was cut in the top of his head, knocking him out.

Kelly was carried to the dressing room and first-aid treatment was rendered by two physicians. When he recovered enough to dress, Kelly met Metheney in Hank's dressing room and the two started their fistie battle anew, only to be stopped by Bruscatto and several others who were in the dressing room at the time. Kelly then went to the hospital, where the wound under his curly locks was sewed up.

Kelly has vowed that he will discard all science when he meets Metheney again. He claims he'll go out fighting and pound Metheney into submission in quick time. Kelly usually wrestles clearly, but Thursday night no holds will be barred and the winner will take both men's purses.

Bruscatto said last night that Metheney had signed a contract and the promoter guarantees Hank will be on hand. Metheney is bent on dealing out another thrashing to the Tennesseean, Bruscatto said.

"If you insist that I meet Kelly again, I'll have to do it," Bruscatto said yesterday. "He asked for it, and I'll let him have it. I hope to be able to finish his career for him Thursday night. He'll need more than two doctors."

Kelly is equally bold in his statements. The fair-haired boy says he's ways wrestled on the up and up, and that Thursday night he's going to maim Mr. Metheney if possible. "It ought to be a gory affair, if they've up to their boots."

Bruscatto said he is attempting to book the best opponent available for Kelly in an effort to make the Thursday card the best presented here in many months.

GEORGIA BULLDOGS ROUT CHATTANOOGA

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 5.—(AP)—Georgia's powerful Bulldogs, reporting chiefly to power plays through the line, crushed a smaller University of Chattanooga eleven here today 40 to 0 score.

Playing practically every player on the squad, Coach Harry Mehre's charges scored in every period and their goal line never was endangered by the fighting band of Moccasins.

Benvenuto Cellini tells how he was given ground diamonds in his food while he was a prisoner in Florence. His enemies went to such expense to kill him because they feared he might be able to digest ground glass; so they chose the harder substance.

Coach Haynes will continue the hard Lion drills this week and it will not be before Wednesday that he will let up and give his charges a breathing spell.

Quachita fans are all pepped up over the impending clash with the Class B title holders and a large crowd is expected to be on hand to witness the tussle. The game will be played under the lights at Northeast Center of L. S. U. stadium.

Quachita Preparing For Hard Tilt With Tallulah

Haynes Gives Lions Pair Of Strenuous Week-End
Workouts

The Tallulah high school Trojans, Class B football champions of the state for the past three years, led by Coach "Ma" Phillips, will be in Monroe Thursday night to give Coach "Lefty" Haynes' Quachita parish high school eleven its first real test of the season.

Anticipating a hard fight, Coach Haynes is wasting no time whipping his Lion aggregation in shape for the battle. Friday, following the local's unopposed victory over Columbia's Crimson Tide, Coach Haynes sent his boys through a strenuous two-hour workout and then repeated the same dose yesterday.

The Lions bore up well under the hard drills and appeared to be in good shape. Rudy Vandenberg, center, and Harvey Gregg, quarterback, who have been on the ailing roster for the past few days, are back in the harness and should be able to play against the Trojans. Only one player, Rudy Paitich, a halfback who was hurt in the season's opener, is still on the sick list.

While the Lions have been warming up with Class B aggregations, the Trojans have been tackling Class A combinations and have made impressive showings against their opposition.

Both teams have played three games each with Quachita winning all of theirs and the Trojans losing one of theirs. But Tallulah's defeat was by Bolton of Alexandria, one of the strongest Class A teams in this part of the state, and they only beat the Trojans by one touchdown.

Results of games played by the Lions and Trojans thus far this year are: Quachita beat Crossett, Ark., 24 to 0, defeated Delhi, 26 to 0, and trimmed Columbia, 33 to 0. Tallulah lost to Bolton, 6 to 0, beat Uita, Miss., 14 to 0, and wallowed Farmerville, 33 to 0.

Quachita barely beat Tallulah, 13 to 0, last season and Coach "Ma" Phillips' boys will be seeking to avenge that defeat.

"Tallulah has been looking forward to upsticking Quachita ever since that defeat," Coach Haynes said, "but we will be all ready to greet them with a new set of plays, which, added to the ones we have, should give the Class B champions plenty of trouble."

Quachita will probably have the edge where lines are concerned but Tallulah will no doubt have a better backfield, at least one with more experienced men.

The Quachita line composed of Jack Warren, John Renwick and Earl Cobb, ends, F. C. Eason and Billy Trimble, tackles; Wheeler Mitchell and Moise Peters, guards; and Ruby Vandenberg and Joe Butler, centers, is a veteran combination with the exception of Peters, who is serving his first year as a regular. The Trojans have an excellent line, too, with Scurlair, an end, one of the best in high school circles.

With Morton, Cagnoliatti and Coad presenting the chief backfield threat of the invaders, Quachita can expect plenty of trouble from this trio. However, if Sol Mayer, Lion halfback who has been exceeding expectations this season, continues his stellar performance, and he probably will, Quachita may prove equal to any threat by the visitors.

Coach Haynes will continue the hard Lion drills this week and it will not be before Wednesday that he will let up and give his charges a breathing spell.

HARTNETT'S HOME RUN ONLY SOLID HIT OFF VETERAN

my Bridges, slim right-hander who stopped the Cubs in the second game, can beat Lon Warneke, the Cubs' ace and shut-out victor in the first game.

Cochrane said tonight that while he planned to start Bridges he would switch to Schoolboy Rowe. Even if the Tigers fail to beat Warneke, they will have two games on their home grounds in which to collect the fourth and deciding game.

The fourth game today, witnessed by another frost-bitten crowd of 49,350 fans that was the biggest of the series, sent the total gate receipts over the $700,000 mark, developed another bitter battle of the "breaks" but was marked by no serious renewal of the hostilities in which the Cubs became embroiled with Umpire Moriarty yesterday.

Crowder decisively outpitched Tex Carleton, the Cubs' starting choice and a wild man, as well as the veteran Charley Root, victim of the Tiger thrust in the second game, but it was a weirdly achieved victory nevertheless. The Tigers might have been shut out, 4 to 0, on Hartnett's homer.

Had the Cubs given a perfect defensive performance or risen to the fly-catching heights of the day before.

Chicago outfielder missed two balls that were much easier to handle than any one of a half-dozen difficult drives they kept held of yesterday.

In the second frame, after Crowder had singled and gone to third on White's base-hit, Freddie Lindstrom got his glove hand on but failed to hold Gehring's liner which caromed off for two bases and enabled the General to trot home. Galan's muff of Clifton's long fly, in the sixth, was the second damaging piece of work by the Chicago outfield.

On the other hand it was the kind of a ball game the Tigers might have won by a lopsided margin. They had no less than 13 runners left on the bases, within one of the world series record. They filled the bags in both the second and third innings, yet scored only one run. Throughout the seven innings he worked, the Bengals threatened Carleton, who couldn't control his crossfire and issued seven bases on balls in addition to yielding six hits before giving way to a pinch-hitter and Root.

It was an ironic touch that Bill Jurgens, whose error on Crowder's simple roller let in the deciding run, cut off at least two Tiger rallies when he leaped high in the second inning to spear Clifton's smoking liner and toss to Billy Herman for a double play. The Bengals had filled the bases, with none out, but Marvin Owen popped to Herman and Clifton, in a split second, made his hero, was robbed of what looked like an extra base hit.

The Tigers jumped right back on the bases in the third and again Carleton, alternately wild and effective, was hard-pressed to escape with nothing more damaging than the run that equalized Hartnett's homer. Crowder led off with a single. White hit sharply to right but was cut down on Demaree's throw to second base as Crowder ran to third. It was poor strategy by the Tigers, with none out, Cochrane walked and Crowder came home when Gehring's liner got away from Lindstrom. Goslin was purposely passed to fill the bases. Cochrane was forced at the plate on Fox's grounder to Cavaretta and Rogel fanned.

The Tigers threatened in the fourth, when Crowder and White walked, with two out, but Cochrane's long fly fell into Demaree's hands. Gehring singled and stole second, in the seventh, but Carleton tightened up again and retired the side in his final appearance. Cochrane singled and went to second on Gehring's sacrifice at the start of the ninth, with Root pitching, but Goslin was purposely walked and the next two batsmen were easily retired.

Meanwhile the old General was moving along, serene and cautious, lapsing at rare intervals in his control of a ball that didn't seem to have much on it but which the Cubs found extremely difficult to hit solidly. Crowder, in baseball parlance, pitched mainly with his head. The zip is gone off his fast one and his curve isn't anything to brag about but he had the Bruins pretty well handcuffed with his change of pace. Except for the five base hits off him, only one ball was hit out of the infield. That was Galan's fly to Goslin in the fifth.

At several junctures, Elden Auker peeled off his jacket and started warming up furiously for a relief call but it never came. After Hartnett's second inning homer, only one baserunner got as far as third. That was Herman, who doubled at the start of the sixth and galloped to third after Gehring caught Lindstrom's foul near the right-field box seats.

Only two other Cubs got as far as second base. Cavaretta singled and Jurgens walked, with one out in the fifth, but Carleton fanned and Galan flied out. This looked like a better spot for some master-minding and pinch-hitting than the seventh, when Chuck Klein was sent up to hit for Carleton with two out and Jurgens on base as the result of a pass, Klein was tossed out by Crowder.

The final flurry, in the ninth, was successfully weathered by the General, with characteristic coolness. Hartnett lined out to start the ninth but Demaree punched a single to right and Cavaretta slapped a base hit to left. Both hit the first ball but Crowder saw that Hack took no such liberties. The count was one strike and two balls when Hack topped the next pitch for a roller that Billy Rogel quickly scooped up and turned into a double play.

Basco, Bell, Haddad, Davis and Jurgens walked, with one out in the fifth, but Carleton fanned and Galan flied out. This looked like a better spot for some master-minding and pinch-hitting than the seventh, when Chuck Klein was sent up to hit for Carleton with two out and Jurgens on base as the result of a pass, Klein was tossed out by Crowder.

BENGALS EASILY OUTCLASS WEST CARROLL ELEVEN

Brown Uses Entire Squad In
Victory

Sweeping through their opposition at will, the Tigers of Neville high school smothered the Oak Grove high school Tigers, 38 to 0, in a game that was all Neville under the lights at Brown stadium last night. Coach Percy Brown used practically every man available on his 45-man squad, substituting whole teams at a time, and the invading eleven was unable to do anything about it.

Oak Grove was the lightest team Neville has met this year and for the first time of the season the locals outwitted their opponents. But weight had little to do with the turn of battle. It was simply that Neville was by far the strongest, most experienced team and Oak Grove could do nothing but "break" the long runs of Basco, Haddad, Bell and Davis, as well as possible.

Neville's first team started the game and played the entire first quarter, scoring two touchdowns and piling up five first downs. Oak Grove had possession of the ball only three times during the quarter, lost it twice deep in their own territory by fumbles and kicked as soon as they got it the third time as the period was ending.

The Tiger second team played the second quarter, battling Oak Grove on even terms with the invaders getting their first two first downs and Neville making two more. But the regulars took charge again at the half and away they went down the field with the invading Tigers willing before their attack.

Three more touchdowns and five more first downs in the third quarter had the game won by a comfortable margin, so in went the second team again to be followed by the third stringers and then the lowest of the lowly scrubs. The reserves held out until late in the final period when the regulars returned to top off the skirmish with another touchdown.

Of the five touchdowns scored by Neville, two of them were by the overhead route.

Neville marched straight down the field from their 30 yard line for the first touchdown, which was made by Pete Haddad, quarterback, on a wide right end run from Oak Grove's five yard line.

The second touchdown followed immediately after Cecil Smith, Oak Grove halfback, fumbled on his own 25-yard stripe and Haddad recovered by Basco. Haddad and Davis worked the ball to Oak Grove's one foot line and Davis hit the middle for the tally. Davis' kick for the extra point was good as it was following the first touchdown, but the locals converted no more.

A short pass, Haddad to Harris Bell, scored a third touchdown before the second half had hardly opened. Close on its heels came a fourth touchdown, this time by Haddad on a long end run from Oak Grove's 18-yard marker.

The plays that resulted in the next two and final touchdowns were the most exciting of the game and made the scoring of Neville's earlier touchdowns look like routine work.

The first of the spectacular plays came near the end of the third period and was a beautiful pass from Haddad to Richard Basco that netted a touchdown. It was not so much the throwing of the pass that marked the play as exceptional but the way Basco, sure-footed halfback, got under the ball at top speed and prepared for its reception. The ball was an Oak Grove 42-yard line and Haddad dropped back to the 37 before making the throw. Basco was streaking away goalward and looked back over his shoulder just in time to see the ball soaring over his head. It looked like it was out of reach but the halfback strained toward it desperately and taking it on his fingertips on Oak Grove's ten-yard line, went for the first touchdown.

The next spectacular play did not come until after the regulars had relieved the reserves late in the final quarter. The reserves came out of the game leaving the ball on Oak Grove's 38 yard line. Basco broke the ice as the regulars returned with a five yard gain at left tackle and then, with the ball on the visitors' 42 yard stripe, Bell, who played a bang-up defensive game for the locals, tore through right guard, shaking off would-be tacklers with ease. He half stumbled after about 15 yards going but soon righted himself and stretched out goalward unhindered. The run netted 58 yards.

Oak Grove's most serious threat was made against the second team late in the first half. Monette Butler kicked to Neville's 35 where the ball was fumbled and Oak Grove recovered. Monette Butler and Milton Butler, Oak Grove's whole show, worked the ball to Neville's ten-yard line on two consecutive plays and then the Neville regulars, not even waiting to warm up, came charging back into the fray and spalled the visitors' chance to score.

Basco, Bell, Haddad, Davis and Jurgens walked, with one out in the fifth, but Carleton fanned and Galan flied out. This looked like a better spot for some master-minding and pinch-hitting than the seventh, when Chuck Klein was sent up to hit for Carleton with two out and Jurgens on base as the result of a pass, Klein was tossed out by Crowder.

TARHEELS CRUSH TENNESSEE VOLS BY 38-13 SCORE to the air, but nine of their passes were intercepted, several of them leading to touchdowns for the visitors.

North Carolina scored a field goal and touchdown in the first quarter, a touchdown in the second, and then rushed over three in the final period, one of which was an 85-yard dazzling run by Burnette, substitute fullback, on a kick-off.

Tennessee scored touchdowns in the second and fourth quarters. North Carolina took an early lead on an intercepted pass from Dickens, the Vols' ace halfback, on North Carolina's 37-yard line. On line plays the Tarheels drove to the Vols' 19-yard stripe where Daniel, center, booted the ball over the goal post for a field goal.

A few minutes later Bantz, North Carolina end, blocked Captain Palmer's punt and recovered the ball on Tennessee's 25-yard line. A pass and line plays carried the ball to Tennessee's one-yard line where Jackson leaped over for a touchdown.

In the second quarter Harp, red-haired Tennessee sophomore, passed 26 yards to Dittmore, reserve end, who raced 35 yards for Tennessee's first touchdown. Later Bantz of North Carolina intercepted Harp's lateral pass on the Vols' 25, and two passes, Jackson to Buck, placed the ball near the edge of Tennessee's goal line. Hutchins plunged over for the Tarheels' second touchdown.

Hutchins and Bershak, end, intercepted two Tennessee passes in the third quarter, but the Tarheels failed to capitalize on them.

In the wild final quarter, Jackson shot a 15-yard pass through center to Buck, who leaped high, juggled the ball, and caught it over the goal line for another North Carolina score. A few minutes later a pass from Dickens, Vols' halfback, was intercepted by Snyder, quarterback, who returned to Tennessee's 25-yard stripe. From there Hutchins passed over the goal line to Jackson for a touchdown. Near the close Derryberry, Tennessee reserve back, passed 33 yards to Eblen, substitute fullback, who raced 15 yards for the Vols' second score. Burnette's 85-yard swinging dash down the field before the whistle brought the exciting game to a close.

Markets -- Financial

Cotton

New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 5.—(P)—Net losses ranging from 1 to 4 points were marked up against cotton futures on the market here today in the week-end session.

Hedge pressure offset light trade buying, accounting for the small decline in prices.

The volume of business was light and prices held in a narrow range, but the major influence appeared to be on the downside.

December closed at 10.92, March at 11.02, May at 11.05 and July at 11.06.

There was little change in the aspects of the Ethiopian situation to induce more foreign buying and the majority of the purchases today were for domestic trade accounts.

The customary week-end realizing and evening up of commitments also worked toward lower prices.

Reports from the interior indicated that the spot situation was still excellent with buyers taking cotton as fast as it is ginned.

Exports today were 10,165 bales.

BETTER BUSINESS SEEN IN NATION

Fenner And Beane's Survey Reveals Decided Economic Improvement

A country much better off than a year ago, yet at this time unwilling to allow the New Deal full credit for the improvement, is revealed by the fourth business survey conducted by Fenner & Beane, leading brokerage and commodity house, and released yesterday.

Tabulations of reports returned show that America is obviously in the process of steady recovery. Manufacturing, the survey indicates, has shown distinct improvement which varies from 5 per cent to 21 per cent in different sections of the country. Heavy industry has shown a somewhat larger recovery, now standing at levels ranging from 8 per cent to 30 per cent above last year. Bankers, the survey shows, are willing to loan money to responsible borrowers and credit is ready to flow into commerce and industry when needed. Employment in the sections reviewed has been stepped up anywhere from 10 per cent to 25 per cent, while retail trade has been showing gratifying improvement, now ranging from 13 per cent to 21 per cent above last year. Installment sales, particularly, have been highly active on the upside, moving ahead anywhere from 12 per cent to 25 per cent above a year ago, according to the Fenner & Beane survey.

Farm income, the survey shows, has gained about 18 per cent over the past year. Credit for this improved situation is generally divided between the AAA benefits, on the one hand, and higher prices for agricultural products on the other, with prices being given the advantage of any doubt. In any case, the country sees the economic condition of the farmer as somewhat better than "fair," with 1935

Ouachita Formation Checks High; Drillers To Set Six-Inch Casing

Coring at approximately 5,300 feet, in one of the deepest tests for oil that has been drilled in Ouachita parish, the Golsen No. 1 well of the American Liberty Oil company of Dallas, Texas, located in section 25-17-1 east, Ouachita parish, about 16 miles southwest of Monroe, topped the bolitic line of the Trinity series, and was said to be preparing to set six-inch casing sometime this week.

The well is being drilled on a geophysical high worked out by the Dallas company and local operators declare that formations are checking high.

Considerable interest attaches to the report that the oolitic lime has been cored in this well due to recent developments in the new Rodessa oil field near Shreveport, where this formation resulted in the completion of a 50,000 barrel well last August and the opening of new deep pay in the Trinity horizon.

Since the discovery of the Monroe gas field in 1916, several major oil companies have drilled deep tests but without success, although the

SMART MODES FOR FALL AND WINTER

Mrs. Edward Seymour's petite type of beauty is accentuated by a blue ensemble of naive simplicity. Her swagger coat is fashioned of navy blue corduroy and her sport type frock is of blue and white check wool with boyish Eton collar. With this costume she wears a mannish hat of blue suede cloth.

Mrs. Joseph Isaacman, noted for her discrimination in the selection of clothes, interprets the new fall mode in a handsome tailleur of gray worsted. Black accessories, a bag of antelope, suede gloves, a satin blouse and close-fitting hat of velour, add a note of distinction.

Miss Leigh Russell, upon her return from Denver where she spent the summer, was seen wearing a smart swagger coat of heavy white silk flecked with black.

Miss Elisabeth Platt, Bride-To-Be, Is In Social Spotlight

Vaughan Compliment Lovely Artistic Affair

Home Beautifully Decorated For Event; Keno Is Diversion; Honoree Is Remembered With Rock Crystal Set

Miss Elisabeth Platt selected the ninth of October for her marriage to Mr. John Duhonson and since the announcement was made she has been in the social spotlight.

Mrs. J. B. Vaughan's compliment on Thursday was quite the loveliest and the most artistic event of the early fall season.

Immense silver urns overflowing with pink Columbia roses were grouped in the drawing room and inspired the silver color theme reflected in every detail. The table in the dining room, presided over by Miss Ann Platt in handsome afternoon model of gold cloth and Miss Jean Dryburgh in silver cloth model, was developed exclusively in crystal and silver. A flat mirror centering the lace covered table reflected an imported, ornamental silver tree and at either side was an exquisite corsage, one for Miss Platt's mother, Mrs. J. W. Platt, and one for her aunt, Miss Mollie Tucker. Crystalized baskets filled with sweet meats were served with the coffee and tea poured from handsome silver services.

The guests, upon arrival, were served luscious canapés and cocktails at the small tables where keno was introduced by the hostess and supplied the afternoon's diversion. Attractive gifts, wrapped in silver tissue and tied with silver metallic ribbons, were presented to the winners. Miss Platt's gift from Mrs. Vaughan and her niece, Miss Betty Reilly, was a rock crystal cream and sugar set.

Kelly-Adams

A wedding characterized by loveliness and claiming the interest of friends in this section of the state was that of Miss Sara Mae Adams, charming young daughter of Mrs. J. L. Adams and the late Dr. Adams, and Mr. Warren Kelly, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kelly.

The impressive ceremony was solemnized at the home of the bride's mother on Jackson street Saturday afternoon, October the fifth, at four o'clock, with Rev. L. T. Hastings, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiating in the presence of the family and a few intimate friends.

Glorious golden-hued chrysanthemums banked the reception suite and the improvised altar, where tall, golden tapers pricked the evening shadows.

Miss Jane Burgess and Miss Doris Davenport, the bride's attendants, wore smart rust-colored afternoon models with brown velvet hats and accessories of brown. They carried picturesque sheaves of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Kelly was attended by Mr. Harrison Jordan, Mr. L. A. Stiles, soloist, rendered in beautiful voice, "O Promise Me," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Grover Cornett.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. L. Adams, wore a stunning model of gold cloth with brown accessories. A swaggar coat, with handsome raccoon collar, completed the distinctive ensemble. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze-colored chrysanthemums.

An informal reception was held following the ceremony, permitting friends to offer their felicitations. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their future home in Rayville, where Mr. Kelly is a prominent young business man. He is a graduate of Louisiana State university and is a member of Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Mrs. Kelly, a great favorite in younger social circles, attended Northeast Center of L. S. U. last year.

Y. W. C. A. Plans Drive

Like generals who plan each step of an army's advance, members of the board of the Young Women's Christian association are laying their plans electing committees and outlining each day's work for the approaching city-wide financial campaign.

Mrs. Jessie Sadler, well versed in Y. W. C. A. work, will again act as general chairman of this year's drive. Mrs. Alden Shotwell will head the initial gift committee and Mrs. C. W. Dickard will act as chairman of the team captain committee. Mrs. C. P. Gray will be chairman of the list committee and Mrs. D. C. Metcalf will be chairman of publicity.

Great strides have been made by the Monroe Y. W. C. A. since its inception in 1920, with Mrs. Palmer Hardie the first president and Mrs. J. B. Pollard the executive secretary. The first drive, with a goal of $5,000, resulted in subscriptions amounting to $6,690. The supply each year since has been equal to the demand and, as a result, many young working women have found it possible to live comfortably and in a Christian atmosphere. This would not have been possible without a Y. W. C. A. Working women are enabled to obtain a room for a moderate sum and enjoy all the comforts of home. Seventy-five working women

From the regal days of the Renaissance comes inspiration for this Paris evening wrap and gowns designed by Jodelle. The wrap is of changeable red and black velvet, designed with a big hooded collar, big topped sleeves which are tightly cuffed and a full skirt falling from a slender waistline. It is fastened with a long jeweled buckle set with simulated rubies.

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Raphael, Titian, Botticelli, great painters of the Renaissance, are having another inning of world influence—winter fashions for twentieth century moderns.

From colors and fabrics, to hats, frocks and shoes, 1936 clothes have borrowed inspiration from Italian art hundreds of years old.

Fra Angelico blues, soft greyed Madonna blues, rich Palma Vecchio reds, vivid cardinal reds, ecclesiastical purples, Veronese greens, and burnt siennas from the palettes of Renaissance masters are important colors in the winter mode.

The rich black velvets beloved by Renaissance beauties and nobles, jewel toned changeable velvets and brocaded silks make a number of evening frocks, designed with full skirts and low décolletés revealing white shoulders. Other evening gowns fashioned of white chiffon and belted with silver rope look like the robes of Raphael angels; hostess gowns in warm rich hues are cut like the costumes of monks of the middle ages, and evening wraps suggest hooded monk's capes. Gold lame halos or net caps of seed pearls accompany some of the evening costumes.

Evening shoes reflect the Renaissance effect too. The most striking models are pointed toes, sole-less, heel-less satin slippers richly worked in gold thread and sparkling stones.

The Venetian youth has inspired a good number of daytime fashions. His tunic with its flared peplum appears in several wool frocks, his trim belts mark others and his peaked hat with its tall feather now crowns a number of smart feminine heads. Halo hats are another bit of smart headgear inspired by paintings of the middle ages.

The jewels and embroidery which decked the robes of the Medici and other nobles of the Renaissance play a big role in 1936 fashions. Multi-colored jewels set belts, long buckles and clips and tiny pearls are embroidered on evening frocks. Bright and sober silk embroideries trim a number of day frocks.

Jodelle repeats the jeweled trim of the Renaissance wrap in this gown of white crepe, richly embroidered at the neckline and waist in gold and imitation rubies, sapphires and emeralds.

Paris Does New Tricks With Furs

WHEN Schiaparelli works in fur, she can be lavish and strikingly different. She uses silver fox to make huge gauntlet gloves extending to the elbow and to form the backward falling collar on this black wool coat. Then she tops the black felt toque with a fox tail sweeping forward like a plume.

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Oct. 5.—(AP)—Parisian designers are doing new tricks with furs this year.

She puts fox tails on heads, fox fur on hands, dyes old pelts new shades and uses new ones for novel accents. The result is both smart and amusing.

Fur has "gone to the head" of a number of smart costumes. Besides Schiaparelli's toques, which are accented with a fox tail raking forward like a plume, there are fezzes and chimney toques of black astrakhan trimmed, as a new 1935 note, with a cluster of asters or a slim quill, and felts with smart fur touches. To accompany some of them there are gauntlets of silver fox or astrakhan, which reach to the elbow, look like twin muffs and are guaranteed to make one stare.

Staid standby furs have been dipped in colored baths this season and have emerged in hues which should be a surprise even to themselves. Foxes are shaded from golden yellow to brown, from soft gray green to bottle green and used to trim wool coats of harmonizing hue, while caracul is dyed dark red or blue and made into hip-length coats.

The season's favorite furs—Persian lamb, astrakhan, breitschwanz, silver fox, Alaska seal, beaver and nutria—are used in new and amusing ways as trimmings.

Persian lamb is everywhere. It makes entire sleeves, small standing military collars, big throat-swathing collars, muffs, frog fastenings, pockets and the plaques of belts. Breitschwanz and beaver make the new buttons and hoods which may be worn either on the head or falling from the back like a cowl collar. Foxes trim the décolletés of several evening gowns, contribute lavish swirling trims to afternoon coats and decorate evening wraps.

Long fur evening capes sweep to the floor in costly luxury. One model is made entirely of silver foxes, and another of black seal lined in orange satin, a third of ermine. Capes of red foxes, lynx, silver fox, monkey, astrakhan and beaver sweep by during the day.

8,000,000 SEE EXHIBITS GIVEN AT SIXTY FAIRS

Better Housing Booths Excite Interest Of Vast Crowds Of People

WASHINGTON, D. C.—More than 8,000,000 people have attended 60 state and county fairs in 46 states since July 1 where booth and exhibit space was devoted to the federal housing administration's program, according to a compilation by the exhibitions unit of the administration. This figure, considered to indicate a widespread interest in better homes and better building, is conservative, it was pointed out, when it is learned that 663 fairs to be held by the end of next spring have definitely arranged for booths and other exhibit space featuring the housing administration's program. The official attendance figure for the 60 fairs held so far was 8,295,503. It is considered of great value in the education of the general public in the advantages to be derived from the national housing act that booths be operated at state and county fairs. The opportunity to give personal explanations of the modernization credit plan and the mutual mortgage insurance plan is believed to be the chief advantage of fair booths.

MIRROR DOORS
Add a full-length mirror door in the entry closet. This will be convenient for those who live in the house as well as for guests.

Water Softener Sales Increase Hits New High

Sales of water-softening equipment for use in the home have increased each month for the first seven months of 1935, and reached a peak in June of 147 per cent greater than the same period for 1934, according to reports to the Federal Housing Administration. The Modernization Credit Plan, the reports state, has proved an important factor in this result.

Automatic home water softeners are a comparatively new addition to the list of labor-saving devices. With a few exceptions hard water is a problem in most of the thickly populated states and larger cities where the annual waste from damage to water pipes alone is said to reach a huge figure. Hard water is one of the chief causes of scale in pipes and resulting stoppage of water flow. Water that is too hard also makes quick inroads on clothes and linens, on kitchen utensils, water heaters, and boilers.

Soft water, which makes a creamy, rich lather, is a beauty treatment well known for its beneficial effect on the complexion. It is also used widely for shampooing as it prevents stringy soap curds from sticking in the hair and does not destroy luster. As an aid to shaving, the water softening equipment commands the interest of the men in the family. Water-softening equipment makes for great savings in soap bills and prevents clothes from wearing out so quickly, as the real wear in most laundry operations comes from the soap curds that will not wash out of fabrics in hard water.

The modern type of electric automatic home water softener can now be installed under the Federal Housing Administration Credit Plan at costs comparable with such labor-saving devices as oil burners and automatic refrigerators. The softener includes two units, one is the softener itself in which the water passes through a bed of minerals leaving calcium and magnesium behind; the other is a reservoir containing a solution of common salt which regenerates and invigorates the minerals of the softening tank from time to time.

DECORATIVE PLASTER
If you are building a new house or remodeling an old one, investigate the possibilities of decorative plaster over masonry.

Often a picture over the fireplace will overbalance the wall. An attractive design in relief left the same color as the remainder of the walls, will add interest to the space above the fireplace, but will not overemphasize it.

Many attractive designs are executed for this purpose. Among the interesting subjects used in a modern room was a relief map of the state in which the house was located.

MODERNIZE TO FIGHT FIRE IS THEME OF PLAN

Housing Body Cooperating In Program To Educate The Public

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The full force of the widespread organization of the federal housing administration is being marshaled to lend support to the national fire prevention program, following announcement by Administrator Stewart McDonald that modernization and careful planning of new buildings materially decreases fire hazard.

State and regional directors and local better housing committee chairmen have been informed of the housing administration's accord with this observance and special celebrations whereby the relation of modernization and repair to fire prevention may be shown to the public as being planned in hundreds of communities.

Administrator McDonald's announcement of federal housing administration cooperation with National Fire Prevention week celebrations followed invitations extended the administration by Terence F. Cunneen, secretary of the national fire prevention council; T. Alfred Fleming, chairman of the international committee for fire prevention week; and representatives of other organizations of similar character. Industrial groups, represented by advisors at housing administration headquarters in Washington, have also indicated that they will cooperate with the housing administration in conducting educational work throughout the nation to improve the public with the advantages to be derived from modernizing to reduce the ever-present fire menace.

A booklet is being prepared by the housing administration which will outline the relationship of modernization and repair to fire prevention. This booklet will be off the press within the next several days, and copies will be made available to interested groups or individuals.

Extensive radio motion-picture, and newspaper educational programs are in progress of formation with special celebrations and programs to be held in virtually every state in the Union.

OFFICE WAITING ROOMS
The federal housing administration has received word that in many cities business men are taking advantage of modernization credit insured by the federal housing administration to remodel the waiting rooms for their offices.

It is reported that they find the first impression on the customer of an attractively modernized waiting room has a definite and favorable effect on making sales.

Light, restful wall colors in durable finishes which can be washed, simple moldings, and comfortable built-in furniture are being used. A desk where the client may do some work while waiting for an interview, convenient upholstered window seats, and shelves for books also add to the interest and usefulness of this room.

The exterior design of the house is particularly attractive and appropriate for southern regions. The cross-ventilation in every room makes it an especially good plan for use in warm climates.

The living room, facing a pleasant terrace and enclosed rear garden, creates an ideal Summer living space.

Built-In Beds Add To Conveniences Of Home

A small bedroom in a house or an apartment may be made more convenient by the addition of a built-in bed. In the household which has several children who bring guests for the week-end, the efficient utilization of small extra rooms or attics for additional guest room space is an important factor. Double-decker built-in beds will greatly aid in the solution of the problem.

The built-in bed may be very attractive if it is properly designed. It should harmonize with the other furnishings in the room. With proper care, the space above, below, and at the end may be utilized. Usually a room is a few feet longer than a bed, even though it be the old sewing room or second floor storage space. This length from the end of the bed to the wall may be used for a closet. A two or three foot hanging space will be sufficient for the normal amount of clothes the owner or week-end guest will bring. A shelf for shoes set up off the floor and a shelf above for hats should be added.

The space below the bed may be enclosed by doors and be used as a storage space for luggage. On the wall at the head of the bed a shelf for books and a reading lamp may be added.

If the room is too small to hold a comfortable arm chair, the bed may be used as a couch in the daytime. Large triangular pillows and a spread of a durable material will make this more comfortable.

If no other furniture is available for the extra rooms, a built-in dressing table and bench may be installed at the same time the bed is built. The dressing table may be so designed that one-half of it can be used as a writing desk.

HOMES BENEFITED BY 'OVER-ROOFING'

Homes that are growing old, and are badly in need of remodeling can be vastly improved in appearance, sales value, and added insulation from heat and cold, by directly over-roofing the old roof with new shingles. In re-roofing, labor and expense of removing the old roof is eliminated. The ease of applying the new shingles is materially increased and of great importance is the fact that there will be no litter falling on shrubbery which will frequently injure, costly planting beyond recovery. During the process of re-roofing, the interior of the house is protected from damage by rains for the old roof will act as a protective covering the process.

Many types of roofing materials may be satisfactorily applied over old roofs. The Federal Housing Administration modernization loans for work of this kind.

FHA IS BUSINESS AID, SAYS EXPERT

Copper Executive Says Way Is Pointed To Better Conditions

NEW YORK, N. Y.—With a pretentious building program carefully worked out by the Federal Housing Administration, American industry has a golden opportunity to emerge from the depression, according to Bertram B. Caddle, secretary of the Copper and Brass Research association of New York.

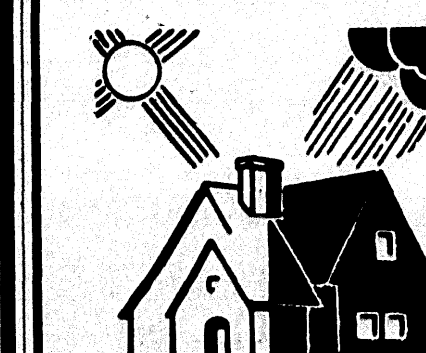

"Manufacturers of building materials who are taking advantage of their opportunities," he continued, "are increasing their production. There is a growing demand for better building materials both for new construction and for remodeling. The amount of money that will be expended in 1936 should far exceed that of any year since the depression was first felt by industry some six years ago."

"The copper and brass industry has been closely tying up with Federal Housing Administration activities. The consumption of copper for flashings, gutters, and downspouts; copper and brass pipe and copper tubing for water lines; solid brass and bronze for hardware and lighting fixtures; and bronze insect screen cloth show steady increases."

PREVENT HEAT LOSS
In western-framed houses the studs are not stopped at each floor, but run up through the full height of the house. If these spaces are open either to an unprotected attic or basement, or both, the rising air through these openings will decrease the efficiency of the heating system by transferring warm air into the attic.

Close these spaces at the basement and attic floor levels and considerable savings will be effected in heating bills.

FARM BELT IN POSITION FOR MODERNIZATION

Survey Reveals Principal Areas For Activity In Repair Plans

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The farm belt seems to be in a better position as a whole to repair and modernize its residential property than any other section of the country.

This is indicated by a survey made by the federal housing administration to guide its activities in educating the people of the country as to the privileges to be enjoyed under the national housing act. The survey, which represents a compilation of figures obtained from various sources, both governmental and private, attempts to determine the areas from which the bulk of the business of repair and modernization will be derived—not from an inspection of the properties themselves but from their type and condition of ownership and the ability of the people to buy the materials and equipment that to make good housing.

Based upon $1,000,000,000 total expenditures for modernization and repairs, the federal housing administration undertook to establish quotas for various areas. The 96 metropolitan districts or trading areas centering about one or more cities and having a population of 100,000 or more, as established by the census, comprise just short of half of the population of the country. The study indicated that the per capita expenditure for the group as a whole might be $9.41.

However, the farm-belt cities show up better than any of the others. The quota for Des Moines and environs, with a population of 160,953, is $14 per capita. The quota for the district embracing Omaha, Neb., and Council Bluffs, Iowa, with a population of 273,851, is close behind, being $13.88. The quota for Wichita, Kans., is $13.46.

The second best area for repair and modernization is Oklahoma, which is neighboring territory. The quota for both Oklahoma City and for Tulsa is $12.19.

As a group the west-coast cities are able to provide good housing for themselves. The quota for San Jose, Calif., is highest with $11.62; San Francisco is close behind with $11.60; Seattle and Los Angeles are about on a par, with quotas of $10.76 and $10.73, respectively.

FULL BACKING TO FHA GIVEN BY 4-H CLUBS

Organization Plans For Home Improvement Throughout Country

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Four hundred and seventy-five 4-H clubs in thirty states are now cooperating with the Federal Housing Administration in its task of creating better living conditions in the rural areas of the nation.

Improvement of rural housing conditions has for many years been one of the themes of the 4-H club movement, and cooperation with the Housing Administration has given added stimulus to the work.

Each club participating in the program has either appointed a better housing representative or has organized a committee to study conditions in rural housing. Housing literature supplied from Washington is being used in many localities for the purpose of outlining local repair programs for "typical farmsteads." Club members have also served in better housing booths at county and state fairs and have functioned as judges of farm housing as well as on demonstration teams.

Through the assistance of the 4-H clubs the Housing Administration of the belief that a more widespread appreciation of better farm homes will be developed in rural communities.

With the number growing weekly, at present South Carolina leads in the number of 4-H clubs cooperating with the Federal Housing Administration with 186; Ohio, second, with 102.

The number of clubs cooperating by states is as follows:

Arkansas, 2; California, 2; Connecticut, 1; Delaware, 56; Florida, 1; Georgia, 11; Illinois, 2; Indiana, 1; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 19; Kentucky, 6; Michigan, 5; Minnesota, 23; Missouri, 12; Montana, 2; New Mexico, 4; New York, 3; North Carolina, 3; Ohio, 102; Oklahoma, 13; Oregon, 1; South Carolina, 186; South Dakota, 1; Tennessee, 1; Texas, 2; Vermont, 3; Virginia, 1; Washington, 2; West Virginia, 2; and Wisconsin, 3. KANSAS PAPER COMMENDS FHA

Three-Fold Benefits Of Plan Are Enumerated By Publication

The following editorial appeared in the Topeka (Kan.) Journal of August last under the caption "Housing Act Benefits." It says in part: "The first assignment of the federal housing administration, the repairing and remodeling of homes, has brought threefold benefits. It has stimulated the sale of material; it has provided employment for men who needed it; and it has resulted in improved homes for families that could pay for them."

"The extent to which these benefits have been spread in Kansas is indicated by official reports which include statements by home owners of changes made or in progress amounting to almost $23,000,000 the first year. It is estimated that some 60 per cent of the money spent went into wages paid Kansas workers."

"At the time of its inception the better housing campaign seemed a sound measure of recovery. The experience of the state justifies that view."

"The repairing and remodeling activities, however, are more in the nature of an emergency program. The more lasting benefits of the national housing act probably are to come from some of its other features. One mortgage insurance in which money for the acquisition or the construction of homes is made available."

"Now that the housing act is the elimination of the defects of former plans home financing may be reduced or eliminated. They constituted a heavy burden upon the purchasing or building family. The United States not only looked forward to every man coming a capitalist through the ownership of property but our theory of security depends upon it. The weaknesses of our financing plans in the conditions under which they are operated permitted abuses which at times contributed to disastrous and unrest."

"For all that it is recently enacted national housing act is no quick-throw together hodgepodge of haphazard action. For years the acts mentioned had received the light and study of practical men. The present act, partly based upon the studies, may develop weaknesses and defects of its own. If so, they can be remedied. But in some of the law probably will be permanent, because it is based upon a sound need."

HOT-WATER HEATERS
Many kinds of small hot-water heaters which may be turned on a few minutes before hot water is needed are available.

When preparing the home for winter, consider adding a hot-water heater. An electric or gas heater may be placed in the basement and turned on from the basement landing or from the main floor.

This type of heater is economical in the intermittent use of hot water.

Modern Children's Room

Every consideration has been given to the children who will occupy this room by those who planned the juvenile apartment. Linoleum floor covering is easily cleaned, and the children's fun is not hampered by fear of spilling anything on the floor. With such an attractive nursery, brother and sister will be content to play at home, and far away street corners with their traffic dangers will not beckon. A room of this type may easily be created from waste attic space or other rooms under the Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration.

Housing Question Box

Q.—Can I stain plaster satisfactorily?

A.—A stained finish may be given to rough but not to smooth-finished plaster. It is advisable to size the wall before application of the stain.

The stain used must be one which will strike in and not dry too rapidly—any of the prepared stains of the oil type are satisfactory.

Q.—I wish to build a brick-veneer residence. Is this a satisfactory type of construction?

A.—Frame structures veneered with a single layer of brick attached at frequent intervals to the wood framework or sheathing are used in many parts of the country.

So far as structural stability is concerned, well-built veneered dwellings can be safely constructed of the same height and under the same circumstances as those with 8-inch masonry walls. The structural frame should be adequately braced.

Anchorage between the veneer and the wood should be frequent and substantial.

Openings should be carefully flashed and caulked to prevent the entrance of water behind the facing. Building paper should be used between the veneer and sheathing to prevent the penetration of moisture and the infiltration of air. Some types of sheathing have a heavy paper backing attached to a sheet of welded wire fabric. With this type it is common practice to slush mortar in between the sheathing and the veneer. It is usually advisable to flash under the veneer where it meets the foundation.

Q.—My kitchen does not have proper ventilation. How can I remove cooking odors?

A.—Electrically driven fans may be installed in the exterior wall of the kitchen.

Such a device will set up sufficient circulation to keep the air in the kitchen free from cooking odors and keep them from circulating through the rest of the house.

Q.—What causes paint to blister?

A.—Excess moisture in wood, which is drawn to the surface by heat (either from the sun or other sources), will cause paint to blister.

Always be sure that the surface to be painted is thoroughly dry before work is begun.

Q.—Joints in my woodwork have opened up. How can I remedy this?

A.—Fill the open joints with putty tinted to match the paint finish or some other appropriate material, a number of which are available on the market.

If the open joints are too wide for this treatment, moldings and other parts of the trim can be removed and refitted.

Care must be exercised in removing the trim, so that both it and the wall will not be injured.

Q.—Must a hot-water heating unit be placed in the basement?

A.—It is not necessary to place a hot-water system in the basement. The boiler may be located on the same level as the heated space. It need not be centrally placed. If your heating system has been designed for location in a basement it will have to be redesigned into an overhead system which is required where the unit is on the same level as the areas to be heated.

Q.—The inside wall surface and floors of my house show signs of "sweating." Can I prevent this?

A.—If there is no sign of leaking, the moisture on your walls and floor is probably caused by condensation. This varies with the temperature of

HOME CHARM IS AIDED BY STUCCO

Method Of Applying Material Given By Experts In The Process

When a house has a weathered or uninteresting exterior wall and is in need of a new surface, stucco can be applied as an over coating.

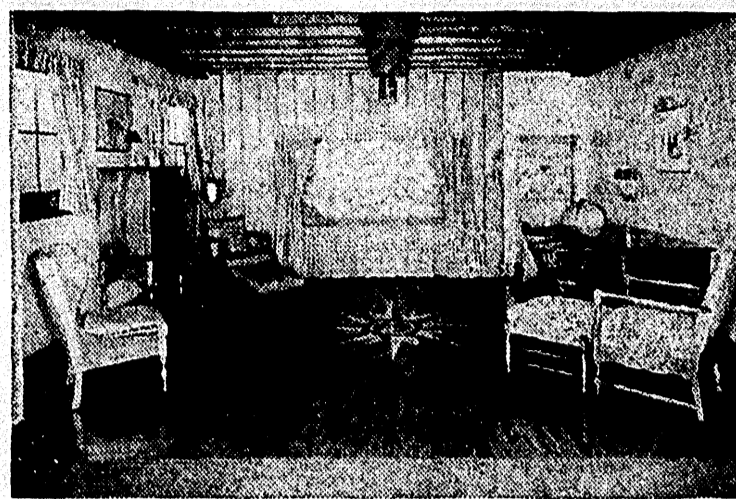

Masonry walls are superior as a basis for the addition of stucco because they are stable and minimize cracking. The chief requirements for such bases besides rigidity are that they should be straight and sufficiently rough to provide a good key. If the wall is bricks, the mortar joints should be raked out to a depth of about three-eighths of an inch, and other masonry that has been painted should be covered with metal lath, backed with a rough tool or sand blasted to remove all the old paint, oil, or other material which may prevent a good bond.

Frame structures should be rigidly braced and have a good foundation to prevent settling. For this reason it is usually fairly safe to apply stucco to a sturdy old frame building, for there is little danger of additional settling. If the weather-boarding is in good condition, it may be retained to assure stability, covered with waterproof paper and metal lath, carefully laced with wire and stapled not more than six or eight inches apart. Wood lath may also be used. The lath should be applied so as to form a nearly uniform fabric as possible over the whole structure. Care should be given to the proper extension of the window and door frames to meet the increased wall thickness.

Stucco is durable when properly applied, and the design of the structure has much to do with its lasting qualities. All surfaces should be as nearly vertical as possible, and it is usually best not to cover copings, sills, or other projections if the house is in a locality with a variable temperature. An electrician should be called in to determine the adaptability of the house for stucco coating.

This work may be financed through the low-rate modernization credit plan of the federal housing administration.

Modern Young Man's Room

Unused attic space or outmoded bedrooms may be readily transformed into modern accommodations for the son and heir to the family fortunes. As illustrated in the above photograph, a minimum of furniture gives spaciousness to such a room, which may be further augmented by the inclusion of a built-in bed such as is seen at the end of the room. When such a room is constructed in an attic, interesting ceiling treatments are possible by utilizing beams, dormers, and other parts of the existing structure. Cleanliness is assured when a modern, colorful linoleum flooring or other combination material is installed. Built-in shelves and bookcases also combine utility with decoration.

KITCHEN CLOSET

Add an appliance closet in the kitchen. Here all the smaller mechanical equipment—mixers, toasters, waffle irons, etc.—may be placed on shelves designed to accommodate them. On the door, place a row of books and paste white labels above each one. The electric cords which fit each appliance may be hung here and the name of the appliance placed above it. This will prevent cords from becoming tangled, and they will be easy to locate.

Paint the interior of the closet a color which contrasts with the main kitchen wall color.

Guard Summer Home Against Winter Blasts

A little time spent on reconditioning the summer cottage before it is deserted for the winter will protect it from deterioration and will prepare it for occupancy next year.

Check over the items which may need attention. Will the roof develop leaks during snow or heavy rainstorms? Should it have new shingles or stain? Are the metal flashings and drain pipes in good order? Will exterior porches and steps rot before another summer? Are the basement walls waterproof, etc.?

A careful checking of all these items will probably reveal a number which should be tended to immediately. For example, while you may wish to wait until spring to apply a fresh coat of paint so that it will be bright for the summer, it is much wiser to apply it now. Exterior paint is essentially a protective coating, and during the next six months a cottage needs protection more than during the summer months.

If downspouts or gutters are in bad condition, the water will often seep down the wall and into cracks which otherwise would give no trouble. If the interior of the house is damp, any article left in it will mildew.

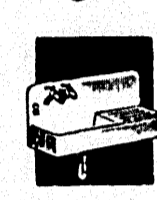

While the weather is still good, make these repairs and save major reconditioning jobs next spring.

Methylene blue injections have been found very beneficial in the treatment of leprosy.

Crosby Starred In New Liltng Comedy, 'Two For Tonight'

Crooner Has Leading Role In Laugh Riot

New Songs Introduced In Feature Film At Paramount Today

BRIGHT-SPRITED comedy, liltng songs, and gay romance make Bing Crosby's "Two For Tonight," which opened at the Paramount theater yesterday, one grand hour of fun and entertainment, topped by a supporting cast of skillful, but none the less hilarious, comedians headed by the buoyant innuendoes of Mary Boland and the droll humor of Lynne Overman.

Bing's newest laugh riot provides the crooner with plenty of opportunity to indulge his flair as an ace singer and master of farce. Presenting Crosby in one mirth-provoking dilemma after another, "Two For Tonight" is a perfect vehicle for Bing's light-hearted, insouciant, personable style of acting.

The comedy centers around the humorous experiences of a struggling young singer when he is erroneously taken for a playwright. Bing is one of three brothers, sons of Mary Boland, who are evicted from their home. Secreting themselves in the garden of a renowned music publisher's home, Bing sings while the other plays the piano, unaware that the publisher is dead as a post. An airplane crashes, putting Bing in the hospital. Miss Boland, in her effort to collect $50,000 damages, writes the pilot that the accident has prevented her son from completing his play. The pilot appears, in the person of Joan Bennett, secretary to a famous stage impresario, Lynne Overman. Through her, Bing and his family have an appointment with Overman who straightaway assigns Bing to write a play for his star, Thelma Todd without giving him a chance to explain.

The fun begins when Bing, finding himself short of ideas, acts upon the suggestion of Ernest Cossart, Overman's astute butler and ex-theatrical producer, to go out and make things happen to get more material for his play. He starts an hilarious water-siphon-shooting battle in a night club which sends him to jail. By this time Miss Bennett has fallen in love with the romantic tenor, but runs away when she sees him in an embrace with Miss Todd, returning a love scene. Overman, suddenly returning from Europe, also sees them, and fires Bing.

A sparkling, breezy sentimental finale forms the exciting climax to the fun fest. A fine assortment of catchy melodies have been provided by Gordon and Revel, including "From the Top of Your Head to the Tip of Your Toe," "Without a Word to My Friend," "Two for Tonight," "Take Two to Make a Bargain," and "I Wish I Were Aladdin." Frank Tuttle's direction is swiftly paced, attains distinction by its excellence.

Mary Boland, Overman, Cossart, James Blakely, Douglas Fowley, Charles Arnt and others carry off high honors on the amusement end.

Bing Crosby and Joan Bennett as they appear in the Paramount comedy with music and song, "Two for Tonight," the attraction playing at the Paramount theater for the last times today. Mary Boland, Lynne Overman, and Thelma Todd head the specially selected supporting cast.

James Dunn and Mae Clarke supply the romance and most of the fun in Fox film's new mirth-revel, "The Daring Young Man," coming to the Capitol theater Tuesday and Wednesday. Jimmy Dunn's portrayal of the young reporter who left his bride-to-be at the church to dash off on a secret assignment is the "tops" in madcap comedy.

Spring comes to New York City when the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey combined circus unloads its four trains of thrills and wonders for the annual engagement in Madison Square Garden. Then it is that the greatest city lays aside its mask of sophistication and unaffectedly becomes itself—and that self is symbolized by the Skippy-like boy shown here leading Big Bill, dean of the big show's herd of fifty elephants, from one of their ornate cars at the Harlem river railroad yards. The Greatest Show on Earth will exhibit in Monroe Wednesday.

'Thunder In Night' Now At Capitol
Edmund Lowe Tops Big Cast Appearing In Mystery Melodrama

THUNDER IN THE NIGHT the Fox mystery melodrama which opens at the Capitol theater today will provide mental exercise for the keen followers of mystery tales and a pleasant revelation for the admirers of that likable and versatile star, Edmund Lowe, who emerges in an entirely new type

Lovers weave their dreams in the magical spell of the Erie canal waterways, in the great American romance, "The Farmer Takes a Wife," the attraction at the Paramount theater for Thursday and Friday. Janet Gaynor and Henry Fonda are the screen's happiest lovers in this film, adapted from the stage success of the same name.

Fine unashamed sentiment, gusty comedy, homely reality and slap bang action all geared to the greatest amount of entertainment for the greatest number of folk is what is promised of the picture "The Irish in Us," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. The stars pictured above are Pat O'Brien, Olivia De Havilland, and James Cagney. Among its merits are the finest Irish mother that ever waddled across the screen in the person of Mary Gordon, and the most slashing genuine ring fight the films have seen.

The wife of his best friend . . . yet he must accuse her of murder. Edmund Lowe, who plays the role of a suave, gentleman detective in Fox film's "Thunder in the Night" at the Capitol today and Monday, appears in a thrilling scene from the picture with Karen Morley and Paul Cavanaugh.

rectly at Karen Morley, wife of Cavanaugh.
Lowe hastens to the castle, not to arrest Miss Morley, but to cover her up. His superior officer, Russell Hicks, who is Cavanaugh's political enemy, discovers the same clues and anticipates Lowe.
The story revolves itself into a two-sided battle between Lowe and Hicks, Hicks wishes to precipitate a scandal which will ruin Cavanaugh; Lowe hopes to protect him.
A terse dramatic climax at the scene of the murder uncovers a startling set of facts. Lowe, with remarkable ingenuity and intelligence, reconstructs the murder and ferrets out the criminal, bringing the picture to a satisfactory and thrilling climax.
Shorn of the tough mannerisms which were once part of his every characterization, Lowe is a pleasing and ingratiating performer in the star role. Miss Morley and Cavanaugh are completely satisfactory in supporting roles, and Gene Lockhart, Una O'Connor and John Qualen are especially deserving of mention for their performances in minor characterizations.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Robbins Coons
HOLLYWOOD—Several months ago, by saying "yes" to the importunities of a studio that wanted him to do a picture, Will Rogers might have changed the course of events that led to his tragic death.

Because he said "no," a shocked Hollywood has another "if only" story to record.

Will Rogers made his first local stage appearance in many years—in a play, that is—when he took the leading role in a production of Eugene O'Neill's "Ah, Wilderness!" He was a tremendous success in the role that George M. Cohan played in New York, and the show could have run many weeks longer, with capacity houses, than it did.

Meanwhile M-G-M had purchased the screen rights to this play, and Rogers loomed as the logical choice for the assignment. He had permission from his own studio to make the picture, and Metro offered handsome inducements. But for some reason or another, Rogers never entered the negotiations wholeheartedly.

For a long time Clarence Brown, directing the picture, postponed his selection of a star in the hope that Rogers would change his mind. Some said the reason Will refused the part was his desire to let well enough alone, that he was content with what honors he had gained by his stage interpretation. But no real explanation was offered, either by Metro or by the occasionally laconic Rogers.

"If only," as Hollywood could reflect today, Will had accepted this role he would have been on location in New England, where Lionel Barrymore is doing the part intended for him.

Will Rogers, of course, never indulged in "if only's."
He was too busy working, or flying, or tending to things on his ranch, or lending his wit to civic affairs.
He never took himself seriously as an actor, but he did take seriously his obligation to his great public—even in small things.
Once a director wanted him to fake some accordion-playing for a scene, and Rogers balked. It was only when he was persuaded that the scene was necessary and it had to be an accordion that Will relented.
"I don't like to pull fakes in my pictures," he explained. "I don't believe in fooling the people. . . . Now it'd been a violin—I can fiddle a little. Well, enough to get by."
